SENATE SNUBS HOOVER REMOVING HIS POWER OVER FLEXIBLE TARIFF

Resolution of Simmons Kills Debated Issue by 47 to 42.

COALITION STRENGTH WINS OVER REGULARS

Prediction Made That if Clause Is Left Out Bill Will Fail.

MEASURE ENEMIES HAVE SAFE MARGIN

Johnson, of California, Stirs Session by Argument Against Party.

By CARLISLE BARGERON.

President Hoover was gain defeated by the Senate yesterday when it voted, 47 to 42, for the Simmons resolution which takes the flexible tariff power away from him and returns it to Congress.

The administration forces went down to a hard defeat at the hands of the Democratic-Progressive coalition, the Democrats losing only four of their number. Immediately the vote had been taken there was dire predictions that it ment the death of the tariff bill.

There were predictions that unless the flexible power is returned to the President, the bill will never get away from Congress in the first place and in the event it should the President would veto it.

Final Passage Is Endangered.

That the President would do this is decidedly open to doubt. There is the serious possibility, however, that the Senate and House may become so deadlocked over the question as to endanger the final passage of the bill.

The margin by which the coalition won suggests that in the event the House does disagree the Senate is prepared to hold out until doomsday. It is not believed that more than two of the 47 who voted for the change yesterday will ever agree to switch their votes.

The issue was plainly one of whether the President or the Congress shall be the power to wield the flexible tariff. Under the Simmons resolution the Tariff Commission remains as at present constituted. It may institute investigations of its own or at the instance of a petitioner. Then it would report simultaneously to Congress and the President and the latter could make any recommendation he desired.

Would Limit Schedule Discussion.

But Congress would act on the report, either by lowering the rate on the commodity in question. The Simmons' resolution also embodies the suggestions of Senator Norris, of Nebraska, whereby Congress is prevented from taking up any schedule other than that reported upon by the commission. This is to prevent the opening up of the entire tariff on every occasion that the commission reports.

One important change in the existing tariff order, besides that involving the power of the President and Congress, is the removal of the 50 per cent range by which the President has been empowered to raise or lower rates. There is no limit in which Congress may act and, furthermore, it may, on the report of the commission, remove commodities from the free to the dutiable list.

There are known to be some administration senators who favor the change, but they voted with the President yesterday and, after his public appeal on the subject a few days ago, turned heaven and earth to win him a victory. Just how hard they worked may be understood from the fact that they succeeded in bringing Senator Steck (Democrat), Iowa, over to their side.

Vote Shows Some Surprises.

The vote follows:

Democrats voting for the Simmons resolution:

Ashurst, Barkley, Black, Blease, Bratton, Brockway, Caraway, Connally, Copeland, Dill, George, Glass, Harris, Harrison, Heyden, Heflin, Kendrick, King, McKellar, Overman, Pittman, Robinson, of Arkansas; Sheppard, Simmons, Smith, Stephens, Swanson, Thomas, of Oklahoma; Trammell, Tydings, Wagner, Walsh, of Massachusetts, Walsh, of Montana, and Wheeler—34.

Republicans—Blaine, Borah, Bookhart, Cutting, Frazier, Howell, Johnson, La Follette, McMaster, Norris, Nye, Pine and Schall—13.

Opposition Vote Listed.

Against the Simmons resolution:

Republicans—Allen, Bingham, Capper, Couzens, Dale, Deneen, Edge, Fess, Gillet, Glenn, Goff, Goldsborough, Gould, Greene, Hale, Hastings, Hatfield, Hebert, Jones, Kean, Keyes, McNary, Metcalf, Moses, Patterson, Phipps, Reed, Robinson, of Indiana; Shortridge, Smoot, Steiwer, Thomas, of Idaho; Townsend, Van-

P. H. Callahan Heads Central Dry Agency

Louisville Man Will Direct Effort to Coordinate Prohibition Organizations and Resist All Attacks Upon Eighteenth Amendment.

(Associated Press.)

An active, unified effort for the enforcement and defense of prohibition was forecast yesterday by the formation here of a new central agency to coordinate the activities of the country's many prohibition organizations.

The new organization, formed at a conference of a score of prohibition leaders, will be known as the Cooperative Committee for Prohibition Enforcement. It expects to have the support of all of the leading prohibition agencies, including the Antisaloon League. Its headquarters will be in Washington, and its chairman is Patrick H. Callahan, Louisville, Ky., business man, who has long been prominent nationally as an official of the Association of Catholics Favoring Prohibition.

As outlined by those who organized it, the program of the new committee is to represent in Washington all of the prohibition agencies and to be prepared to meet any attack either upon the prohibition laws or their enforcemnt. To that end it is planned to lay a scientific groundwork for a campaign of education as to the benefits of prohibition. An outstanding economist will be asked to report the effect of the dry laws on industry. Another investigation will be made into the effect on health and hygiene, and a third will compile data on the relation of liquor to crime. The detailed plans will be announced shortly by Callahan.

Those attending yesterday's conference included Bishop Thomas Nicholson, president, and F. Scott McBride, general superintendent of the Antisaloon League; Mrs. Ella A. Boole, president of the Women's

THREE KILLED, 16 INJURED IN STRIKE RIOTS

Six of Wounded Thought Dying as State Troops Rush to Marion.

FIRING OF FIRST SHOT MATTER OF DISPUTE

Pistol Blazes in the Midst of Fist Fighting at Picket Line.

RECENT PACT GOES DISREGARDED, CLAIM

Mill Managers Deny They Have Failed to Live Up to Agreement.

Marion, N. C., Oct. 2 (A.P.).—Three dead, six believed dying, and ten others in the hospital here today brought State troops to Marion for the second time in two months to put a stop to textile strike troubles.

Two men were killed outright and another died several hours later as a result of riot at the gates of the Marion Manufacturing Co. cotton mill in East Marion this morning. Who fired the first shot is a question of dispute, leaders of the United Textile Workers Union asserting that it was fired by sheriff's forces and the sheriff himself asserting that a striker fired first, after officers had used tear gas guns.

The mill was the scene of a strike of nine weeks' duration, which was ended on September 11, in an agreement whereby the East Marion mill and the Clinchfield Manufacturing Co.'s mill were reopened on a non-union basis. Members of the textile union recently claimed that the agreement was not being lived up to by the East Marion mill management and at 1 o'clock this morning several score of workers of the night shift walked out in an unexpected strike.

Picket Line Forms.

A picket line was formed outside the gate. At 6:30 o'clock, when the shifts change, about 100 persons were at the gate. Sheriff O. F. Adkins of McDowell County and a number of deputies had been called.

A fight started. Sheriff Adkins, in a statement said that John Jonas, a striker, who died at noon today of wounds, struck him on the head. The sheriff attempted to arrest Jonas. While this was going on, the sheriff said, someone fired a shot at the officers and killed Sam Vickers, a union member. Shooting became general and the sheriff said more than 100 shots were fired.

Union officials charged that the first shot was fired by an officer. William Ross, publicity manager for the Southern division of the United Textile Workers of America, gave out a statement this afternoon saying that warrants were being prepared charging Sheriff Adkins and Deputy Sheriffs B. L. Bobbins, James Owens, T. M. Green, W. G. Biggerstaff and Alley Stepp with murder. Other warrants, he said, would charge Adam Hunt, superintendent of the mill and John Snoddy, an overseer, with complicity.

Two Killed Instantly.

Sam Vickers and Randolph Hall, both strikers, were almost instantly killed by pistol bullets at the mill gate. John Jonas, who Sheriff Adkins charges started the trouble, died at noon.

The following critically wounded are in the Marion General Hospital:

T. L. Carver, 54, striker, shot in neck. James Roberts, 18, shot through lung. Robert (correct) Minish, 41, shot in hand. Luther Bryson, 22, shot in abdomen and chest. W. S. Black, 40, shot in abdomen and shoulder. George McCombs, 36, shot in neck and arm.

Others in hospital with leg and arm wounds: A. M. Koon, 28; L. S. Long, 37; Kermit Fenders, 18; Elsie Ballard, 18, and W. M. Sparks, 25.

R. W. Baldwin, president of the Marion Manufacturing Co., late today issued a statement asserting that claims of the union leaders that he had failed to live up to the agreement ending the strike were without foundation. He declared that all agreements had been lived up to.

Sheriff Adkins, telling of the shooting this afternoon, said that the first shot was fired from the crowd of strikers in the picket line and that

DAY, SINCLAIR AID, LEAVES JAIL TODAY

IS GIVEN 20 DAYS OFF

(Associated Press.)

Jail doors ceasge to bar the freedom of Henry Mason Day—assistant to Harry F. Sinclair in widespread oil activities—last night at 12 o'clock. As midnight struck, the oil man, who was sentenced along with his employer to four months in prison for his part in the jury shadowing which caused the Fall-Sinclair mistrial—completed his sentence and today he will walk the streets a free man for the first time since June 24. Five days off of each month for good behavior brought this period of incarceration to an end, more than a month before that of his wealthy companion, who was sentenced to six months and will complete his sentence November 22.

Day apparently had his plans for leaving jail made early yesterday, but they were carefully guarded. Replying to questions as to how soon he would depart after the expiration of his sentence, he said it would be some time after midnight, "if I do not have to run a barrage of cameras."

The entrance of Sinclair and Day into the District Jail was shrouded in the same secrecy, newspapermen who awaited their coming knowing little of their whereabouts until they appeared at the institution—the former in a large limousine accompanied by his brother and an attorney, and Day alone in a taxicab.

Day has been serving as assistant storekeeper in the comissary department of the jail.

Some time ago he made plans for a trip to Europe soon after he regained his freedom.

COPELAND TO MAKE GALLINGER INQUIRY

Reopening of Investigation Is Imminent; Senator to Inspect Hospital.

EXPOSE GLOSSED OVER

The Gallinger Hospital expose, brought about by The Post, came to the forefront again yesterday with the return to Washington of Senator Royal S. Copeland (Democrat), of New York.

Copeland, who was noted as a physician before he entered politics, declared upon his return from Europe that he is interester in the Gallinger investigation and announced that he soon will make a personal tour of inspection of the institution.

If a senatorial investigation should be made it would be conducted by Senator Copeland, as he is chairman of the hospital subcommittee of the Senate District committee.

Senator Arthur Capper (Republican), of Kansas, chairman of the full committee, announced yesterday that he would confer with Copeland and turn over to him all data he has bearing on the investigation.

While Senator Copeland was abroad, Duncan Price, of The Post editorial staff, entered Gallinger as a patient by feigning amnesia. He afterwards wrote a series of articles, in which he described conditions at the hospital as disgraceful.

As a result of this expose, scores of former patients at Gallinger and friends of former patients came forward with stories of poor treatment and mistreatment at the institution.

Finally, the Board of Public Welfare ordered an investigation into the charges. To the amazement of those most interested, however, the investigation was conducted by a committee made up of members of the welfare board itself. So it was not surprising that the findings of

Park View School Rebels Fight on After Reverse

Board of Education Sustains Order that Striking Pupils Attend Monroe but Will Make Complete Investigation—Platoon System Popularly Established.

Although the Monroe Parent-Teacher Association won the first tilt with the Park View Citizens Association yesterday in the fight which grew out of the strike of 57 Park View pupils who were ordered to attend Monroe, the rebel group of parents and citizens was far from defeated last night. In fact, the only point definitely established at the Board of Education hearing in the Franklin building was the popularity of the platoon school system with its patrons.

Two hours were devoted to the hearing of testimony and argument on the issue yesterday afternoon, but so many questions had been raised and such a difference of opinion had been revealed by members of the board by 6 o'clock that it was decided to postpone a decision until the matter could be more thoroughly investigated. Meanwhile, however, the school administration is to be upheld, the board declared by a vote of 6 to 2.

The clash within the board became obvious when the proposal of Dr. J. Hayden Johnson, colored member, that the situation remain status quo was accepted over the motion of Henry J. Gilligan that the striking pupils be permitted to return to Park View until the board announced its decision.

Unless the board holds a special meeting before October 16, the 40 pupils who are still on a strike will continue their strike without being marked absent at either school, it was indicated after the meeting, as R. L. Haycock, assistant superintendent in charge of elementary schools, declared that he would not order the truancy law enforced or the children marked absent unless told to do so by further orders from the board. FEDERAL INQUIRY IS ORDERED BY MITCHELL TO PENETRATE M'PHERSON MURDER MYSTERY

Department of Justice Will Begin Work on Case Today.

CRIMINAL ASPECTS ONLY TO BE STUDIED

ENTIRE GRAND JURY IS ASKED TO TESTIFY

Inspector Shelby Is Deeply Moved as He Says Farewell to Detective Command.

The Department of Justice will start an exhaustive investigation into the mystery surrounding the death of Virginia McPherson, the pretty young nurse whose husband, Robert A. McPherson, jr., has been indicted for her murder, it was learned last night.

This investigation comes as the result of a long conference yesterday at which District Attorney Leo A. Rover, Attorney General William D. Mitchell, officials of the Department of Justice and others discussed the case in detail. None of those present would discuss the matter yesterday.

Solution of the perplexing problems arising from the finding of the girl, seminude and strangled to death by the cord of her pajamas, on the floor of her apartment in the Park Lane on the morning of September 14, will be the sole purpose of this new investigation.

It is not expected that the Department of Justice will concern itself with the charges of malfeasance brought against officials of the Police Department by the grand jury, which charges are already under investigation by a special committee appointed by the District Commissioners Tuesday.

Seeks Murderer Only.

Instead, the Department of Justice, it is understood, will confine itself to an attempt to find the murderer of Virginia McPherson and bring him to trial, whether this murderer proves to be McPherson, now under indictment, or any one of a number of other possible suspects. There is also the possibility that the murder theory may yet revert to the original theory of suicide, which has been so strongly disputed under circumstances which led to the grand jury investigation.

Corporation Counsel William W. Bride and Maj. D. A. Davison, Assistant Engineer Commissioner, appointed by the District Commissioners as the committee to investigate charges of laxity and inefficiency against Inspector William S. Shelby, reau, and Lieut. Edward Kelly, ousted deposed chief of the Detective Bured chief of the homicide squad, plunged into action yesterday.

Their first move was to confer with District Attorney Rover, who provided them with a list of the grand jurors who had conducted the inquiry resulting in the indictment of McPherson and also a list of the 70 witnesses who testified before the grand jury.

Following this conference and a subsequent interview with Maj. Henry G. Pratt, superintendent of police, Bride and Maj. Davison addressed letters to the 23 members of the grand jury asking them to appear before the committee and present any evidence or facts they may have regarding the conduct of Shelby and Kelly in their handling of the McPherson case. Already more than 100 witnesses are scheduled to be heard.

Chance and Allen Called.

First to be called is Merritt O. Chance, foreman of the grand jury, who is to appear before the committee at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning. He will be followed at 11 o'clock by Robert J. Allen, the deposed police-

THREE ARE KILLED AS BUOY EXPLODES

Four Seamen on Lighthouse Tender Are Injured by Flying Steel.

ONE BODY IS NOT FOUND

Bayfield, Wis., Oct. 2 (A.P.).—Three officers of the lighthouse tender Marigold were instantly killed in an explosion on the White Bay buoy late today and four able seamen aboard the tender, which was moored several yards away, were injured. The dead:

Louis de Vrendt, first officer, Jacksonville, Mich.; John Eipneiwski, second officer, Sault Ste. Marie, Mich.; Rudolph Potestio, quartermaster, Detroit, Mich.

The injured:

Leonard Sinda, Harbor Beach, Mich.; John Johnson, Detroit; Sophus Stora, Detroit; Malcolm McRea, Duluth.

The explosion occurred as the three officers were preparing the buoy for recartridging. De Vrendt and Potestio were working on the outside while Eipneiwski was inside the cylinder cleaning it in preparation for refueling. Without warning the buoy was rent by a terrific explosion which hurled the bodies of Potestio and De Vrendt into the air. De Vrendt's body was thrown across the vessel, where it fell into the lake and was not recovered. Potestio's body was hurled 25 feet into the air, where it struck a spar of the Marigold and fell to the deck. The man was rushed to Bayfield, three miles away, but died en route. Nothing was seen of Eipneiwski's body and it is believed it was blown to pieces.

While no serious damage resulted to the Marigold, the four seamen on deck were struck by flying steel from the buoy which was completely demolished. No reason was advanced tonight for the explosion by Capt. A. Gustafson, of the tender.

The Marigold, a vessel in the fleet of the U. S. Lighthouse Service, was engaged in inspecting and recartridging lake buoys in preparation for the fall shipping season. It recently had called in Duluth and was working its way back to its berth in Detroit.

British Radios to Catch Premier's New York Talk

Address at Foreign Relations Council Dinner to Be Rebroadcast From England October 11; National Hook-up Here Planned.

(Associated Press.)

A radio broadcast by Prime Minister MacDonald, to be transmitted to the British Isle and rebroadcast there will feature the British premier's trip after leaving Washington for Canada.

The address will be made at a dinner in his honor by the Council of Foreign Relations October 11 at the Ritz-Carlton Hotel at New York City. The national hook-up in the United States for the broadcast includes the 71 stations of the National Broadcasting Co. The British statesman will begin his speech at 9 p. m. Elihu Root will make the introductory remarks on the radio.

The British Embassy last night made public a partial program for the prime minister's trip after leaving the Capital early Thursday, October 16. That same day he and his party will travel to Philadelphia, where the prime minister will give a luncheon in honor of the physicians whom he credits with saving his life during his illnes sthere in 1927.

The party will arrive in New York the same evening. The New York program, which covers three days, includes a luncheon on Friday, the 11th in honor of the prime minister under the auspices of a number of combined British and Anglo-American societies in New York.

The luncheon will be held in the ballroom of the Hotel Astor. During the afternoon the prime minister will attend a reception by the Foreign Policy Association in the grand ballroom of the Hotel Commodore. The only other official engagement will be the dinner to be held in the evening, at which the prime minister will take the radio broadcast.

During the New York visit the prime minister will have his first free time for private engagements.

man whose contradiction of the suicide theory by Shelby and Kelly was responsible for the grand jury's action. Following these at intervals of 30 minutes, the committee will hear the remaining members of the grand jury.

This testimony is expected to be completed by next Tuesday, when Bride and Maj. Davison will be in a position to say what witnesses it wishes to hear next.

It is planned that immediately following the testimony of grand jury members, the committee will hear the 70 witnesses who testified before the jury at its investigation which led to an indictment for murder being brought against Robert A. McPherson, jr., in connection with the death on September 14 of his pretty young wife, Virginia, who was found strangled to death with her pajama cord in her Park Lane apartment.

Rover Promises Cooperation.

Bride and Maj. Davison conferred at length yesterday with District Attorney Lee A. Rover, who offered full cooperation of his office and turned over to the committee the names of members of the grand jury as well as of all of the witnesses who have appeared before that body in the McPherson case.

Complete stenographic reports will be made of all testimony taken by the committee, and all witnesses will be asked to testify under oath, although Bride pointed out that the committee has no power to compel witnesses to take any oath, nor has it, further, any power to compel any witness to appear or testify.

Any person who has any facts pertinent to the McPherson case having a bearing on the charges of malfeasance brought against Inspector William S. Shelby, deposed chief of the detective bureau, or Lieut. Edward Kelly, ousted head of the homicide squad, is requested by the committee to appear and estify, either alone or accompanied by an attorney.

Shelby and Kelly Invited.

Shelby and Kelly, other members of the Police Department, private citizens, members of Congress and all others who may care to present any fact, will be given full opportunity to be heard in secret session, Bride and Davison said, with the assurance that there will be no time limit set which might bar the presentation of pertinent evidence.

No one will be present at the session except Bride and Davison and the particular witness testifying at the moment, with the exception that any witness desiring to have his or her attorney present may do so. The press will be barred and no statements are to be given out for publication until the committee has completed its work.

This course was decided upon by the District Commissioners largely because of the fact that a charge of murder is involved and in view of the seriousness of the case it was deemed advisable to guard against possible misuse of any information which might be brought out in the committee's hearings.

The day started most dramatically for the Police Department, as Shelby and Kelly bade farewell to their former colleagues in the Detective Bureau and were replaced, respectively, by Capt. Walter Emmerson as acting chief of the bureau and Lieut. Joseph C. Morgan as head of the homicide squad.

Inspector Is Deeply Affected.

Solemnly, yet without hysterics, the members of the Detective Bureau assembled in the squad room in the District Building for roll call yesterday morning.

Obviously struggling to control a strong emotion, Shelby addressed the detectives, recalling his long friendship and collaboration with many of them, and dwelling with feeling upon the way in which all of them had worked with him.

"I have known many of you since your appointment to the force," he said, "and some of you preceded me, but none of you can recall any dishonest or criminal act by me during my 35 years on the force.

"Now there are those who are recenily trying to tear down what I have built up carefully during those 35 years. I ask that all of you suspend judgment until the entire tragedy of the past few days is aired in open court.

"My conscience is clear, and I know that when a fair trial is held, I will be entirely and completely vindicated."

Here the inspector paused briefly, his hands gripped in front of him, as the assembled detectives waited in silence.

"The unfortunate action of the grand jury has almost destroyed my home," he continued, visibly upset. "It has almost broken the heart of the one I love best.

"My emotions overcome me at this time. I ask you men to give my successor the same fine help and loyalty you gave to me. I had great things planned for this bureau, but they have been wiped out. Regardless of the outcome, or what the future may hold, I know that I will always hold the confidence of my associates. God bless you."

At that point, Inspector Shelby snatched off his glasses and brushed at his eyes with the back of his hand. He choked back a sob, and turned to flee from the room, and into the office which he had occupied.

Kelly, who stood beside Shelby during the latter's farewell to his men, apparently was unaffected by the shift in his duties.

"I have nothing to say," he told reporters. "I feel fine. Now I'm going to get to work on my new job."

Morgan at Work on Case.

Lieut. Joseph C. Morgan, who yesterday succeeded Kelly as head of the homicide squad, spent the day familiarizing himself with the details of his new job and particularly with reviewing the available facts in the McPherson case.

Morgan is at work on a number of what appears to be loose ends and indeterminate details in the McPherson case and expects to devote his time today largely to sorting out the mass of circumstances presenting themselves and to checking up on various points in the case which at present are not entirely clear to him.

Certain of these threads which Morgan is now seeking to work into a completed skein might, if surface indications should be found to conceal new facts hidden underneath, cast the spotlight of suspicion full upon any one of two new suspects who heretofore have appeared in the case only very casually. On the other hand, certain of these loose ends might lead to a tightening of the case against McPherson, or, in a third possibility, they may lead to nothing at all.

Morgan, who was to have conferred with Rover yesterday, did not keep this appointment, nor is he expected to extend his activities or liaisons outside his own particular field for the present, or until such time as he may be called into the picture to cooperate with the Department of Justice in its investigation.

Allen's Future Debated.

What to do about Allen was a problem that occupied the Commissioners yesterday.

The suspended policeman is now awaiting trial on a charge of failing to patrol his beat, having been found in a parked automobile in an alley in the rear of the nurses' home at Emergency Hospital, Allen's contention being that he was there hiding to watch for thieves reported to be robbing automobiles.

This trial, scheduled to have been held today by the Police Trial Board, has been, as was announced exclusively in The Post yesterday, postponed indefinitely.

Allen's suspension did not develop out of this charge, however, but resulted from an accusation made by Shelby that the policeman had suppressed vital evidence which he should have revealed to his superiors in the McPherson case. However, no formal charges have ever been filed in this matter, nor will there be any charge preferred until after Bride and Major Davison complete their report.

This was as near as the Commissioners came to any decision regarding Allen in a conference which they held yesterday. In effect it means that the Commissioners reached no decision, but decided for the present to let the matter continue as it has been for the past several days.

Maj. Henry G. Pratt, superintendent of police, was entirely uncommunicative regarding the McPherson case in general and Allen in particular. So far as Maj. Pratt is concerned, Allen's status continues unchanged. The policeman is neither reinstated nor the recipient of the detective sergeancy promised him by Shelby if he could prove Virginia McPherson had been murdered.

LEAHY INTERVIEWS M'PHERSON IN CELL

Lawyer, Paying First Visit to Accused Youth, Claps Ban on Reporters.

CHECK THROAT AILMENT

Robert McPherson's second day in jail awaiting trial on a charge of killing his wife drew to a close yesterday when the 21-year-old bank clerk met for the first time the man who will defend him in court.

William E. Leahy, the lawyer who has been retained by the parents of the accused youth, arrived at the jail about 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon and spent about half an hour with his young client.

McPherson had a few other visitors during the day. They were the boys with whom he has worked and played and gone to school. McPherson was reported to be considerably cheered by the talks with his visitors. His parents have not yet seen him in jail. It is understood that the mother does not feel, at the present time, that she can bear the shock of seeing her son behind the bars of a cell. The father went to the jail on the first day of his son's incarceration, inquired about the youth, left some messages and departed, it was reported.

McPherson's attack of bronchitis, from which he has been suffering since Saturday, is being held in check, it was learned, and there has been no need to place him under the regular care of a physician. The youth is still whiling away most of the time by playing chess with his Dutch cellmate, reading and looking out of the window to the buildings of Gallinger Hospital, where he first met his wife. He has been instructed by his lawyer not to speak to newspaper men.

Leahy has already started preparations for the defense. The lawyer explained that he has not been able to give the case the attention it deserves yet because of the Fall-Doheny case now in progress in the District Supreme Court and with which he is connected as a member of the defense counsel. Mr. Leahy said that he is not prepared at the present time to comment.

GRAND JUROR 'FIRED' FROM POLICE FORCE

Shelby Admits Responsibility for Charges Dismissing William B. Hubbs.

SEES HIM UNFRIENDLY

A member of the late District grand jury, which reported the sensational first-degree murder indictment against Robert A. McPherson, jr., and denounced Inspector William S. Shelby and Lieut. Edward J. Kelly, was dismissed from the Police Department nine years ago. Inspector Shelby stated yesterday that he was confident that this member of the grand jury had anything but kindly feelings toward him, because of his discharge.

The man in question is William B. Hubbs, 38 years old, a chauffeur, of 219 H street northwest. He was the clerk of the recently discharged jury.

"I remember this man Hubbs very distinctly," Shelby said. "He was on the police force at one time and I was more or less responsible for bringing charges against him which caused his discharge. I am positive that he did not have any kindly feelings toward me."

A search of the police records revealed that William B. Hubbs was born in New York City on April 20, 1891. He served in the United States Army, and on September 16, 1915, was appointed to the police force.

On June 19, 1920, he was haled before the Police Trial Board on a charge of conduct prejudicial to the good order and discipline of the department.

The charges, it was reported, grew out of the beating up of a taxicab driver in the Southwest section by Hubbs, which the trial board found was unwarranted. On July 28, 1920, Hubbs was ordered dismissed from the department.

Hubbs is a widower. His late wife, Mrs. Irene Hubbs, served as a policewoman in the Policewoman's Bureau.

Whether or not the fact that Hubbs served on the grand jury will effect the indictment and report against Shelby and Kelly is problematical. A number of attorneys, consulted yesterday, declared they did not think that the fact of Hubbs' presence on the grand jury would have much effect on the indictment but that it might serve as a basis for attack upon the report against Shelby and Kelly.

GIBSON ADVISES POLICE SHAKE-UP

"complete reorganization" of the Police Department here is necessary.

Gibson is chairman of the House subcommittee that spent two years investigating the local government in general and the Police Department in particular.

The subcommittee was on the verge of making its report several times, but always somethihng happened to cause a delay or to alter the conclusions that had been reached. The last thing to hold up a report was the scandal growing out of charges made against former Capt. Guy Burlingame by Helen Bialock, a palmist.

Finally, Gibson decided that he would make a report after police officials had submitted their recommendations for improvement of the force.

May Change Views Again.

But now it appears that the McPherson case may again alter whatever conclusions have been reached by Gibson and his colleagues.

"Police developments," Gibson said yesterday in Brattleboro, "emphasize my position that a complete reorganization along up-to-date lines is necessary. No makeshift suggestions should be encouraged. The best crime experts, including Vollmer, should be employed to put the force on an efficient basis and make that of the Nation's Capital a model for the country.

"Our specific recommendations have been delayed by failure to receive department's suggestions. Responsible officials of the District should stand four-square, without quibbling, for such a reorganization as will make the department meet present-day needs. That is what is expected of them by the people of the District and the Nation."

Gibson believes that a survey of police departments, both in this country and abroad, should be made, and the best features of each adopted for the local department.

Holaday Making Survey.

Representative Holaday (Republican), of Illinois, a member of the appropriations subcommittee that drafts the local appropriation bill, said last night that he, too, is in favor of giving the District a model police force, and said that he is now engaged in making a study of police departments elsewhere.

Holaday also advocated the establishment of a new unit in the department, a scientific unit that would be a sort of supplement to the detective bureau.

The nucleus of the unit would be the fingerprint expert. Then there would be a chemist and whatever other experts are found valuable in modern criminal hunting. With such a unit in the department, Holaday feels, the fiasco that grew out of the McPherson investigation would have been impossible.

Clothes Theft First Job For Kelly's Successor

The first assignment of Lieut. Joseph Morgan as commander of the homicide and safe squad was the robbery of a quantity of clothing from the Fashion Shop at Ninth and E streets northwest yesterday.

Thieves entered the shop through a skylight and made an unsuccessful attempt to open the office safe. Failing this, the thieves took clothing, the amount of which was being checked over by store officials yesterday.

The robbery was discovered by Nat Schonberg, manager of the shop, at 8:30 o'clock, when the place was opened for business. Lieut Morgan took charge of the homicide and safe squad yesterday, succeeding Lieut. Edward J. Kelly, who took Morgan's old post as civil service and complaint officer.

SAMPSON ACQUITTED IN TEXTBOOK TRIAL

Kentucky Governor and 32 Others Vindicated by Order of Court.

STATE WILL APPEAL CASE

Frankfort, Ky., Oct. 2 (A.P.).—The first trial resulting from the recent indictment of Gov. Sampson, 7 members of his textbook committee and 25 publishers came to an abrupt end today with an instructed verdict for acquittal of the governor.

Wade Hampton Whitley, Commonwealth's attorney, moved for a new trial and, when this was overruled, indicated he would take the case to the State Court of Appeals. Its decision is expected to determine action in the other cases.

It was charged in the indictments that the governor, who is ex-officio chairman of the commission, and seven of the members of that board, had illegally received textbooks as gifts from companies bidding for Kentucky contracts. In its final report the Franklin County grand jury said the textbooks had been sold for various sums, ranging from $150 to $850. However, it added that Gov. Sampson did not sell his, but gave them to his secretary, Miss Lora Smith, who sold them.

The jury was chosen during the morning session of court today and after five State's witnesses had been heard this afternoon the defense moved for peremptory instructions for acquittal. Judge Ben G. Williams hardly had granted it when a burst of applause came from the governor's friends in the crowded courtroom. In his instructions Judge Williams said:

"You all know the timidity with which I take a case away from the jury. I am reluctant to do it, I have great respect for the findings of my juries. I am not inclined to think the Commonwealth proved a crime on the part of Gov. Sampson. Those publishing companies sent the textbooks as samples and they were not accepted as gifts. The resolution required that such samples be sent. It is a waste of time to go further into this case. I therefore direct the jury to return a verdict for the defendant, the verdict being not guilty."

A burst of applause broke out in the crowded court room as Judge Williams concluded his instructions.

Woman Protests Dismissal of Case

Complaint Likely in Case Involving McPherson Witness.

Action of District Attorney Hobart Newman yesterday in nolle prossing petit larceny charges preferred by Mrs. Martha Cake, of the Cambridge Apartments, 921 Nineteenth street northwest, against Mrs. Anna Heavrin, of the Park Lane Apartments, will form the basis of a complaint against that official to be made to District Attorney Leo A. Rover by Mrs. Cake today.

Mrs. Cake announced last night that she objected to Newman's dismissal of the case without consulting her, after she had waited at length in a court room upon information that a jury trial would be held. An explanation was made that the case was nolle prossed because Mrs. Cake had failed to apper.

The charges were made early this year by Mrs. Cake in alleging that Mrs. Heavrin, formerly of the cambridge Apartments and a witness in the recent McPherson case, stole eight electric light bulbs and three keys when she moved from her former residence. On February 14 Mrs. Heavrin demanded a jury trial and was released on $100 bond.

Siberia Searches For Costes Plane

Nothing Heard of Aviator Since He Was Sighted Near Lake Baikal.

Irktusk, Siberia, Oct. 2 (A.P.).—For three days all eyes in Siberia have watched both overland and in the sky for Dieudonne Coste and Jacques Maurice Bellonte, of whom nothing has been heard since their plane was believed to have been sighted over the town of Ust-Bargusinsk, on the eastern shores of Lake Baikal, last Sunday.

Up to 11 o'clock tonight no word came from any points along the route the French aviators had mapped out for their atempt to establish a new distance record before they left Le Bourget, France, alst Friday morning. Intense anxiety now prevails here over their safety.

It was feared that if they were forced down in the section where they were last reported they may have lost their way in the thick forest bordering Lake Baikal, where the night temperatures are very low at this season.

TWO BOMBINGS STIR CHICAGO'S WEALTHY

Lake Shore Athletic Club and Broker's Apartment Are "Pineapple" Targets.

MANY HURLED FROM BEDS

Chicago, Oct. 2 (A.P.).—The bombing syndicate, whose outlaw trade has been the weapon chiefly of the rival beer barons and the small trade racketeers, startled Chicago today with two new outrages.

The first was the bombing last night of the Lake Shore Athletic Club, exclusive new establishment fronting Lake Michigan in the "Streeterville" gold coast. The second, early today, was the explosion of a dynamite bomb in the home of C. H. McCarty, wealthy member of the brokerage firm of Stein, Alstrin & Co., and father of Austin "Five Yards" McCarty, former captain of the University of Chicago Football Team.

Neither bomb has been explained. A minimum of damage was done at the athletic club, where the explosive was tossed through a window by the occupants of a passing automobile, cracking the walls of the swimming pool and shattering windows. The only theory suggested was that ill feeling had been engendered by competition for the cab stand privilege at the club, recently awarded to a large taxi concern.

The explosion in the McCarty home, which was bombing number 91 for Chicago this year, wrecked the interior of the apartment and caused $2,500 damage. McCarty and his son and five families in neighboring apartments were hurled from their beds, but none was hurt.

Unquestionably, police said, the bomb was meant for the McCartys. It was laid against their apartment door. The opposite apartment was vacant. A few minutes after the blast the telephone rang.

"Is Mr. McCarty there?" a voice asked.

"McCarty speaking," was the answer.

The caller dropped his receiver. Police believe the bomber telephoned to learn whether McCarty was at home and alive.

Neither McCarty nor his son, who is now sales manager of the Commercial Credit & Trust Co., could offer an explanation of the attack.

Oldest Residents Vie in Discussions

Association Members Talk of Billy Patterson at Meeting.

"Who Struck Billy Patterson?" and kindred subjects were debated last night by members of the Association of Oldest Inhabitants of the District of Columbia, meeting in the Union Engine House, Nineteenth and H streets northwest, when Fred G. Coldren, park and planning department, scheduled speaker of the evening, failed to put in an appearance.

Lee D. Latimer brought up this always interesting topic and a general discussion marked the meeting. There was also a debate following the reading of a paper by Washington Topham on the Winder Building at Seventeenth and F streets northwest. Albion K. Parris and Capt. Edward O'Connor, of Engine Company No. 1, insisted the building was originally a hotel, while Topham held his records showed no account of the building being used for that purpose.

Fred A. Emery was elected vice president to succeed the late Charles H. Venable, while J. Eliot Wright, recording secretary was deputized as assistant treasurer to act during the illness of Treasurer Dr. Benjamin W. Summy, who is ill in Walter Reed Hospital. New members elected were Philip G. Affleck, J. W. Holcombe, William F. Dismer, John Boyle and W. H. Robinson.

Rain Fails to Halt Night School Group

Record Registration Held Probable as Classes Are Filled.

Despite the rain and cold Tuesday night, registration at the District night schools reached almost 2,000 in the white schools and 1,396 in the colored institutions, it was revealed yesterday by W. B. Patterson, assistant superintendent in charge of night schools. These figures were expected to be doubled by the enrollment last night.

Classes began last night in all of the night schools, despite the continuation of registration. Business High School had the highest enrollment among the white institutions with 677, while McKinley came next with 587. Both of these, however, are anticipating ultimate attendance marks of fram 1,800 to 2,000 each.

Shaw High School led the colored schools with 455 students on the opening night, while Armstrong came next with 347. Garnet-Patterson had the highest elementary registration with 340 pupils.

Police Shifts Fail To Lower Jail List

Head of Penal Institutions Says McPherson Case Is No Factor.

The police shake-up in connection with the sensational McPherson case has not decreased the number of prisoners in District penal institutions.

Capt. M. M. Barnard, superintendent of local penal institutions, declared yesterday that 815 prisoners were at the Occoquan workhouse last Friday, the largest number in the history of the institution.

Since that time, Capt. Barnard said, the number of prisoners have been running close to the 800 mark. He pointed out that since the investigation into the McPherson case and into the conduct of the police that the number of prisoners has shown an increase.

Mrs. Hoover Expected To Name Plane Today

Mrs. Herbert Hoover is scheduled to christen the giant transport air liner Buenos Aires at the Anacostia Naval Air Station at 3:30 o'clock this afternoon in the presence of members of the Diplomatic Corps.

The ceremony was postponed from yesterday owing to the weather. Fog, rain and low-hanging clouds forbade the plane's hop to Washington from New York. It is to be put in operation immediately after its christening on the New York, Rio and Buenos Aires route.

HEARST DISCLAIMS SHEARER LOBBYING

Propagandist Fired as Soon as Shipbuilder Link Was Known, Publisher Says.

HIRED AS WRITER ONLY

Los Angeles, Calif., Oct. 2 (A.P.).—William Randolph Hearst, newspaper publisher, issued a statement tonight in which he said William B. Shearer, lobbyist for American shipbuilders at the unsuccessful Geneva Arms Conference, was hired by the editor of the New York American to write articles on the League of Nations and the world court and that Shearer was discharged when it was learned he had been in the pay of shipbuilders.

"The editor had no knowledge that Mr. Shearer was, or even had been, in the pay of shipbuilding corporations—no more knowledge of this fact than Congress had at the time," Hearst said.

The publisher explained the editor of his New York paper had hired many men to do work similar to that assigned Shearer in a campaign to organize whatever opposition there might be against participation by the United States in the world court and League of Nations.

"A newspaper has no use for lobbyists. The methods of newspaper procedure are obviously diametrically opposed to lobbying. There is no secret in journalistic processes. In fact, what is desired is not secrecy but the utmost publicity," Mr. Hearst said.

The publisher said his papers opposed lobbying, and based editorial campaigns on a right extended by the constitution which guaranteed free speech "to the press and the citizenship."

A copy of the letter by Col. Frank Knox, general manager of the Hearst newspapers, to Shearer, written September 11, 1929, was made public. It informed Shearer no further articles would be accepted from him, because of his connections with the shipbuilders just disclosed.

"We would have been relieved of the necessity of taking this step if you had been frank enough to inform us in the beginning of your connection with shipbuilding firms," Knox's letter said.

POLICE WAGE FIGHT ON DANISH LOTTERY

Solicitors Active Here With Pamphlet Distribution to Be Trailed.

OLD GROUP SUSPECTED

Following the receipt yesterday morning of information showing the reappearance heer of the famed Danish Lottery, members of the detective Bureau moved with dispatch to carroll two men alleged to have distributed literature to several large apartment houses in the northwest section of the city.

Prospective customers are said to have been given preliminary pamphlets picturing the large returns to be made from a lucky play of the lottery, and one of these solicited prospects turned the whole thing over to the detective bureau.

The lottery, according to the circulars, is known as the Danish Colonial (Class) Lottery, and purports to give the method of securing tickets. Two "guarantee" certificates have been given most of those aprpoached.

A booklet from the John Davis Co., of Copenhagen, Denmark, and an application form headed Great Danish Money Lottery, have been widely distributed, police say.

The Danish lottery is not new to the Washington police. Several years ago a group peddled tickets here and police believe that the same men may be responsible for the present attempts to sell tickets here. Police have been notified to arest at once any one who circulates any of the literature, in the hope that the plan can be stopped before it gets under way.

JURY IN PANTAGES TRIAL IS SWORN IN Six Men and Six Women to Try Theater Magnate on Attack Charge.

MODEL OF OFFICE MADE

Los Angeles, Calif., Oct. 2 (A.P.).—A jury of six men and six women was sworn in late today to try Alexander Pantages, theatrical magnate, on a statutory charge preferred by Eunice Pringle, 17-year-old dancer.

Following a court chamber conference this morning lengthy arguments instituted by the defense failed to result in any court action. District Attorney Buron Fitts, who is leading the prosecution of the multimillionaire theater man, said no comment could be made. Inference was made by the prosecution and defense attorneys that this morning's argument termed merely as on "technical procedure," concerned a defense effort to bring in witnesses to testify against the accusing girl's character. Witnesses whom the defense had planned to call for this purpose were barred yesterday as a result of the State's surprise move through which the second count of the statutory charges, in which forcible attack had been alleged, was dismissed.

By noon, when court recessed for two hours, the State had employed three peremptory challenges, and the defense a like number. The challenges indicated that the State sought a body of jurors who were parents of children approximating the age of Eunice Pringle, while the defense eliminated jurors who had daughters of her age.

Prosecutor Fitts disclosed that a model of Pantages' office suite in a tiny conference room of which the asserted attack occurred, would be used by the State in presenting its evidence. The model was used in Pantages' preliminary hearing.

Mr. Pantages, who was widely known through his Western chain of vaudeville theaters, many of which had recently sold for approximately $15,000,000, watched closely the proceedings. As tentative jurors were questioned, he slipped forward to the edge of his chair, leaning his elbows and head on the counsel table. Frequently he conferred with his attorneys.

The Listening Post

By CARLISLE BARGERON

THERE will be meetings around here some time soon of the local chapters of the various orders for the perpetuation of patriotism, and it is inevitable that there will be a place on the program for the report of the "obsengers" at the Shearer hearing. They were there, the women, in force, and there is absolutely no kick in observing such a hearing unless one is to be permitted to report.

So at the proper time on the program Madame President must say: "We are now ready to hear from our observer at the Shearer hearing." Whereupon the observer will walk primly to the rostrum and this is what she will report:

"It was a most delightful experience and I am glad to have had the opportunity to be present in my capacity as official observer for the Order to Perpetuate Patriotism. I was, indeed, fortunate, in that my house is being done over, and so I just called up my husband and told him he would have to get his meals downtown.

* * * * *

"IT was really a relaxation for me to get away from home duties, which all of us here know are often very annoying and always boring.

"It was most fortunate that our organization had an observer at the hearing, too. You can't imagine how those Senate committees handle our patriots. Patriots Schwab and Patriots Grace and the other patriotic shipbuilders fared very well, but the committee cast dark eyes at Patriot Shearer the minute he arose from his seat.

"Mr. Shearer talked up to the committee, though. No one appreciates more than we that one who has devoted one's life to patriotism, who has pursued Communistic trends and Red streaks through our National Fabric, is not one to be cowed. And so it was with Mr. Shearer. I thought he was grand.

* * * * *

"AT THE outset he told the committee that it was pillorying him, and it was doing that, too. But Mr. Shearer just reached in his pocket and pulled out a letter and showed it to the committee. And what do you suppose it was? Why, it was an indorsement by the Native Sons of California.

"One could immediately see the change in Senator Shortridge's attitude. His demeanor was not severe any more at all. His face was wreathed in smiles. He became most pleasant and recalled that 'Ah, yes, I know of the Native Sons very well.'

"After that it did not seem that Mr. Shearer and Senator Shortridge had any trouble in getting along at all. They talked to each other as should one patriot to another.

* * * * *

"I REALLY can't say that I have any complaint with Senator Robinson's questioning, although he does ask his questions in such a loud voice.

"It is really of Senator Allen that I should speak to you. I don't think he has the patriotic urge at all. He asked Mr. Shearer the most embarrassing questions. And then, too, it was Senator Allen who brought in the naval officers.

"He as much as told Mr. Shearer that he was motivated by the money he was receiving from the shipbuilders when he carried on his patriotic work at Geneva. At any rate, he doesn't seem to be interested in our patriotic movements at all.

"In conclusion, I would have this meeting resolve that our secretary should communicate with the Native Sons of Kansas and have them indorse Mr. Shearer and give him a letter that he may show to Senator Allen."

LINER SLOWS DOWN FOR M'DONALD FETE

S. S. Berengaria Threatened to Arrive Too Soon for New York Greeting.

WELCOMES PILING UP

S. S. Berengaria, Oct. 2 (A.P.).—For what was said to be the first time in her career, this liner was slowed down on her westward passage today. The speedy ship threatened to arrive in New York too early to fit in with the ceremonial program arranged for the reception of Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald of Great Britain.

Capt. Sir Arthur H. Rostron, therefore, ordered the rate of steaming adjusted to bring the Berengaria to quarantine at 6 a. m. on Friday, in ample season before the time set for debarkation of the official party.

MacDonald today received many radio messages of good wishes from both sides of the Atlantic. One that caused some amusement in the British delegation came from an Eastern American city and read: "Cable your price on commercial exclusive first appearance broadcasting."

From the British side of the picture there was a message of cordial good wishes for the success of his mission from the Lord Provost of Glasgow in behalf of himself and the citizens of his city. The master and passengers of the steamship Franconia sent a greeting across the waters of the Atlantic. Another message came from Lord d'Abernon, who recently concluded a successful trade mission to Argentina and Brazil.

Cruisers Leave to Greet Ship Bearing MacDonald

The light cruisers Memphis and Trenton left Hampton Roads yesterday afternoon for Nantucket Light Ship, off the Connecticut coast, where they will meet the S. S. Berengaria, on which Prime Minister Ramsey MacDonald is coming to America, and escort the vessel to the dock in New York City.

Upon the premier's arrival at the Union Station here tomorrow afternoon he will be received by a military guard of honor. The guard will consist of the United States Army Band, a battalion of the Sixteenth Field Artillery and an escort consisting of a squadron of two troops of the Third Cavalry.

A double column of Marines will form from the train to the presidential entrance of the Union Station, through which the prime minister and his party will walk. A company of sailors and the Navy Band will render similar honors at the British Embassy, to which the party will proceed immediately.

The line of march mapped out for the procession will take it up Pennsylvania avenue from Peace Monument, to East Executive Avenue. From thence the party will go to Madison place and up Fifteenth street to K street and over to Connecticut avenue.

LABOR URGED TO AID DISARMAMENT PLAN

British Foreign Secretary Is Speaker at Meeting of Party Executives.

CHEERED BY DELEGATES

Brighton, England, Oct. 2 (A.P.).—Arthur Henderson, foreign secretary, had comparatively smooth sailing in placing his extensive review of the government's achievements before the Labor party conference today. He dealt with the whole range of foreign affairs, including The Hague conference, the Geneva meeting of the League of Nations, the evacuation of the Rhineland and at great length with the disarmament question, concerning which he made the earnest plea: "Why not make this a disarmament year?"

He reaffirmed that Britain would maintain the Palestine mandate, announced that a draft treaty was being prepared to regulate the relations of Britain with Irak when that mandated territory joins the League of Nations, and said a treaty would be framed generally upon the lines of the recent offer to Egypt.

Appealing to the conference to take up the crusade of disarmament, Henderson asked: "For what nobler cause could any government or any party stand? We are out to end the waste and folly of that competitive system of armaments which has cost so much and which the nations still maintain and which besmirches the name of our civilization."

Then came a remarkable scene, as the minister resumed his seat and the whole body of delegates rose, cheering frantically for several minutes. Henderson was subjected to much questioning, but it was not of an acrid nature.

Replying to delegates who spoke of "total disarmament," he said they were only deceiving themselves. The question of how much disarmament was achievable depended upon the strength of public opinion and the government would not attempt the impossible, he said.

TARIFF LOBBYISTS FIRST "ON CARPET"

Senate Investigators Plan to Call Joseph Crundy Among the Witnesses.

LIQUOR FACTIONS OUT

(Associated Press.)

Senate investigation of Washington lobbyists will probably be directed first at those persons and associations seeking to influence the tariff legislation now before the Senate.

Senator Caraway (Democrat), Arkansas, author of the inquiry ordered Tuesday by the Senate, yesterday named those he had in mind for investigation. The list included the Southern Tariff League and Joseph R. Grundy, president of the Pennsylvania Manufacturers Association, who has been in Washington representing also the American Tariff League during the tariff making.

The Arkansas senator is likely to be a member of the investigating committee. He wants to inquire into the nature of the organizations which have been interested before Congress in the Muscle Shoals, Ala., powerplant disposal and in the proposed repeal of the Federal estate tax.

Norris to Head Inquiry.

The investigation will be undertaken next week by some members of the judiciary committee headed by Senator Norris (Republican), Nebraska.

There were indications last night that the Senate investigators would not go into the Washington activities of church organizations and wet and dry associations. Some committee members contended these organizations were engaged principally in election activities and that they have submitted reports of their expenditures to Congress.

Stating he had no complaint with those who were legitimately interested in legislation, Senator Caraway said yesterday that he wanted "the public to know that the Government is not for sale and that these parasites have no more influence at Washington than the janitors in the city halls of the Nation have with their governments."

First in a Decade.

The inquiry is the first of its kind in Washington in a decade, despite many threats in both branches of Congress. Interest in such a course was generated in the Senate last week by disclosures that American shipbuilders had raised and spent in Washington $143,000 a year ago, at the time the Jones-White merchant marine act was in the making.

A full accounting of that fund was given, and Laurence R. Wilder, president of the Transoceanic Corporation, promoting the four-day transatlantic project, testified that he spent about half of the fund. He insisted it was not used for lobbying.

RIVER FLOODS NAVAL AIR BASE; SAILORS TRAVEL BY ROWBOAT

motorists had their motors "drowned out."

Greatest sufferers from the unusual rains were the Navy men at the air station. Flood tides, aided by a northwest wind swept over the dykes, flooded sleeping quarters, disabled heating plants and marooned the men at the reservation.

Officers at the Navy field were taking precautionary measures to prevent any damage from the flood tide expected at 7:50 a. m. today. Tails of the planes in hangers were "jacked up" to prevent damage. All portable equipment was tied securely or removed to higher ground so that it would not float away at the ebb tide.

Air Mail Held Up.

Air mail service, which has been seriously interrupted as a result of the tropical hurricane that swept in off Florida and traveled through Georgia, the Carolinas and Virginia, was still at a virtual standstill. No planes left the air field yesterday on postal service.

Last night the District was believed to be getting the outer fringe of the low-pressure area that passed over Baltimore and through eastern Pennsylvania on its way to the sea.

Some concern was evident at the Naval Air Station last night regarding the possibility of an increase in the wind velocity and the flood tide anticipated for early today. It was feared that with an increase in the wind serious damage might result to the planes in the hangars. This fear was dissipated with the announcement of the Weather Bureau that there would be no appreciable increase in wind velocity.

Roads Are Submerged.

Waters of the Anacostia poured over the dikes and submerged the roads at the Naval Air Station and continued its damage by flooding the sleeping quarters, hangars, mess hall, officers quarters and administration building. The landing field was immersed in two feet of water that made landing hazardous. Bolling Field also was submerged. No damage was done at the Army barracks.

Higher ground saved the radio laboratory and the photographic laboratories at the Naval Station from damage.

All heating plants at the Naval Station were disabled. Sleeping quarters were submerged in water. Sailors ploughed through waist-deep waters in "waders." Others traveled the company streets in rowboats and motor launches. A group of attaches went for a scuttle of coal in a boat in order to start a fire on the wharf.

Hot Drinks for Sailors.

Officials of the station ordered hot drinks served to the men throughout the night to conteract chills. To offset an illness that might result from their wading through the water, dampness of the barracks and the absence of heat, the men were ordered to report to the dispensary today for examinations.

Sailors spent the greater part of the night swabbing water from the barracks. All the men at the reservation were ordered to report early in the morning to guard against any damage to the planes and to the quarters, which so far has been negligible because of precautions.

The 2-foot water depth inundated quarters of the enlisted men and the homes of officers at the field for several inches in places on the first floors and had begun seeping onto the lower floor of the main buildings at the field when the strong southwest wind began abating shortly before 8 o'clock at night.

Potomac Park Sheeted.

Potomac Park also lay under a blanket of water that failed to do any damage, according to reports.

Motorists throughout the District, as well as in nearby Maryland and Virginia, suffered when their machines were "drowned out" by the downpour overnight and throughout yesterday. The American Automobile Association reported that during the day its headquarters were besieged with 500 calls for emergency road service, 300 requests above normal.

Ramspeck to Succeed Steele in Congress

Atlanta, Ga., Oct. 2 (A.P.).—Robert C. W. Ramspeck, Dekalb County attorney and nominee of the Democratic party, was elected to Congress from the Fifth Georgia District today to succeed the late Representative Leslie J. Steele.

Complete unofficial returns from the five counties of the district gave Ramspeck a plurality of 4,222 votes over his two independent opponents. The vote stood—Ramspeck, 6,759; Hooper Alexander, Dekalb County, 2,537; James Hill Palmer, Atlanta, 121.

Russian Aviators' Hop To Seattle Postponed

Sitka, Alaska, Oct. 2 (A.P.).—Because of motor trouble today, the flight of the Russian plane, Land of the Soviets, from Sitka to Seattle, was postponed until tomorrow. The four Russian airmen, who are flying from Moscow to New York, had expected to leave for Seattle today regardless of weather conditions, but unexpected trouble with the motors caused another postponement of the next leg of the flight.

They have been here since Sunday when they arrived from Seward after a flight along the Aleutian Islands from Siberia.

Day in Congress

SENATE.

Met at 11 a. m. and recessed at 3:50 to 11 today. Adopted, 47 to 42, the Simmons amendment to the tariff bill to restore to Congress the power now lodged in the President to change tariff duties after investigation by the Tariff Commission.

It was indicated tariff lobbyists would be called first in the senatorial investigation of lobbying in general here.

Senator Wheeler (Democrat), Montana, offered a resolution for the immediate investigation into the labor outbreak in North Carolina.

Sam R. McKelvie, of Nebraska, wheat member of the Federal Farm Board, told the agriculture committee that the National Grain Marketing Corporation will not be able to function effectively toward the stabilization of wheat prices until next year.

FALL HOLDS TRIAL IS VAIN REPETITION

Justice Hitz Listens to Plea Charges Already Having Been Disproved.

DECISION IS DEFERRED

(Associated Press.)

The petition of Albert B. Fall for dismissal of the indictment charging he was bribed to lease the Elk Hills, Calif., oil reserve was argued yesterday before Justice Hitz, of the District of Columbia Supreme Court, who announced he would dispose of the motion on or before October 7, the day set for trial.

The 68-year-old defendant, who eight years ago, as Secretary of the Interior, leased the petroleum land to Edward L. Doheny, millionaire oil operator of California, himself appeared to plead that trial on the charge would mean placing him in jeopardy twice for the same offense.

Enfeebled and leaning heavily on a cane, Fall appeared with a doctor at his side. Discarding the familiar cigar, he walked with shuffling steps into the court room.

To the question, "How do you plead, guilty or not guilty?" he replied:

"I have a plea which I wish to make."

He handed the petition to the court and sat down.

He left with his wife and two daughters, Mrs. C. C. Chase and Mrs. Jouett Fall Elliott, at the close of the morning's argument.

Several postponements have been granted in the case on account of Fall's ill health. Seeking to prevent the trial ordered next Monday, Frank J. Hogan, of Fall's counsel, asserted the conspiracy charges against his client and Doheny, trial of which resulted in their acquittal, were based on the same facts necessary to prove the present indictment.

Owen J. Roberts and Atlee Pomerene, special Government prosecutors, argued "they are separate and distinct offenses."

PRESIDENT SNUBBED ON FLEXIBLE TARIFF

Simmons Resolution Passed Over Hoover's Plea in 47-TO-42 Vote.

BILL FAILURE IS HINTED

denberg, Walcott, Warren, Waterman, Watson—38.

Democrats: Broussard, Fletcher, Ransdell, Steck—4.

Pairs: Shipstead (F. L.) for, Burton, Republican, against; Hawes, Democrat for, Sackett, Republican, against; Norbeck, Republican, for; Oddie, Republican, against.

Two Test Votes Are Taken.

There were two test votes just preceding the final roll call. Senator Fletcher, of Florida, whose State is still in such an uncertain condition as to cause him to stray from the Democratic ranks, proposed that in the event Congress did not act on a Tariff Commission recommendation within 90 days the President would be empowered to promulgate the rate it recommended. This was voted down, 47 to 42, Trammell voting for it, but Couzens and Dale against. Then Trammell himself proposed that the President be given this power after six months. This was beaten, 48 to 41, Dale switching back with the regulars.

Trammell's vote on the main issue was generally a surprise. It had been understood that he would vote with the administration Republicans. However, after voting with his colleague, Fletcher, in his desperate efforts, and then offering a modifying amendment himself, he presumably decided that he had done all he could for that uncertain Republican strength in Florida.

Wisdom of Hoover's Appeal.

It is conjectural as to just what influence the President's public appeal of a few days ago had in the outcome. His action was not liked by a number of the regulars, but at the same time it served to intensify their efforts, and it was undoubtedly their intensified efforts that got Steck, and Steck's accession will be studied for many a day for just what significance it has.

On the other hand, the President's intervention intensified the efforts of the coalition. It made an out and out issue of the President against the Senate, and it is not at all unlikely that this lost him some four or five Democratic votes.

The vote was preceded by a stirring speech by Senator Hiram Johnson, one of his best in recent years, and in which the issue was clearly drawn. He said at the outset that he did not understand why there had been any surprise as to how he would vote, recalling that in 1922, although not present, he was against the flexible provision and his attitude released a senator with whom he was paired to vote against it.

Bull Moose Tariff Issue Recalled.

He declared that the Bull Moose movement, of which he was the vice presidential candidate, took the lead in declaring for a scientific treatment of the tariff by advocating a fact-finding commission to report to Congress.

This, he said, was before "some gentlemen who would drive us into another attitude had ever thought of the tariff or anything else governmental, so far as that is concerned."

He scoffed at the argument that to give the President the flexible power was to take the tariff out of politics. The tariff is inevitably political and so is the President, he declared.

Politics Always in Tariff Vote.

"Politics, of course, will enter the making of tariffs hereafter, and the activities in relation thereto by a President," he declared.

"It is nonsense to say to me," he added, "that the executive after all only promulgates. It is what the weak executive may do, and God knows none upon this wide world dare say that we have a weak executive today.

"The President, of course—and I do not criticize him in the slightest for it—will keep his hand upon every bureau and every commission he appoints. He will keep it there in order that what policies he has, and what desires he may wish to attain, he may accomplish."

The only criticism he had, he said, "is for the superserviceable lackeys who surround the President and who think that they are doing his bidding when in the endeavor to shine in the effulgence of power, and with their mediocrity, come into undue prominence, seek to destroy and by mendacity and otherwise, to injure or annoy those who have different views."

Appeal Made to Fruit Growers.

Speaking directly to the almond and lemon growers of his State, he warned them to beware of lodging the tariff power in the executive because, although the present President may be from their State, it may be an entirely different story tomorrow.

The flexible power was given first to President Harding in 1922.

There has always been a question as to its constitutionality despite the decision of the Supreme Court on a collateral matter.

WOMAN HERE SEEKS TO BAR SUIT IN CHINA

Wife of Navy Captain Asks Husband Be Enjoined From Shanghai Divorce.

EXCESSIVE COST IS CITED

In a suit for limited divorce filed yesterday in District of Columbia Supreme Court, Mrs. Helen M. R. Ballenger, of 1661 Crescent place northwest, asks that her husband, Capt. Thomas P. Ballenger, U. S. N., attached to the bureau of supplies and accounts of the Navy, be restrained from prosecuting a suit for absolute divorce filed against her in the United States Court for China, Shanghai, China, on July 26 last.

Mrs. Ballenger charges that her husband has never been a bona fide resident of Shanghai and that they never lived there in a marital state. While denying the charges in her husband's petition, she declares that the expense of going to China to defend herself will be excessive.

Capt. Ballenger, in his petition filed in China, charged that his wife had made life intolerable for him, had criticized and maligned him and had insisted on having relatives live with them.

The wife sets forth that they were married June 10, 1911, and that they lived a number of years in Philadelphia and Washington. In February, 1926, she stated, Capt. Ballenger was transferred to Philadelphia, but told her not to come with him. In October, 1926, she states, she went to California for her health and returned in January, 1927. In August, 1928, she visited him in Philadelphia. She avers that on that occasion he repulsed her, told her he did not care what became of her and charged her with ruining his life.

She states further that since December, 1928, the naval officer has contributed nothing to her support and declares that without assistance from him she can not maintain the position in life to which she has been accustomed. She sets out that her husband's salary is $400 a month.

CURRENT EVENTS IN VIRGINIA AND MARYLAND

VIRGINIA'S LIBRARY AFTER MORE ROOM

Present Quarters Cramped; Dr. McIlwaine Asks for New Structure.

FLOOR COLLAPSE FEARED

Richmond, Va., Oct. 2 (A.P.).—The State Library is about to outgrow its present home, Dr. Henry R. McIlwaine, librarian, says. With more than 10,000 volumes being received each year by purchase, gift, or exchange and with constant additions being made to the division of archives by gift or loan from the various counties in Virginia, Dr. McIlwaine says it will not be long before the present building becomes inadequate to hold the number of volumes. He has the hope that the General Assembly will make provision for a bigger and better treasury house for the valuable tomes.

It was with such an object in view that he recently appeared before the State budget committee to make a plea for a building to be erected on the old Ford Hotel lot facing the Capitol Square.

"The present quarters of the State Library have now become absolutely inadequate," the librarian said, "and while, of course, it is true that books may be piled on the top of stacks and on the floors to do so will merely add to the difficulty of getting at them when they are needed.

Congestion Is Hindrance.

"Moreover, a congested library is far more difficult to administer than one which has ample quarters. We have also have in care of the library a large number of portraits of great historical value which are improperly hung in badly lighted places, and in addition to these portraits, the State of Virginia, through the generosity of John Barton Payne, also owns a notable collection of paintings that are at present housed in the Battle Abbey here because the State has no suitable place for them within the bounds of Capitol Square."

Referring to the question of possible danger arising from a continued addition of weight, Dr. McIlwaine said:

"As to the weight, the danger point may not yet have been reached, but the fact is that most of the people working in the rooms below the library quarters are always more or less apprehensive, as are many of those working in the library itself."

Court Also Needs Room.

He said that he felt sure that the justices of the Supreme Court of Appeals would be very glad to see the State library removed from its present quarters, since adequate rooms are not available for the needs of the court and the law library.

The State library board already has suggested that the State acquire from the City of Richmond the Ford Hotel property on Capitol street, facing Capitol square, and erect on that site a handsome library building.

"Virginia is the richest State in the Union in history," Dr. McIlwaine said, "and the building that is to house her manuscript sources of history and her printed books should certainly be a beautiful and stately one, and one so placed as to strike the eye of the beholder."

Hunt Changes Position.

Martinsburg, W. Va., Oct. 2 (Special).—William H. Hunt, of Charlottesville, Va., recently manager of the Monticello Hotel at Norfolk, Va., has been named manager of the Shenandoah here, beginning his duties today. He succeeds C. A. Jennings, Washington, who returned to the Capital to enter the hotel business for himself.

Daily O'Currences

By JOHN DALY

SINCE announcement that Ramsay MacDonald is en route to Washington, Luella has been interested in his visit.

"It'll be wonderful to have the premier of England here," she exclaimed, "but what I can't understand is why the king doesn't come over, too—and the queen."

To make the party complete, of course, the Prince of Wales should be included in the guest list.

"But the prince was here once before," Luella told me. "I don't believe the king and queen have ever been in Washington."

* * * *

WE looked up the records. Sure enough, their majesties have never come across.

"I wonder why?" asked Luella.

"It may be," I remarked, "that the king and queen are too busy—or that the king isn't feeling well. You remember, 'twas not long ago His Majesty suffered a severe illness."

"Oh, yes," remembered Luella, "he was a pretty sick king about that time. I'm sure he's better now, and well able to travel, too, but——"

"But, what?"

"Well," she said, "I imagine the strict social usages of Washington have scared off the king and queen of England."

"You imagine what?" I asked mystified.

"Oh," she said, trying to switch the subject, "you're not interested in social etiquette——"

"Yes, I am interested in social etiquette," I assured her, "and I'd like to know what that's got to do with the king and queen not coming over with Premier MacDonald."

Luella was good enough to explain her theory. It seems that all is not quiet along the Potomac, that social and official Washington have been having some sort of ado on the seating arrangements at embassy and White House dinners and that——

"Well," said Luella, "in a nutshell, the king and queen don't want to embarrass the President of the United States and, of course, the British Ambassador. That's why I believe they're not coming to Washington."

* * * *

OF all the outlandish thoughts, this is it: "Now, how," I asked, in my utter ignorance, "could the King and Queen of England embarrass the President of the United States?"

"You don't understand," said Luella, "when great dinners are given, dinners of state, I mean, the meal is nothing—absolutely nothing. It's the seating arrangement that counts—who sits here, who sits there. You might have read of Mrs. Gann——"

"Yes, I've read of Mrs. Gann, but what has she to do with it?"

"She?" gasped Luella, in astonishment. "My dear, if Mrs. Gann, for instance, went to a dinner given the King of England, where would they put the queen?"

Setting Hens Hatch Liquor For Police Raiding Squad

After Long Search Letterman's Men Find Poultry Concealing 20 Quarts and Woman Owner Is Arrested. Raincoat Leads to Another Rum Raid.

"Chicken" liquor made its reappearance on the Washington liquor mart last night; Sergt. Oscar J. Letterman, head of the special raiding squad, reported. About 26 quarts of it were discovered when the raiders went over the home of Bessie Ransome, colored, on L street, near Fifth street southwest.

Because of previous experience with members of the Police Department, the woman had gone to much trouble to hide some contraband liquor. That she had done a good job at the hiding business was attested by the men who sought a long time before they found it.

In her back yard, police charge, they found a chicken coop, with real egg-laying hens. The hens, in fact, insisted upon laying too steadily, and when they were rooted off their nests, it was found that under the straw were secreted twenty quarts, consisting of ten half-gallon jars. A sliding board arrangement enabled one to get some of the liquor without disturbing the hens. Charges of sale and possession were booked against the woman.

In another liquor raid on Eighth street, near Barry place northwest, three negroes were seized along with 26 quarts of alleged alcoholic beverage. A man who chanced to come out of the house in the middle of a heavy rainstorm, with his raincoat over his arm, aroused the necessary suspicions.

He dropped the raincoat and fled into the house, leaving the remnants of a bottle where his coat hit the pavement. The cache was discovered in a trap door in the kitchen of the place.

School Drilling Period Changed

Entire System Is Altered by Kramer; Dismissal at 4:45 P. M. Planned.

Changes in the entire cadet drill system in District schools were announced yesterday by Stephen E. Kramer, assistant superintendent in charge of high schools, so as to eliminate much waste in time and to permit all boys to go home by 4:45 o'clock in the afternoons instead of early night as has occurred sometimes heretofore. The drills will begin at 3 o'clock.

The order confines the drills to streets and grounds in the immediate vicinity of the respective high schools, thus eliminating the waste in time of moving the cadets to the Ellipse, south of the White House.

The prone positions, in which the cadets lie face down on the ground in fake skirmishes, have also been dropped from the drill schedule.

M'CLUNG IS FREED ON ARSON CHARGE

Waynesboro Man Is Acquitted Without Offering Any Defense Testimony.

ATTORNEY AWAITS TRIAL

Special to The Washington Post.

Harrisonburg, Va., Oct. 2.—J. C. McClung, of Waynesboro, was acquitted of an arson charge growing out of the burning of his idle ice plant at Elkton last April 6, by a Rockingham Circuit Court jury here late today. The jury deliberated 40 minutes.

The defense offered no testimony, allowing the case to stand on the evidence produced by the State, after Judge H. W. Bertram early today refused a defense motion for a directed verdict following the completion of the prosecution's case.

McClung's defense was based on the fact that even though the ice plant was insured for $25,000, he would not collect any of the money unless the loss was sufficient to pay off the $15,000 in bonds outstanding against the plant, and that the owner had nothing to do with the presence of Roy Wheeler at the plant the morning the fire broke out.

Wheeler Injured in Mishap.

Wheeler, a young attorney and real estate agent, who handled the transaction for McClung, when the latter purchased the ice plant last December, is indicated as the principal in the arson count which charges a conspiracy to defraud twenty fire insurance companies of $25,000. McClung was charged in the indictment as an accessory before the fact and by the State in its prosecution as the "master mind" of the alleged plot.

Wheeler, seriously injured in an automobile accident two days after the fire, was physically unable to stand trial before McClung was tried. Judge Bertram has ordered Wheeler to appear for trial at the next term of circuit court here unless physicians' certificates are produced to show that such action would endanger the young University of Virginia graduate's life.

Was at the Plant.

Wheeler was at the ice plant the morning of the fire. He claimed that he accidentally set fire to the plant while he was preparing it for workmen. The plant had been idle for three years.

Sol J. Hensley, the original owner, testified that he sunk $35,000 in the project and that he transferred it to R. R. King, Charlottesville real estate broker, as a commission for arranging a farm purchase for him. King, in turn, sold the plant to McClung for $5,000 cash and $15,000 in bonds.

B. & O. Authorized To Acquire Railway

Interstate Commerce Unit Says System Can Buy Buffalo Line.

(Associated Press.)

Conditional approval of the application of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad to acquire control of the Buffalo, Rochester & Pittsburgh Railway was recommended yesterday to the Interstate Commerce Commission by C. V. Burnside, assistant director of the commission's bureau of finance.

Burnside, who presided at the hearing on the Baltimore & Ohio's application, told the commission the proposed purchase price of approximately $14,000,000 for 85 per cent of the stock was reasonable and that the application should be approved subject to three conditions.

The conditions prescribed provided that the stock should be held so it could be transferred if the commission should find this in the public interest, that all routes now employed for the movement of traffic be kept open and efficiently maintained and that the operations, accounts and statistics of the road be maintained for purposes of comparison.

WIFE OF MINISTER ALLEGES CRUELTY

Suit for Permanent Alimony From Rev. Peter Heimer Filed at Frederick.

HEALTH IMPAIRED, CLAIM

Frederick, Md., Oct. 2.—Alleging cruelty "which has at times been violent," Mrs. Elizabeth A. Heimer today filed suit for separate maintenance, permanent alimony and counsel fee against her husband, the Rev. Dr. Peter E. Heimer, pastor of the Thurmont Reformed Church and a well-known member of the Ministerial Association. The court issued an order directing the defendant to pay his wife $75 per month, pending trial of the suit and gave him until October 15 to show cause why the alimony should not be permanent.

Mrs. Heimer, through her bill of complaint, alleges that her health has been impaired as the result of continued "mistreatment," which has lasted for some years. She states that she has endured her husband's conduct as long as possible for the sake of their children, who are now adults, and out of respect to his position as a minister, but that she now believes there is no hope for reconciliation.

Mrs. Heimer says her husband owns securities worth approximately $25,000. She states she is without means to defray the suit.

The Rev. and Mrs. Heimer have been living here the past fifteen years at Thurmont, where he is pastor of a charge, which includes three other churches near town. They were married June 22, 1893, in Belfast, Pa. They have two children, both of whom are married.

Most teeth decay unless you do this daily

Remove the FILM that breeds bacteria and turns white teeth dull and dingy

GERMS cause tooth decay. Germs plus tartar are the chief cause of pyorrhea. Virtually every common disease of teeth and gums results from germ infection.

There is but one way known to fight germs and safeguard teeth and gums. You must remove a slippery, stubborn film that glues bacteria to the tooth's enamel. Film forms in crevices and clings so tenaciously that ordinary brushing fails to remove it successfully.

Today dentists are urging patients by the millions to turn from other ways to the special film-removing dentifrice called Pepsodent. It acts in an utterly different way—you will note the difference from ordinary tooth pastes the instant it touches your teeth—first it curdles film and then REMOVES IT SAFELY. No pumice, no harmful grit or crude abrasive, but a scientific action that recommends it for the most sensitive teeth and gums.

No other way can make teeth so dazzling white — nor give such protection. Write for free 10-day supply to The Pepsodent Co., 1104 S. Wabash Ave., Chicago.

AN ANCIENT PREJUDICE HAS BEEN REMOVED

Never again need scientific research grope in darkened cellars behind doors bolted against torture. AMERICAN INTELLIGENCE has swept before it the ignorant barrier which stupidly impeded men of genius and science marches proudly on.

"toasting did it"—

Gone is that ancient prejudice against cigarettes—Progress has been made. We removed the prejudice against cigarettes when we removed harmful corrosive ACRIDS (pungent irritants) from the tobaccos.

YEARS ago, when cigarettes were made without the aid of modern science, there originated that ancient prejudice against all cigarettes. That criticism is no longer justified. LUCKY STRIKE, the finest cigarette you ever smoked, made of the choicest tobacco, properly aged and skillfully blended—"It's Toasted."

"TOASTING," the most modern step in cigarette manufacture, removes from LUCKY STRIKE harmful irritants which are present in cigarettes manufactured in the old-fashioned way.

Everyone knows that heat purifies, and so "TOASTING"—LUCKY STRIKE'S extra secret process—removes harmful corrosive ACRIDS (pungent irritants) from LUCKIES which in the old-fashioned manufacture of cigarettes cause throat irritation and coughing. Thus "TOASTING" has destroyed that ancient prejudice against cigarette smoking by men and by women.

"It's Toasted"—the phrase that describes the extra "toasting" process applied in the manufacture of Lucky Strike Cigarettes. The finest tobaccos—the Cream of the Crop—are scientifically subjected to penetrating heat at minimum, 260°—maximum, 300°, Fahrenheit. The exact, expert regulation of such high temperatures removes impurities. More than a slogan, "It's Toasted" is recognized by millions as the most modern step in cigarette manufacture.

EVENTS IN MARYLAND AND VIRGINIA

BYRD MAKES WARM ANSWER TO BROWN

Governor Accuses Candidate of Dressing Up Speeches of Col. Anderson.

HALF TRUTHS ALLEGED

Special to The Washington Post.

Richmond, Va., Oct. 2.—Gov. Harry F. Byrd, in his first statement in the present Virginia gubernatorial contest, today charged Dr. William Mosely Brown, coalition candidate for governor, with "revising, dusting off and dressing up to suit the present campaign" the speeches which Col. Henry W. Anderson, member of Hoover's crime commission, has been delivering for the past fifteen years in attacking conditions in Virginia.

Byrd also raps Brown's Roanoke speech, saying "in Dr. Brown's latest effort we find the same reckless misstatements of facts, the same barrenness of constructive suggestions, the same intense partisan prejudice in telling only half the truth so as to becloud the real facts and issues and mislead the voters as have always characterized Col. Anderson's political speeches."

Byrd handles Anderson without gloves, just as he does Brown. He said Anderson claims to be the "discoverer" of Brown and says Anderson, "ever since joining the Republican party in Virginia," has been delivering bitter speeches against the Democrats, adding, "A grateful Republican administration has since rewarded him by appointing him to three lucrative offices in the space of one year from which he received in cash and emoluments the sum of $91.66, and at the same time attended to his private law practice."

Takes Statements in Detail.

Byrd's statement, between 600 and 700 words in length, takes up in detail statements of Brown. He says Brown voted approval of the State reorganization plan which he now criticizes, and then declares that R. H. Angell, Republican State chairman, was a member of the commission which framed the new governmental plan in Virginia and spoke in favor of it before legislative committees. Taking up Brown's machine cry, Byrd says the coalition candidate was named as the Republican candidate by a "secret conference of three men, while John Garland Pollard was named as the Democratic nominee in an open primary, protected by law, in which 14,000 voters participated.

"The issue before the people of Virginia today is good government in Virginia—to promote the progress of Virginia—but Dr. Brown is struggling to shift the issue to the election of a chairman of the Democratic National Committee," says Byrd.

"There are no national issues in the election of a governor, lieutenant governor and attorney general of Virginia. The election of a chairman of the Democratic National Committee to succeed the present chairman, whose term will expire before the next presidential campaign, has no more to do with the election of a governor of Virginia than a debate of the terms on which we should adhere to the world court would be relevant to a decision of State issues."

Charges Brown With Error.

Taking up Brown's highway program, Byrd says the coalitionists' proposal to reduce gas and automobile license taxes will reduce the road fund $1,600,000 a year. He charges Brown with error in saying Virginia has the highest gas tax by saying Georgia, South Carolina and Florida have a 6-cent tax against Virginia's 5-cent gas tax. He charges Brown with trying to make it appear that Virginia highway system has a $20,000,000 fund when as a matter of fact it has only $14,091,000 for maintenance and construction.

Byrd takes up Brown's charges that the Democratic administration is responsible for the depression in the coal mining and iron ore business. He answers by charging this depression is caused by the decision of a "Republican Interstate Commerce Commission in the lake cargo rate case when the railroads were ordered to discriminate against Virginia coal and in favor of Pennsylvania coal. The charge was publicly made that this injustice to Virginia was done at the direction of a prominent member of President Hoover's Cabinet for personal and political motives. Prof. Brown may use his influence with the Republicans at Washington to correct the injustice of this politically dictated decision of the Republican Interstate Commerce Commission."

PARK VIEW SCHOOL REBELS VIGHT ON AFTER REVERSE

understanding of the board's action is that the situation was unchanged by the meeting, he said.

Though there was much talk about boundaries, love of school, attendance records, and the like, the real issue was studiously avoided. At the conclusion of the hearing, however, one of the Park View parents, Alfred B. Hannemann, of 633 Keefer place northwest, charged that he and his associates had been tricked by a member of the School Board.

"He told us that if we didn't mention the race issue we would probably wet what we wanted," he declared. "And now see what they have done."

As about 80 per cent of the 50 persons attending the meeting, outside the board, were of the Park View group, it was a disgrunted crowd that left the hall after the board had adjourned.

Fred S. Walker, president of the Park View Citizens Association, was the first to address the board. In a few words he explained the action of the executive committee upholding the parents who were opposed to having their children transferred from Park View to Monroe and concluded by declaring that it was his belief that children should be allowed to go to whatever school they and their parents desired.

Following were much more intense pleas by parents who could not understand why their children should be shifted to another school after they had been attending Park View for from one to six years. Some of the mothers had tears in their eyes as they pleaded with the board members.

One mother, Mrs. Mary Silver, of 2902 Park place, who apologized for taking the board's time, became eloquent as she begged that her girl be permitted to remain in Park View.

"You talk of property values and things like that when the only question is the children," she said. "Why, my child loves Park View School so much that she hates to have Sunday come because she can't go."

Ballou Remains Adamant.

The chief argument of the Monroe proponents was advanced by Mrs. J. R. L. Beane, president of the Monroe Parent - Teacher Association. She called attention to the decline in attendance at Monroe over the last five years and offered the "overcrowded conditions" at Park View in contrast. Concluding, she deplored the publicity given the school squabble, declaring that it has hurt property values in the Monroe area and the reputation of the school itself.

Dr. Frank W. Ballou, superintendent of schools, who was called on to explain the school administration's position on the issue, gave the appellants little hope that he would change his former attitude for rigid enforcement of the order that the boundary lines be adhered to.

While admitting that there was some merit in the contentions of the protesting parents that it was unfortunate to change pupils who had become attached to one school, Dr. Ballou asserted that the crux of the question was whether the present boundry dividing the Park View and Monroe districts is fair. If the board found this line properly drawn, it would be bound to uphold the order that pupils living within the Monroe area attend the Monroe School.

The superintendent explained at length the manner in which boundaries are drawn, and declared that the object was to use the school buildings in the most efficient manner. Moreover, it is unquestionable that Park View is congested with five portable schools and eight part-time classes, while Monroe has 125 students less than capacity, he said.

Principal Supports Parents.

Much agitation was stirred up by the reading of a letter written by Seldon M. Ely, supervising principal in charge of both schools, to Mr. Haycock on the controversy. The principal laid the blame of the trouble to the gradual encroachment of the colored population on the Monroe School area.

"With the Bruce School one square north, growing year by year, and with colored people in every square about Monroe, west of Georgia avenue, we will have to admit unfortunately that the Monroe area is gone," he said. "The key to the falling memberships at Monroe is shown by the necessary extension of the Bruce School from eight to sixteen rooms two years ago."

Concluding, the principal sided with the Park View group in the statement: "My judgment is that the pupils in the triangles to the north and west adjacent to Park View should have been allowed to remain at Park View until the Raymond and Powell schools are definitely organized. My judgment further is that the area to the south of Park View and east of the middle line of Georgia avenue should be assigned to Park View."

Platoon System Favored.

During the course of the discussion that followed, a board member asked the Park View group: "Is it the Park View School or the platoon school system that is so popular?" And with one voice they replied, "the platoon system."

The Park View Platoon school—the only one of its sort in the District—was established in 1920, partly as an experiment and partly because of the congested district. The plan is similar to that followed in universities. Instead of remaining in one room and under one teacher all day, the pupils move to special instructors in several rooms after spending a half-day with their grade teacher.

Some of the members of the board were inclined to see a clash of sentiment and reason in the school row, while Charles F. Carusi, president, declared that it was one of the most important problems ever to come before the board, because it involved the question of the right to disregard school boundaries.

The entire school board will probably be called upon to act as the investigating committee, and it is likely that a special meeting will be called to discuss the issue before the next regular board meeting.

HYATTSVILLE COURT COLLECTS $1,000

Five Fines and Forfeitures in Driving-While-Drunk Cases Swell Total.

RULING AIDS ORPHANAGE

Fines and forfeitures totaling more than $1,000 were collected in Hyattsville branch of Prince Georges County Police Court yesterday by Judge J. Chew Sheriff. The unusually large sum was accounted for by convictions and forfeitures in five cases involving driving under the influence of liquor.

Alvin Barnes, 1415 Park road northwest, was fined a total of $250 on charges of reckless driving and transportation of intoxicants. He was arrested Sunday by County Policeman Claude Reese and Deputy Sheriff Ralph Brown, following a collision between his car and one operated by Miss Mollie Scholtz, of Metzerott road, Chillum District, in which Miss Scholtz was injured slightly.

The policemen found 192 quarts of alleged liquor in the car, following the collision, they testified. Barnes was fined $50 for reckless driving and $200 for transportation.

William P. Wood, 928 H street northwest, was fined $100 on a charge of driving while intoxicated. He was arrested by Policeman Reese and Deputy Sheriff Brown near Beltsville on the Baltimore boulevard. The policemen testified that they were attracted to the car by the zigzag manner in which it was being driven.

Raymonds Valentine, colored, of Murkirk, was fined a total of $122 on charges of driving while intoxicated, reckless driving, fictitious markers, no driver's permit and no registration card. He entered a plea of guilty. The policemen said that they had followed him for several miles over the dirt road near his home but were unable to pass him until he stopped at his home. He was arrested by Reese and Brown.

Marion A. Lee, 1327 Harvard street northwest, failed to appear in court to answer a charge of driving while intoxicated and his collateral of $100 was declared forfeited. He was arrested by State Policeman Louis Bloom. John S. Clements, 1376 Kenyon street northwest, also forfeited $100 by failing to appear to answer a driving-while-intoxicated charge. He was arrested by Constable William Norgle.

Joseph Chaney, 1212 I street southeast, was fined $100 on a charge of driving while intoxicated. He was arrested by Reese and Brown.

Four Baltimore colored youths yesterday found their sightseeing tour in an alleged stolen car cut short when they stopped at the gasoline filling station of Justice of the Peace George H. Phillips, of Berwyn, Maryland State Policeman Louis Bloom was in the office with another case and decided that the boys looked suspicious.

Investigation revealed that the car had been reported stolen by J. Paul Uman, of Baltimore, from a garage in the rear of his home. The boys gave their names as Steven Tiggle, 13 years old; Paul Walters, 13; Leroy Williams, 15, and James Lewis, 18, all of Baltimore.

Lewis was charged with unauthorized use of an automobile and is being held for trial. The three minor youths are charged with occupying an automobile while being operated without its owner's consent. The adventurers were lodged in the Bladensburg Jail until arrangements can be made for their return to Baltimore.

The Prince Georges County board of education has been advised by counsel to the board that children from the American Children's Aid Society orphanage in Cottage City should be considered as county residents and must be admitted to any county school within reason. The board has ordered their admittance to the Cottage City School.

The Aid Society has encountered difficulties since it first decided to move the home from John Marshall place in Washington to an old hotel in Cottage City. The Circuit Court at Upper Marlboro ruled that the society could open the institution and issued an order restraining town officials from interfering with it.

When school season opened another difficulty faced the managers of the home. The principal of the Cottage City School declined to accept children from the orphanage until the superintendent of schools ordered their admittance.

The board of education considered the question and then decided to leave the matter to legal counsel. The board did not wish to deny the children schooling, but believed in view of the present overcrowded condition that it was an imposition to ask that the taxpayers' money be expended on the education of children who came from Washington.

In addition to awarding her the final decree, Justice Bailey gave her custody of two minor children and allowed her $65 monthly alimony. The woman was represented by Attorney Thomas G. Walsh.

BOSTON WINS 1930 LEGION CONVENTION

Louisville Gathering Roars Unanimous Approval as Los Angeles Yields.

TRIO IN RACE FOR CHIEF

Louisville, Ky., Oct. 2 (A.P.).—Executing an about face from glamorous celebrations, the American Legion went briskly to business today, selecting Boston for the 1930 convention and paving the way for the election tomorrow of a national commander and other officers.

It required only one ballot for Boston to win over Los Angeles, which had inquired in slogans seeking the convention,—"Orange Juice or Beans"—but the fact that no city announced a bid for the 1931 meeting indicated that maybe the Legionnaires plan to try both. The committee on time and place reported that Baltimore would seek the 1932 convention and Chicago the one in 1933.

As the polling got under way, supporters of each city acknowledged votes with cheers, but by the time the Eastern States, with their big blocks of votes, were reached, California's applause ebbed away. The tabulation showed 742 for Boston and 400 for Los Angeles, with Porto Rico not casting its six votes. The national executive committee will fix the date for the twelfth annual convention.

Choice Made Unanimous.

As soon as the voting was over Clarence L. Kincade, commander of the California department, moved that Boston's selection be made unanimous, and the convention roared approval.

With the end of their parade—the big bertha of the Legion's period of merrymaking—the delegates settled down to internal politics. In the caucuses three names as contenders for national commander were mentioned often. They were O. L. Bodenhamer, of El Dorado, Ark.; Albert L. Cox, of Raleigh, N. C., and Ralph T. O'Neil, of Topeka, Kans. As several large delegations have not revealed their choice for commander, there is the possibility of "dark horses" entering the race.

The delegates gave serious consideration to their comrades, whom events of 1917-18 left torn in body and mind, pledging their support to 64 resolutions of the committee on rehabilitation, many of which sought liberalization of laws for the care of the World War's disabled, and for increased hospital facilities.

Consideration Is Promised.

It was to these unfortunate buddies that the legionnaires devoted most of their time, and they were assured by Brig. Gen. Frank T. Hines, director of the United States Veterans' Bureau, that "the problem of disabled is very near to the heart of President Hoover and one to which he will give the greatest consideration." Gen. Hines said it was the endeavor of the bureau to simplify the system of relief and to give the benefit of the doubt to the veteran.

Sergt. Samuel Woodfill, holder of the Congressional Medal of Honor and described by Gen. Pershing as "the greatest hero of the American Expeditionary Forces," saluted his comrades from the platform and talked to them about need of preparedness against future wars. His uniform already brilliant with emblems of bravery, Sergt. Woodfill stood at attention while Col. S. Zahorski, representing Marshal Joseph Pilsudski, of Poland, pinned upon his blouse two medals commemorative of Polish independence.

Col. Zahorski brought greetings to the legion, as did Commander L. Sable, of the French navy, representing the French Ambassador.

Report on Rehabilitation.

The report of the committee on rehibilitation, which was approved by hte convention today, contained 64 recommendations, many of them dealing with treatment of disabled soldiers. The major recommendaitons included:

That the disabled rating schedule be amended so as to provide hospital pay for cases now rated as less than 10 per cent when hospitalized for surgical treatment.

Thatthe Federal allowance of $10 a month to disabled volunteer soldiers in national soldiers' homes be increased to $20 a month.

Regarding Government insurance, the committee recommended that monthly payments for permanent and total disability be not deducted from the face value of the policy and that the law be aended to reduce interest on back payment liens on reinstated insurance policies of disabled veterans.

Auxiliary Women Nominated

Three Midwestern women were nominated for the presidency of the Legion Auxiliary and will be voted upon tomorrow afternoon. They are Mrs. Donald MacRae, Council Bluffs, Iowa; Mrs. William H. Cudsworth, Milwaukee, and Mrs. Milton Kramer, Madison, S. Dak.

Four rgeional vice presidents were nominated and as no opposition developed it was expected that they would be elected. They are, Eastern division, Miss Adelaide Fitzgerald, Massachusetts; Southern division, Mrs. Harry Vass, North Carolina; Northwestern division, Mrs. L. E. Thompson, Colorado, and Western division, Mrs. James Howell, Utah.

The championship for Legion drum and bugle corps was won tonight by the Frankford, Pa., Post.

Sisters Reunited By Press Article

Five Daughters of Prussian Nobleman Were Parted 46 Years Ago.

Denver, Colo., Oct. 2 (A.P.).—Separated 46 years, five sisters, one of them Mrs. Ada R. Tibbits, statistician in the State mine inspector's office here, have been reunited as a result of publication in various parts of the country of an Associated Press feature service article. Mrs. Albert L. Wargney, Pasadena, Calif., a sister, telegraphed Mrs. Tibbits today that she had received a newspaper clipping of the article from a friend in the East. She disclosed that her maiden name was Clara Rolla du Rosey and that three other sisters, Jessie, Nellie and Vera, were all living in California. They are daughters of a former Prussian nobleman.

The family separation occurred when Mrs. Tibbitts' marriage in St. Louis was frowned on by other members of the family.

Mrs. Tibbits family objected to her marriage and she left St. Louis, losing contact with her family. Her father, Otto Rolla du Rosey, a Prussian nobleman, was disowned by his family many years ago for marrying beneath his station. He followed Carl Schurz, noted German soldier, to America and later served with Schurz on the Union side in the Civil War.

The State's investigation of the assassination of District Attorney John A. Holmes (left in the three-year-old oil town of Borger, Tex., was climaxed by the arrival of national guardsmen, who brought a proclamation of martial law from Gov. Dan Moody (center). The militiamen are under command of Brig. Gen. Jacob F. Wolters (right). Above is the main street in Borger with its streets literally soaked with oil.

Borger Clean-up Opens With Series of Raids

Borger, Tex., Oct. 2 (A.P.).—Several squads of National Guardsmen tonight launched a series of raids in this county (Hutchinson) in search of three men described by Brig. Gen. Jacob Wolters as "bad actors."

Gen. Wolters said the raids signified the "beginning of the actual clean-up" of this crime-ridden oil town, which was placed under martial law last week-end by Gov. Dan Moody, fifteen days after District Attorney John A. Holmes was assassinated mysteriously.

Peru Arrests Army Officers in Red Plot

Lima, Peru, Oct. 2 (A.P.).—The newspaper La Prensa, mouthpiece of the government, today disclosed that a communistic plot had been discovered in the army and that several officers and men were to be court-martialed. It stated that the government had been aware of the conspiracy for some time and had definitely checked it so that all was quiet in the provinces.

"A few subaltern officers as well as a comparatively considerable number of sergeants and corporals were arrested," the newspaper said, and confessions obtained from some of them will be offered as evidence in the court-martial.

The meeting started yesterday and may last one or two more days, after which the railway express agency management will be notified the brotherhood desires to enter into a new contract, Morgan said. The present meeting was called to determine what demands would be made by the brotherhood.

RADIO MAN DRAGGED INTO $50,000 SUIT

Ormiston's "Chivalry" Told in Case Against Aimee McPherson's Mother.

MINISTER BARES TALKS

Seattle, Wash., Oct. 2 (A.P.).—The name of Kenneth Ormiston, radio operator, who figured in the Aimee Semple McPherson kidnaping case in California, today was brought into the $50,000 breach of promise suit of the Rev. H. H. Clark against Minnie E. Kennedy, Mrs. McPherson's mother.

Clark, on the stand, said that Mrs. Kennedy had pointed to Armiston's "chivalry" when Clark told her he had been trying to communicate with Mrs. McPherson.

"Ormiston would not do that. Ormiston would not breathe a word against Aimee," the plaintiff quoted Mrs. Kennedy as saying.

Says Mrs. Kennedy Left Him.

The former Seattle minister said the conversation took place when Mrs. Kennedy returned to Seattle where she had left him "desolate and without explanation." Clark had testified yesterday that Mrs. Kennedy went to California without explanation after promising to marry him.

Clark said Mrs. Kennedy returned to Seattle at his repeated appeals and they went to a restaurant to "talk it over." He said Mrs. Kennedy would not sign some papers he had and wanted to know what he had written to her daughter. He said Mrs. Kennedy took the papers and put them in her purse saying "Aimee might capitalize on this." She then chided him about Ormiston, he alleged.

Cross-examination of Clark brought out the admission that the former minister had started two damage suits several years ago for $50,000 each in California.

Once Arrested as "Peeping Tom."

Clark said one suit was caused by a political move against him in retaliation for a vice crusade in Bakersfield, Calif. He asked $50,000 for false arrest as a "peeping Tom," explaining that his curiosity had led him to look into certain windows. He said the other $50,000 suit was for libel but he could not remember the details.

"Do you mean to tell me $50,000 damage suits are so common in your life you don't remember the details," demanded John S. Robinson, attorney for Mrs. Kennedy.

"I've never had any since then until now," Clark answered.

Soviet Jails Five Clergy.

Riga, Latvia, Oct. 2 (A.P.).—Dispatches from Astrakhan, U. S. S. R., today said that the secret police had arrested Archbishop Philip and Fathers Stefanovsky, Pokrovsky, Azimov and Mapiedysha on accustations of counter revolutionary preaching in orthodox churches.

Will the President Make Washington Dry?

A personal test by President Hoover of the enforceability of the Prohibition law is what some keen observers see in his announced determination to make the nation's Capital a model dry city for the rest of the country. "If prohibition is enforceable in any of our urban communities, the city of Washington should furnish the proof," declares the New York Herald-Tribune, and concludes its editorial with this sentence: "It will be an exceedingly interesting laboratory experiment since, if it is demonstrated that an unpopular law can not be enforced in a community that lacks the franchise and even by Mr. Hoover, then the case for enforcement in other cities falls as flat as a pancake." And, on the other hand, as the Atlanta Constitution remarks, "If the President succeeds in the District of Columbia, then general enforcement will be made easier throughout the country."

Public opinion everywhere on this experiment is reflected in "The Digest" this week. Read the leading article and these striking news-features:

RACKETEER KILLING TURNS UP SUSPECT

Search for Slayer Leads to Man Wanted in $512,000 Bond Theft.

SLAVERY LINK STUDIED

New York, Oct. 2 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—The list of names and telephone numbers found on the body of Samuel Reinstein, New York racketeer who was slain in Boston a fortnight ago, engaged the attention of Federal authorities today as six persons, one of these a girl, were held as material witnesses in Boston on charges linking them with the white slave ring which is under investigation in several Eastern cities.

The authorities were also waiting the arrival of Carl Forman, indicted here for his alleged part in the recent $512,000 bond robbery, who was arrested in Boston yesterday by detectives looking for the killers of Reinstein. His arrest followed an anonymous tip that the Neuman brothers, Jeff and Moe, wanted on suspicion of complication in the Reinstein killing, were hidden in the Boston retreat, which instead gave up Forman.

Whether Forman, described as the principal in the bond theft, had any underworld connection with the girl racket which Boston Federal authorities believe responsible for 54 gang killings, is not divulged. No direct evidence along this line has been unearthed as yet, but there are certain coincidences, besides the anonymous tip, which must be explained before Forman is absolved from knowledge of the slave traffic. But the list of living persons given up by the dead Reinstein mainly interested Federal investigators. At least 100 telephone numbers appear on this list, most of them culled from the East Side, one of the supposed headquarters of the ring which has been dumping hundreds of girls yearly into the mining towns of Pennsylvania, if the testimony of witnesses is to be believed.

The name of a Philadelphia racketeer named "Chick" appears on the list and may prove to be just the man for whom the Federal authorities are looking. For, according to Mr. Cooke, it was a man named "Chick" who was first sought out here by the two brothers of Eddie Neuman, alias Winner, who was shot dead here on Rivington street July 19.

Police say they know the killer of Neuman and that it was neither Reinstein nor "Chick."

But when Neuman was murdered his brothers are alleged to have come here and beaten up "Chick" as the killer. "Chick," however, is said to have persuaded the Neumans that Reinstein, who had fled to Boston, did the job.

According to information from Boston the Neumans had a room next to the one in the hotel occupied by Reinstein when he was killed.

Among those held in Boston today was Elizabeth Martin, brought there from Easton, Pa., by Department of Justice agents. She is said to have given much information regarding the ring and its women victims.

Wheeler Asks Senate Inquiry Into Outbreak

(Associated Press.)

Immediate investigation into the labor outbreak yesterday at Marion, N. C., by the Senate manufacturers committee going to North Carolina has been proposed by Senator Wheeler, Democrat, Montana.

Chairman La Follette, of the committee, expressed doubt that the committee could go into North Carolina without an authorization by the Senate, although he looked favorably upon the suggestion.

Senator Wheeler is the author of the resolution for a Senate investigation into labor conditions in the textile industry. His resolution is before the Senate as a minority report by the manufacturers committee with little prospect for consideration at this session.

U. S. SEEKS TO TRY VIRKKULA'S SLAYER

Writ, Giving Jurisdiction to the Federal Courts, Is Issued.

BONDS OF $5,000 STAND

International Falls, Minn., Oct. 2 (A.P.).—The Federal Government today took steps to assume jurisdiction in the case of Emmett J. White, border patrolman, charged with second degree murder for shooting and killing Gust Henry Virkkula last June.

White shot and killed Virkkula when the latter failed to stop his automobile promptly when asked to do so by customs patrolmen.

White was indicted by the county grand jury here yesterday and was to have been arraigned here today. The arraignment was postponed, however, when county authorities were advised that the Federal District Court at St. Paul had issued a writ of habeas corpus transferring the jurisdiction of the case from State to Federal courts.

The writ was signed by Federal Judge John B. Sanborn at St. Paul on application of Lewis L. Dull, United States district attorney for Minnesota. It is returnable in December at Duluth.

The writ was brought here late today and formally served on J. H. Drummond, of International Falls, clerk of the Koochiching County District Court. This automatically stayed all proceedings in the case until the question of jurisdiction finally is determined in Federal court at Duluth.

David Hurlburt, Koochiching County attorney, announced he would attempt to have the case tried in State courts.

In the meantime White will be out on the $5,000 bonds approved at the time of his arrest.

COPELAND TO MAKE GALLINGER INQUIRY

Urges Disinterested Supervision.

Senator Copeland said yesterday that institutions such as Gallinger—that is, institutions handling mental cases, have always interested him.

"After all," he said, "these mentally sick persons are as much the wards of the Government as an epidemic of sick babies would be. It has always seemed to me that they deserved the utmost in careful and sympathetic treatment.

"Personally I am in favor of a system whereby outside experts would make periodical visits to such an institution to examine the patients and determine whether they are ready to be released. When a doctor is always around a patient it is sometimes difficult for him to notice a change or an improvement. The result is, in my opinion, that patients sometimes are held in an institution longer than they should be."

Says Ford Is Not True Hunter of Antiques

Likes and dislikes of antique hunters were described by A. F. Arnold, veteran local merchant, before the Washington Lions Club meeting in the Hotel Mayflower yesterday.

Arnold recited a recent experience he had with Henry Ford who visited his shop. He said that Ford, while possessing the most early American antiques of any person alive, was not a true antique lover at heart because of his ability to purchase rare pieces regardless of cost. The true antique hunter searches and bargains Arnold said.

Indigestion

Immediate Relief!

What most people call indigestion is usually excess acid in the stomach. The food has soured. The instant remedy is an alkali which neutralizes acids. But don't use crude helps. Use what your doctor would advise.

The best help is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. For the 50 years since its invention it has remained standard with physicians. You will find nothing else so quick in its effect, so harmless, so efficient.

One tasteless spoonful in water neutralizes many times its volume in acid. The results are immediate, with no bad after-effects. Once you learn this fact, you will never deal with excess acid in the crude ways. Go learn—now—why this method is supreme.

Be sure to get the genuine Phillips Milk of Magnesia prescribed by physicians for 50 years in correcting excess acids, 25c and 50c a bottle—any drug store.

"Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. Registered Trade Mark of The Charles H. Phillips Chemical Company and its predecessor, Charles H. Phillips, since 1875.

A PARTY PLEDGE BROKEN.

Once more the Hoover administration and the Republican party have been beaten by the coalition of Democrats and renegade Republicans in the Senate. After having voted over Mr. Hoover's protest to attach the debenture nostrum to the farm relief bill, this coalition now forces through the Simmons amendment, which aims at the destruction of the flexible provision of the tariff law.

The ostensible excuse of the anti-Hoover Republicans for opposing the flexible provision was that it delegated tariff-making powers to the President. Senator Johnson made a point of quoting Mr. Hoover's Boston speech in which he declared that the people would never consent to the making of tariffs by a commission. But Senator Goff quickly demonstrated that Mr. Hoover was opposing the tariff plan proposed by Gov. Alfred E. Smith in his speech at Louisville a few days before, in which he advocated a tariff commission with full power to change rates. Of course Mr. Hoover was opposed to legislation by commission. In insisting upon the flexible provision he has not sought to acquire tariff-making powers for the President. He has asked for the maintenance of the plan already in effect, which, if honestly employed, would help to remove tariff inequalities and injustices.

It is now up to the House to block the coalition that has obtained control of the Senate, and which is bent upon wrecking the Republican party and the Hoover administration. The House defeated the debenture plan after a hard struggle. The defeat of the Simmons amendment is a still more difficult task. The controversy that now looms up may bring about the defeat of the tariff bill itself. The coalition exults in its victory, and will probably put forth other schemes to prevent any revision of tariff rates except those which favor agriculture.

If the coalition should succeed in this attempt to work injustice to industry and labor, and if the House should fail to defeat that attempt in conference, the tariff bill should fail. If worst comes to worst the President should veto the bill, because he can not afford to approve legislation that seeks to benefit one class of citizens by destroying the welfare of another class.

Agriculture will be the greatest sufferer if the plans of the Senate coalition should prevail. The present tariff law will remain in effect. The Republican pledge to give tariff relief to the farmers will not be kept, but the country will know why. The Republican President and the Republican party will not be held to account for party treachery. Popular vengeance, sharpened perhaps by needless adversity and unemployment, both East and West, will fall upon the betrayers.

The desire of the people in regard to tariff legislation is perfectly plain. They demand revision for the relief of agriculture and industries that are suffering from killing foreign competition. It is a fatal mistake for any combination in Congress to run counter to this popular demand, for the public will have no difficulty in identifying legislators who have played politics for their own advantage at the expense of both agriculture and industry.

IN MEMORY OF GEN. GORGAS.

The French were forced to abandon the Panama Canal project, not because of insurmountable engineering difficulties, but because the highly competent and skillful engineers and workmen they sent to the isthmus were unable to withstand the onslaught of tropical disease. The United States was able to bring the project to fruition after tropical disease had been driven from Panama. To Walter Reed belongs the credit for having discovered the medium of yellow fever transmission. To Gen. William Crawford Gorgas belongs the credit for having practically applied the Walter Reed discovery. This is the seventy-fifth anniversary of the birth of Gen. Gorgas. It is a fitting occasion to recall the achievements of the man whose ministry of science was an international boon.

Gen. Gorgas' career as a life-saver began during the Spanish-American War, when he was sent to Cuba to combat the scourge of yellow fever. When he departed, in 1902, Cuba, which had been a focus of yellow fever for more than a century, was practically free of the disease. As sanitary officer of the Panama Canal Commission he organized a comprehensive campaign against the mosquito that drove malaria and yellow fever from the isthmus. In 1914 Gen. Gorgas became Surgeon General of the Army, and during the World War he organized the system of physical examination of recruits and draftees. Under his supervision more than 7,000,000 young men were examined, from whom was drawn an army of 4,500,000. This army was characterized as the finest, physically, that ever took the field, and never before was a body of troops kept in finer physical condition through a war.

The Gorgas Memorial Institute was established to spread the gospel of the teachings of Gorgas. A Gorgas Memorial Laboratory has been established in Panama, in which a concentrated and constructive effort is being made to overcome tropical diseases. The institute and the laboratory are appropriate memorials to the great conqueror of disease.

CANADIAN BOOZE EXPORTS.

An official opinion handed down by the Canadian department of justice gives the first intimation that the American prohibitionist demand that Canada refuse clearance to shipments of liquor bound to the United States, has been given serious attention. The department holds that the Canadian government does not have the power to prohibit by regulation the export of liquor to any country wherein the importation of liquor is prohibited or restricted. "This means," says Premier King, "that any action for the prohibition of liquor export to countries where its importation is prohibited or restricted must be taken by Parliament."

The opinion will be a blow to prohibitionists, American and Canadian alike. It was not only on this side of the international boundary that the proposal found warm support. The prohibitionist element in Canada is by no means small; Canadian prohibitionists have worked hand in hand with Americans on the ground that the success of prohibition in the States would be the best possible precedent for the adoption of similar legislation in the Dominion. Canadian prohibitionists brought forward the suggestion that Canada should refuse clearance to American-bound liquor, and agitated the proposal to such an extent that the Canadian government was forced to take action. There need be no doubt that the next step will be to ask Parliament for legislation designed to give the government the authority it now lacks.

It is doubtful, however, that Parliament will adopt such legislation. In Canada, liquor is no more contraband than groceries or rope, even though its sale is strictly regulated. If the Canadian government should adopt legislation designed to regulate the exportation of liquor, it would, of course, have to accept the responsibility of enforcing such legislation. The American demand for Canadian liquor would not be lessened; bootleggers would become Canadian institutions as they have American, and the government would have on its hands an enforcement problem approaching in magnitude that of the United States. Decreased supplies would make for increased prices, accentuating the bootlegger problem.

It would be agreeable if the Canadian government could work out some system whereby the exportation of Canadian liquor to the United States could be stopped. The American people would recognize such action as an instance of international cooperation of the finest sort. But the United States has no right to expect Canada to fasten on its shoulders a yoke of prohibition enforcement. Prohibition is American, not Canadian law; it will have to be supported by American tax dollars, not Canadian.

BUYING FROM ABROAD.

An article by Theodore M. Knappen in the Magazine of Wall Street asks the interesting question, "Is America Self-Sufficient?" The author observes that the country was once "established on a self-contained economy that could have gone on forever," but he refers to the Indian era. During and following the Revolutionary War America was almost self-sufficient, but in that day the same thing could be said of the average family. The advance of civilization has brought new demands that can only be supplied by other lands. Of course, the question can have but one answer. No advanced nation of the world is economically independent.

"We could not maintain our present population with the simplest sort of living standards and we could not exist at all, according to our present standards, if we were cut off from the rest of the world," Mr. Knappen writes. "Yet taking our foodstuffs and raw materials into a composite consideration with our manufacturing ability and capacity, we are nearer to economic independence than any other great nation."

There is ample evidence to support this view. At present the United States is producing a surplus of foodstuffs. This country has far more capital than any other nation. Manufacturing has grown to the extent that few of the necessities of life are not made here, and there is ample power and labor in America to permit much greater and more varied production.

The United States has attained this position under a policy of tariff protection, and its future economic independence is contingent upon continuance of that policy. A popular error is that tariffs will be abandoned when the nations become more interdependent economically. Experience tends to discredit any such theory. For several decades the commerce of the world has been rapidly increasing and last year it reached a new high mark. At the same time tariffs have been growing higher and higher. The only tenable conclusion seems to be that a protective tariff enables each country to maintain its own standard of living; to work out its own economical destiny, and at the same time by promoting prosperity enables the people to buy foreign goods. If each country maintains its protective tariff the tendency will be toward higher standards of living. It is axiomatic that a wealthy nation always becomes a heavy importer, especially of luxuries, from other lands.

When prosperity prevails, the demand for foreign goods will continue strong, but if the foundation of prosperity, the protective tariff, is removed, this demand will immediately diminish. The tariff, by sustaining prosperity, is a potent factor in stimulating the demand for foreign goods. This is proved by the steady increase in imports.

AIR TRAGEDIES.

The Department of Commerce will not make public the details of its investigation and findings in the case of the airliner City of San Francisco. The catastrophe was the worst that has befallen American commercial aeronautics. It shook the confidence of the people in the safety of air travel. A full and frank discussion of its causes, together with the fixation of responsibility, would do much to counterbalance the bad effects of the accident. But, under existing legislation, the Department of Commerce has no authority to make its reports public.

The Senate is flirting with the idea of authorizing a committee investigation of the tragedy. Senator Bratton has introduced a resolution to this end, which, only because of the militant opposition of Senator Bingham and a few others, has not been acted upon. Modification of the law so as to permit publication of the department's findings would be more helpful than a Senate investigation.

Secretary of Commerce Lamont, in this connection, says: "The aviation field constantly is changing and it may be that in time it will be wise for us to revise our method of investigation and place it on a different basis. I am sure that the present method was better adapted to dealing with air accidents when aviation was a much smaller industry than it now is."

The time already has arrived when such revision would be wise. The accident reports of the Interstate Commerce Commission, privileged under the law, have aided materially in promoting safety of rail travel. Similar reports by the Department of Commerce, if they were privileged, would promote materially the safety of commercial aeronautics. It is not fair to the public to conceal the causes of transportation accidents.

THE STRUGGLE FOR OIL

By DREW PEARSON,
In the Baltimore Sun.

It was nearly one year after the armistice that the State Department woke up to the march which the British had stolen in monopolizing the oil resources of the world, and on August 16, 1919, issued a circular letter to all American consuls and diplomats informing them that "the vital importance of securing adequate supplies of mineral oil both for the present and future needs has been forcibly brought to the attention of the department."

Then ensued a series of notes to Great Britain during which Charles Evans Hughes claimed that American oil prospectors had a right to enter Palestine and Burma. Although he finally won his point in the mandated territory of Palestine, American oil companies have never been allowed to enter India or any part of the British empire.

Meanwhile, the British had become intrenched in Roumania, in Mesopotamia, in Venezuela and in the Caribbean areas around the Panama Canal. Only in Mexico did American oil activity surpass the British and this advantage was offset by the Mexican government's policy of government restriction on foreign oil companies.

The war was waged under the direct guidance of the British government. A cabinet petroleum imperial policy commission was formed, and it was arranged that during any national emergency the powerful Dutch-Shell Co. should be taken over by the government.

The British government even organized its own company, Anglo-Persian, which has the largest interest in the rich Mosul area, and which two years ago tried to obtain a concession paralleling the Panama Canal in Colombia, where no known oil deposits existed.

Meanwhile the Coolidge conservation board reported in 1926 that there was "theoretically but six years' supply" of oil left in the United States.

This was being drained not only by the cut-throat competition of American companies, but also by the very British companies whose government barred American oil exploitation in Burma and other British oil fields.

The 1926 annual report of the Dutch-Shell Co. showed that 35 per cent of its total world production was drained from the United States. According to the report of the Federal Trade Commission in 1927, the Dutch-Shell, with its subsidiaries, led all other companies in production in the United States in 1924 and 1925 and was third in 1926.

This caused an investigation by the Navy Department, during which Rear Admiral H. H. Rousseau, chief of the naval oil office, testified in 1928 that a British company was even permitted to drain oil from one naval reserve to the tune of about 250,000 and 300,000 barrels per month.

Within the last year, however, the intensity of the oil war has decreased. The State Department forced a compromise with the Dutch government by which American oil companies may drill in Java, and in return Dutch companies have the same rights as American corporations to drill on Government oil lands of the United States.

A truce between Standard and Royal Dutch-Shell has been patched up in Russia, and there have been various negotiations for a world-wide truce.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

GENIUS.

A skylark in a bygone day
Mounted the sky
Singing its long familiar lay,
And passing by
Went men and women up and down
With hearts unstirred.
Theirs was the business of the town
But Shelley heard.

The air had borne those liquid notes
For ages long.
From countless million golden throats
Had poured that song.
And still the people sold and bought
And toiled for fame.
'Tis but a bird that sings, they thought,
Till Shelley came.

Enraptured by that lovely thing
And touched with pain,
With every nerve set quivering
Like leaves in rain,
He stood the while the twilight rang
With chords divine,
And caught the song the skylark sang
In deathless line.

Who knows what beauty and what grace
Are hidden still.
Buried among the commonplace
Of mart and mill,
Waiting with patience through the years,
As did the lark,
Until the genius appears
Their cherms to mark?

The Tighter You Pack Your Dynamite, the More Earth It Shatters.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

You can't oppose nature without paying a penalty. That is so obviously true and so easily demonstrable that it seems scarcely worth saying, and yet there are thousands of people who multiply their sorrows and increase their difficulties by failing to take account of it.

In the effort to protect and preserve her creatures, nature endowed them with the instinct to resent an injury. And since a mere feeling of resentment would afford them no protection she coupled with it an impulse to retaliate or protest.

Even the worm turns, however hopelessly; and every other creature that is threatened or injured will hiss or snarl or strike in quick displeasure.

The natural man reacts as other creatures do. He may use a weapon or his fists, or be content to growl or glare, or exalt himself and discredit his enemy by returning good for evil; but whatever form his reaction may take, resent the injury he must if he would keep his health.

When nature equipped man to resent injury, she also equipped him to make his resentment effective. His adrenal glands, prompted by resentment, function instantly to provide a powerful stimulant and give him multiplied strength for the emergency.

Fight, struggle, scold or talk and all is well. The stimulant is consumed. But oppose nature and by an effort of will accept the injury in silent marytrdom and there is the devil to pay.

Suppress anything in violation of nature and explosion follows. Steam shatters the boiler; a people runs wild in revolution; empounded water floods a valley.

Suppress resentment and the result is similar. Not only is the body poisoned, but reason itself is affected. Those who suffer too long in silence go mad and say it with an ax.

Suffering in silence is not a virtue. It is the greatest of follies. It prompts the most bitter and most vindictive meditations. The poisoned mind feeds on self pity and loses the capacity to reason. The ultimate result is a "nervous breakdown" or violent insanity.

When you feel resentment, be natural. Do something to consume the poison of it. If you can't fight, let your tongue wag. Talk sweetly if you can, but talk. To remain inactive and silent is to close the safety valve and invite disaster.

When the frost is on the pumpkin and the fodder's in the shock
And you hear the truckmen moving ten and twenty to the block,
And the crashin' of the mirrors and the breakin' of the chairs
And the thumpin of a barrel filled with dishes down the stairs,
Oh, it's then the time a feller is a-feelin' glum and sour
With the moving men a-stallin' and the bill ten bucks an hour,
As he leaves the house and gazes at his battered household stock,
When the frost is on the pumpkin and the tenant's on the rock.

NEW SHADES FOR MEN.

Paris is now being urged as the center of men's fashions, as it is for women's, according to the New York Sun. A number of interested persons have been trying to influence the garb of men toward brighter colors. It is probably due to their efforts that men's hats in pastel shades recently have won the recognition they have achieved. A reform in men's underwear has also illuminated shop windows on this side of the Atlantic. The drab, neutral colors that draped the limbs like a circus tent have given way to snappy, neat-fitting garments in two tones or stripes.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

"Flosin" Is an Irish Free State Coin, and Ireland Ought to Make More Money, Especially From Tourists to That Exquisite Country.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In your otherwise excellent cross-word puzzle of October 1, "florin" is defined as a "former British coin." I hold in my hand a two-shilling piece of the Irish Free State, bearing on one side a harp and on the other a fish, one of the series of Hibernian products which decorate the several denominations. The name of the coin is in Gaelic, but this is one of the Gaelic words spelt with letters like enough to English for easy legibility by those who do not understand Gaelic. It is "florin." And the reason the piece is a florin is that in adopting coinage of its own, the new Free State to avoid confusion in trade, kept the English denominations—farthing, ha'pence, penny, thrippence, sixpence, shilling (the Irish bull), florin and half-crown.

English and Free State coins pass side by side in Ireland. If I pay for something my change is quite likely to be Free State and English mixed; and if it includes an English two-shilling piece, the word "florin" appears, though the coin was minted yesterday. So the florin is not a former but a current British, that is, English, coin.

Somebody told me the Irish coins were minted in the United States. Inquiry brings from the superintendent of our Philadelphia mint the fact that while the Secretary of State can and does sanction the minting, at cost, of coins for other governments which furnish the metal, those thus amicably obliged are mainly in South America, and it is understood the Irish Free State money is produced at the Royal Mint, just beyond the Tower of London, and open to visitors who may like to see Ireland, after centuries of poverty, making money at last.

Money-making may also be seen beginning in Ireland itself, though not so much as we may hope will be made, especially from tourists, when it becomes more widely known how peacefully and pleasantly these days one can see that exquisite country, which more nearly fulfils the promise than any other I ever did see.

Traffic Lights Do Not Regulate Heavy Traffic—Officers Compelled to Let Traffic Through the Red.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Washington has too many intersections controlled by traffic lights that do not govern traffic properly during rush hours. The lights were installed for the purpose of controlling rush hour traffic, because between midnight and 7 a. m. the lights are not on.

Mr. Eno is of the opinion that the lights can not compare in efficiency with a traffic officer. Conditions in the rush hours proved that Mr. Eno is correct. At the intersections where traffic is heavy a traffic officer is required in addition to traffic lights in order to prevent traffic snarls. When a jam occurs at an intersection controlled by lights it is sometimes two to five minutes before traffic starts flowing naturally, whereas, if there is an officer present he will see to it that no jam occurs at all if he is a proficient traffic officer.

At Fourteenth and Monroe streets a traffic officer is needed in order to prevent a terrible congestion of traffic. The lights flicker red-amber to green-amber, but they are totally useless, as the officer lets street cars and automobiles pass on the red lights as well as on the green light, depending upon the amount of traffic. The lights might as well have been turned off for all the good they did. Such conditions occur all over the city when traffic is heavy. No more lights should be installed at any intersections in the city.

Hyattsville Citizen Protests Against Abolishing Police Office.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: It has been reported that the mayor and common council of Hyattsville has voted to abolish the office of chief of police, and thereby have removed from office Chief Carl M. Blanchard. Economy has been pleaded as the reason for the change.

Without questioning the good faith of our town fathers, the change does not appear to be in keeping with the progressive and modern community in which we live. It is said that the mayor and council desire to revert back to the old days when the police officer was called a bailiff with limited powers and duties. The specifications for the new man are prescribed as an officer without a uniform, one who would be required to be a janitor to the Municipal Building and who would be stationed in the Fire Department and not do any considerable amount of street patroling. Obviously, such a plan is:

First, poor economy; second, poor protection to the citizens and homes of our community.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Wall street has become inflated while the public has been deflated—not enough money in the country to feed the big hogs and little ones at the same time. To restore prosperity again the little hogs must have more inflation and stop the big hogs from eating up what belongs to the public.

Coxey may be a crank, but he has a plan not bad for the people. Eight billions of money in circulation is not enough when one group of banks in New York has three billion five hundred million. No wonder the country is on the hog.

Invitations Out To President's Formal Dinner

Banquet Honoring Prime Minister Will Open Winter Events.

By JEAN ELIOT.

THE President and Mrs. Hoover yesterday sent out invitations for their dinner in honor of Mr. Ramsay MacDonald, prime minister of Great Britain, which will be held at the White House next Monday evening. This will be the first of the formal official festivities for the visitor, who will arrive tomorrow. But meanwhile the President and the premier are to have opportunity for informal, but highly significant discussions, while Mr. MacDonald and his daughter are guests of the President and Mrs. Hoover.

By some curious twist of official program making, Mr. MacDonald will "return some of the hospitality showered upon him" in advance, entertaining at luncheon on Saturday at the British Embassy, the British Ambassador, Sir Esme Howard, relinquishing the role of host for that occasion. Vice President Curtis is to be the ranking guest.

Presumably the White House invitations went to an official group, as the custom of thus limiting guests asked to a dinner for a foreign dignitary has persisted through many administrations. The usual cards crowned with the White House crest were used with the usual phrasing "The President and Mrs. Hoover request the honor the company of ——— for dinner." No honor guest was named —again in accordance with White House precedent.

Invitations for the British Ambassador and Lady Isabella Howard's dinner on October 8 were received some time ago, with "To meet the prime minister of Great Britain" written in, a similar form being used in the invitations for the luncheon which the minister of Canada and Mrs. Massey are giving the same day. Miss Ishbel MacDonald's name is not mentioned, though she will share honors with her father at these two festivities, as well as at the White House dinner.

For the reception which is to follow the British Embassy dinner and to which a large company of guests, official and unofficial, has been asked, the cards are rather informal in character. Lady Isabella Howard's regular "at home" invitations have been used, with "The British Ambassador and" written in before her name. In one corner appears the word "Decorations"—to give a hint of the brilliance and color which will mark the fete.

Apropos of cards, Senator and Mrs. David A. Reed have introduced something which would seem to be new to Washington. On their return from Hot Springs a few days ago, they sent to their friends here and elsewhere small engraved cards bearing the inscription:

"Mr. and Mrs. David A. Reed have moved from 1706 Eighteenth street northwest. Address after September 15, 1904 R street northwest. Telephone North 2417."

For the benefit of newcomers—and Washington is full of them—who are not familiar with formal official phraseology, it may be proper to call attention to the fact that senatorial folk speak or write of themselves as "Mr. and Mrs. ——," but of their colleagues as "Senator and Mrs. ——."

With a merry game of pussy-wants-a-corner now going on in Washington, many people moving, it would seem that it would be something of a boon if Senator and Mrs. Reed's idea were generally taken up.

100 Engineers To Call Today On President

Japanese Ambassador Is Host to Group; En Route to Tokyo.

President Hoover, who first won international fame as an engineer, will receive today a group of 100 distinguished men—and a few women—who are on their way to Tokyo to attend the world congress of engineers to be held there. A dozen countries are represented in the group.

The Japanese Ambassador and Mme. Debuchi entertained at dinner last night for the delegation and had as guests to meet them an official group and a number of distinguished scientists. There were 130 in the party, which was given at the Mayflower.

Among the distinguished foreigners present were Dr. Stanislav Spacek, of Czechoslovakia; Senator Luigi Liugga, of Italy, and Prof. E. H. C. Matschoss, director of the Brotherhood of Railroad Engineers. Mrs. Lillian M. Gilbreth, of Montclair, N. J., outstanding for her work as an efficiency engineer both within and without the home, was also present.

In the group of Washingtonians going to Tokyo are Lieut. Gen. Edgar Jadwin, formerly chief of engineers of the Army, and Mrs. Jadwin. Washington representation at the dinner included Mr. Nelson T. Johnson, Assistant Secretary of State; Dr. and Mrs. Vernon Kellogg, Dr. George Otis Smith, director of the Geological Survey; Dr. George K. Burgess, director of the Bureau of Standards, and Mrs. Burgess, and many others.

Today the visitors, divided into groups, will make sight-seeing trips around the city and to Mount Vernon. They will leave this afternoon for San Francisco, whence they are to sail on October 10 for Japan.

After attaining considerable success on the legitimate stage, Juliette Crosby, in private life Mrs. Arthur Hornblow, jr., will make her screen debut in Philip Barry's "Paris Bound," which made a hit last year on the stage and will be shown in its film version at the Rialto beginning Saturday. The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Oscar T. Crosby, Mrs. Hornblow was a belle here in her girlhood.

Mr. Crosby served as Assistant Secretary of the Treasury during the Wilson administration and, with Mrs. Crosby, now makes his home near Warrenton, Va., at their beautiful place, View Tree. Their youngest daughter, Miss Celeste Crosby, was married last April to Mr. Ralph Miller, of New York, and is now living in Buenos Aires, where the latter is vice consul.

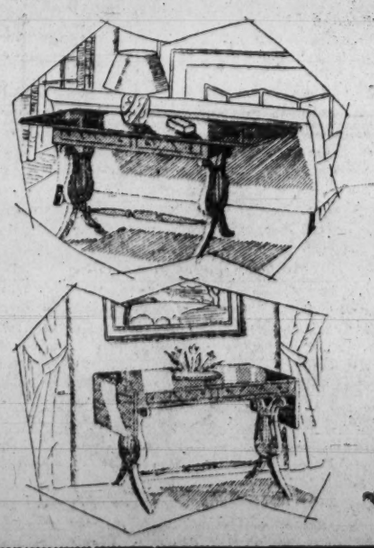
A Table does many things for
Duncan Phyfe


Ever since the year 1800 Duncan Phyfe's tables have been singing his praises. Today, just as in America's earliest days, they achieve the distinctive things in life—dignity, beauty and usefulness. The fine old reproduction sketched is of solid mahogany. It lives graciously in one's boudoir as a lovely dressing table, in one's library as a sofa table, and in one's dining room as a server. $125.

Behind the Screens

With NELSON B. BELL

YEARS ago after he had spent an entire Sabbath afternoon sitting through two performances of his own screen version of "The Poor Relation," one of the late Sol Smith Russell's resounding stage hits, at the Metropolitan, Will Rogers and I spent an hour or so in a friendly, but futile, discussion of why, with such excellent vehicles as he had had, he was still, comparatively speaking, a complete washout at the motion picture box offices. Having been privileged to preview "They Had to See Paris," coming to the Fox Theater Saturday, I now know what the trouble was, and so, probably, does he. He needed his voice.

In "They Had to See Paris," his first all-talking picture for Fox, Rogers, if anything, is better than he has ever been on the stage. I mean to say that never, since his first appearance here throwing ropes from the back of a broncho at the old Chase Theater, now Poli's, have I seen him in so splendidly sustained a characterization as he offers in the role of Pike Peters, garage mechanic, suddenly turned oil millionaire and dragged off to the French capital for the broadening of his viewpoint, the improvement of his social contacts and the depletion of his bank account.

He is incessantly and unfailingly amusing—not with the shallow wit of street corner wise-crackery, but with a pungent and penetrating satirical humor such as has made him a national figure not only on the boards but in print. He even bursts into song on occasion, inspired to this rare departure from his accustomed activities by the ebullient presence of Fifi Dorsay, a dangerously high-voltage composite of Lily Damita and Lupe Velez, who shares feminine honors with Irene Rich, in one of her most adroit portrayals, and Marguerite Churchill, whom I like immensely as Pike's ambitious daughter, despite the fact that I deemed her merely a Friday afternoon grammar school elocutionist in "The Valiant."

Translated into the vernacular of the world series, I should say that "They Had to See Paris" is a home run over the center-field fence, to be scored as one of the longest hits of the season.

If you entertain any contrary view, Rogers will talk you out of it when you see and hear him!

There may have been more to those August telegrams from Mark Luescher about the reopening of the local B. F. Keith Theater this month with one of RKO's most pretentious offerings than for a long time seemed apparent. While still dodging the tax collector a few days ago, I noticed in passing the Fifteenth street house on the run that ladders, dropcloths and paint buckets cluttered the lobby. If the theater is not being readied for an early opening, some one certainly is wasting a lot of electric light and doing a good deal of superfluous shadow boxing. October 19, I believe, will be the date. Watch. The opening bill will be Betty Compson in "The Street Girl," to be followed by Bebe Daniels in "Rio Rita."

Invitations are out for the official screening of Columbia Pictures Corporation's latest, and said to be greatest, production, "Flight," at Loew's Palace Sunday morning, October 6, at 11 o'clock. That's much earlier for Sunday than 9 a. m. was for Monday—but I will if I can, mister; I will if I can.

As exclusively announced in this column on Tuesday, the Rialto Theater is on the way with a new group of fine pictures and a long season. Ann Harding in "Paris Bound," next week's attraction, has been flatteringly reviewed by all of New York's most trustworthy critics on the strength of preview showings, and is confidently expected to meet with the same hearty indorsement here.

Roger Ferri, of the New York home office of Fox, was a recent Washington visitor, and Hardie Meakin, with his customary alertness for strict observance of the reciprocal amenities spent yesterday in Gotham.

And that the record may be complete when you paste the slip in your hat, next week's bookings are as follows: Columbia, "The Hollywood Revue," with more stars to the square reel than you can shake a stick at; Fox, Will Rogers, Irene Rich, Fifi Dorsay and Marguerite Churchill in his first all-talkie, "They Had to See Paris;" Rialto, Ann Harding in "Paris Bound;" Earle, Evelyn Brent, Jack Oakie and "Skeets" Gallagher in "Fast Company," by Ring Lardner; Palace, John Gilbert and Katherine Dale Owen in "His Glorious Night," his first all-talking picture; Metropolitan a third rousing week of "Gold Diggers of Broadway," in natural colors one of the best of the gelatine entertainments; Little, "Secrets of Nature," a unique UFA production.

I should say, hot off the bat, that you can't go wrong, no matter where you turn in next week. All smart celluloids.

Anyhow, this beats being in charge of the homicide squad!

English newspapers of Peiping, which overflowed with details of Mrs. Wilson's visit, also brought news of other favorites of Washington. Capt. and Mrs. Halsey Powell and Commander and Mrs. Charles C. Hartigan. Capt. Powell, who had been serving as naval attache of the United States legation, was then just about leaving—September 7 being his actual date of departure—to assume command of the U. S. S. Pittsburgh, flagship of the Asiatic fleet. Commander Hartigan had just arrived to take his place.

The Hartigans were staying with Capt. and Mrs. Powell and the latter gave a reception for their guests to introduce them to the American colony in Peiping. The Powells were extremely popular at their post and widespread regret was expressed at their going, or ather at Capt. Powell's departure, for Mrs. Powell is to stay in Peiping through the winter.

Commander and Mrs. Hartigan have with them in Peiping their son and daughter, Mr. Conway Hartigan and Miss Margaret Hartigan. Both the Hartigans and the Powells have been stationed in Washington from time to time. Commander Hartigan had been on duty aboard the Pittsburgh before being detailed to the legation.

TWO OF 23 ARE WOMEN

Two women are among the 23 grand jurors who were sworn in for the fall term of the District of Columbia Supreme Court before Justice Peyton Gordon yesterday.

The new grand jury is expected to be kept as busy as was the one that went out Monday after returning a report criticising the United States Attorney's office and two members of the police force for the manner in which they conducted the investigation into the death of Mrs. Virginia McPherson.

At least two senators—Robert B. Howell (Republican), Nebraska, and Smith W. Brookhart (Republican), Iowa—are scheduled to be invited to appear before the grand jury and tell what they know about liquor conditions in the Capital. Brookhart also is slated to tell the body about a party at a local hotel which was attended by a number of senators and at which, he states, liquor was served.

Buck Case to Be Aired.

Conspiracy charges against a number of persons who are alleged to have operated numbers games and charges against B. R. Buck, president of the stock brokerage firm of Buck & Co., are believed to be among the first matters to be presented to the grand jury.

He recently was shifted from the Police Court to take charge of the grand jury and Assistant United States Attorney Charles B. Managua, Nicaragua, Oct. 2 (A.P.).—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh came here from Panama today to pay his fourth visit to the capital of Nicaragua. His wife, the former Anne Morrow, will have the benefit of his experience on this her first visit.

The landing was made at 3:30 p.m. (local time) after an uneventful trip from the Canal Zone, with a stop at David, Panama, during which their plane was in constant radio contact with the station here. Col. Lindbergh has requested no entertainments or receptions during his stay, which will extend over Thursday.

ENRIGHT INDORSES ROTHSTEIN INQUIRY

Mayoralty Candidate Says New York Offices Should Be Investigated.

M'MANUS CASE DELAYED

New York, Oct. 2 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Richard E. Enright, Square Deal candidate for mayor, enthusiastically approved today of the legislative investigation of the handling of the Rothstein case promised by Senator John Knight, Republican leader of the State Senate, if some other "authoritative body" does not make an investigation before the legislature convenes in January.

Enright's only criticism was that Senator Knight did not think in large enough terms. The investigation, he said, should cover the police department, the district attorney's office, the sheriff's office, the street cleaning department and other city departments.

Fiorella H. LaGuardia, Republican candidate for mayor, thought a legislative investigation superfluous.

"By the time the legislature convenes," he said, "I'll be mayor."

LaGuardia escaped being examined himself in the Rothstein case tonight by virtue of a decision of Surrogate James A. Foley, one of Tammany's inner circle.

Surrogate Foley refused to issue a subpena for LaGuardia. The law, he said, did not authorize "discovery proceedings" in the surrogate's courts for the purpose of obtaining information about debts.

Just before James D. C. Murray, McManus' attorney, entered the courtroom today, he said he was ready to go ahead. He had no sooner got before General Sessions Judge Max Levine than a court attendant called him into the hall.

When he came back, he asked for a 24-hour adjournment to supply "supplemental affidavits." Chief Assistant District Attorney Pecora protested in vain.

Murray's request was granted. It at once gave rise to the report that he would ask a change of venue, but he refused to discuss this possibility.

Two motions were to have been debated—the district attorney's to have a special panel of 100 talesmen, and Mr. Murray's to be furnished with a bill of particulars.

Banton refused to say what he told the grand jury during the few minutes he was before it. He said, however, that he had 150 witnesses in the case, and that 83 had been before the grand jury. He was doubtful that the identities of John Doe and Richard Roe would be revealed during the trial.

Enright refused today again to affirm or deny that he believes the murder was committed by a man named "Heinie Martense," or that he is going to produce Heinie at the psychological moment to confound Banton and Commissioner Whalen.

Sound and Light Are Put to Work

Brother of Televox Shows His Accomplishments at Banquet.

Cleveland, Ohio, Oct. 2 (A.P.).—Sound and light were transformed into mechanical action at the banquet of the National Machine Tool Exposition here tonight to illustrate their possibilities in regulating traffic, aiding the aviator and performing other automatic functions.

A beam of light was thrown on the "eyes" of a mechanical contrivance known as the "telelux," a brother of the "televox" and as the light was thrown on and off it performed mechanical functions such as turning an electric switch. The contrivance was developed by the Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Co.

S. M. Kintner, manager of the company's research department, who made the demonstration, also threw music across the room on a beam of light, and light was utilized in depicting the shape and direction of stresses in mechanical materials.

Mrs. Colby Files Suit for Divorce

Wife of Former Secretary of State Accuses Him of Desertion.

Reno, Nev., Oct. 2 (A.P.).—The much-awaited divorce suit of Nathalie Sedgwick Colby against Bainbridge Colby, Secretary of State in the Wilson Cabinet, and former member of the United States Shipping Board and Emergency Fleet Corporation, was filed here late today.

Mrs. Colby, author of "A Man Can Build a House," and other books, sets forth in her complaint that they married at Stockbridge, Mass., June 20, 1895, and have three children, all of age. She then sets up that Colby deserted her in New York on March 20, 1923. He returned to his home there only once, the complaint says, in June, 1924, when he remained only four days.

The complaint says nothing relative to the efforts of the Colbys to obtain a divorce in Paris. A property settlement has been effected between the couple, but the terms will not be brought into the case, it was said today by Mrs. Colby's counsel.

An answer is expected to be filed before the end of the week and trial of the case is looked for next Monday. Colby is understood to be in Paris.

RICHARD J. MURPHY becomes Washington Distributor for Reo Flying Clouds and Reo Speed Wagons

The car seeks . . . and finds . . . the man!

THERE is an old saying that the office should seek the man—and not the man the office. In the belief that this principle also applies to motor vehicles, the Reo Motor Car Company is happy to announce that, effective October 1, Reo Flying Clouds and Reo Speed Wagons will be distributed and serviced by 'Dick' Murphy, Inc., Richard J. Murphy, president.

This new association is, in every way, a fitting one.

Since its start, 25 years ago, Reo has stood out among motor vehicles for its remarkable long life and its no less remarkable performance and all-round satisfaction. Reo is good for 100,000 miles—the car you will enjoy driving, and be proud to drive, for a full 100,000 miles—the speed wagon you will be proud to have identified with your business for a like distance.

For its part, Dick Murphy, Inc., has under the energizing influence of its president, won an enviable name among the people of Washington and among automobile distributors throughout the country for fair dealing, for courtesy and for service. In every sense of the word, the initials D. M. stand for "Dependable Motorcars."

In all sincerity, it may be said that the motoring public can well congratulate themselves upon the union of the two slogans, "Dependable Motorcars" and "Reo—Good for 100,000 miles."

MILLER SHOE SHOP OPENS IN F STREET

Nationally Known Chain Is Latest to Join Retail Footgear Circle.

STORE CATERS TO WOMEN

Washington's group of exclusive shops today welcomes an addition, the I. Miller women's shoe and hosiery store at 1222 F street northwest.

Doors of this nationally known establishment are to be thrown open to the public of the Capital at 9 o'clock this morning with a force of thoroughly trained Washington clerks ready to render service of the highest class to every customer.

Already established in New York, Chicago, Philadelphia, Atlantic City, Hollywood, Los Angeles and Baltimore, the I. Miller shoe stores need no introduction to the particular public which they serve. Decision to open a store in Washington was reached by the company's executives some time ago because they felt that persons living in other cities who often visit the Capital would appreciate the opportunity of buying Miller shoes while here, and because they anticipated making many new friends for Miller shoes among the residents of the Capital.

I. Miller began his business more than 30 years ago in New York, making shoes for women appearing in stage productions there. In a short time demand for his shoes spread to others than stage folks and the result was retail stores and a factory to make shoes only for women. This was followed by a factory to make bags in which the shoes could be easily carried and later by a factory to manufacture hosiery.

All three articles will be sold in the new Washington store opening today. David Kahn is the manager of the establishment.

Miller shoes will be offered in an attractive setting, for the store is decorated in French walnut with a reception room just inside the door, a grand salon next and then a salesroom with the cashier's office in the rear. The second and third floors of the building are utilized by the company for offices and a storeroom. The place was designed by L. H. Friedland, New York architect.

COOPERATION URGED AT BANKERS' PARLEY

Currency Comptroller Voices Administration's Ideas for Branches.

J. H. LONSDALE ELECTED

San Francisco, Oct. 2 (A.P.).—America's financiers, assembled at the convention of the American Bankers' Association here today, heard Comptroller of the Currency J. W. Pole outline proposals for the further concentration of the Nation's wealth into branch banking systems.

His address, taken as typical of the attitude of President Hoover's administration, told of heavy casualties suffered by national bank forces during recent years, despite general business prosperity, and proposed protection of the survivors by permitting the national banks to acquire branches, thus securing the business advantages of large-scale operations.

The second general session of the convention heard a series of addresses on group banking and received a brief salutation from Gov. C. C. Young of California.

New Officers Are Elected.

J. G. Lonsdale, of St. Louis, was elected president; R. C. Stephenson, South Bend, Ind., first vice president, and H. J. Haas, Philadelphia, second vice president. The newly elected officers will be installed tomorrow.

Group banking is growing in the Northwest, independently of the great city banks, T. O. Hammond, of Helena, Mont., told the bankers. He said industrial leaders in his area wanted to develop free from control by distant money powers.

Business in the afternoon was confined to sectional meetings.

President S. J. High, of the State bank division, in his annual report, declared that standards for State bank commissioners were definitely improving. The report was read by Dan V. Stephens, of Fremont, Neb., in the absence, due to illness, of President High.

State Supervision Topic.

High, who is president of a bank in Tupelo, Miss., said the division's survey of conditions under which State bank commissioners work revealed a definite trend toward adoption of policies the division advocates, including lengthening tenure of office, elimination of political influences, sufficient compensation and discretionary powers to attract high-class men to the office and an adequate staff of trained examiners.

Bank failures were blamed by S. L. Kantley, commissioner of finance of the State of Missouri, on the lack of organized cooperation which he said was "elemental in conducting any commercial business."

"Without it chaos will result," he said. "It is not my purpose to go into detail. The clearing house section of the American Bankers Association has circularized banks all over the country with plans for well-defined coperation through organizations that are effective in making for better banking."

More Branch Banking Urged.

Extension of branch banking by national banks was advocated by Comptroller Pole, who urged revision of existing law to make this possible.

He suggested that national banks be permitted to establish branches within their Federal Reserve districts or within areas prescribed by Congress. This, he asserted, would make the national banking system more attractive to State banks and cure what he described as a fundamental weakness in the country's banking system.

The Comptroller said such an extension, however, must be made under adequate safeguards, such as intensified Government supervision and the requirement of parent banks to be capitalized sufficiently to meet the responsibility of its branches. Further, he added, the Comptroller should have authority over establishment and removal of branches.

Pole reviewed the growth of group banking, through which large financial corporations control many small banks. This form of banking, he said, had grown without authority of law in recent years until it might eventually displace the present system of country unit banks, and he offered his branch banking plan as an alternative. Group banking, the Comptroller said, is more cumbersome and expensive than branch banking, but is the only way under the national banking laws that large metropolitan banking groups can extend their services to country districts.

Many Failures Cited.

Pole told the bankers that figures available for the first eight months of 1929 show that 52 national banks and 403 State banks failed, a condition that in a year of business stagnation and financial depression might have caused concern.

The Comptroller said he had given long and careful thought to the question of branch banking by members of the national bank system, now allowed to establish branches only in the city in which they are located and in foreign countries.

"It is for Congress ultimately to fix the boundaries of these districts; but Congress, of course, would not and could not attempt to do so prior to careful consideration and study of all of the factors, which could only be carried on by a committee of qualified experts," he said. "Would we not be making real progress if at the coming session the Congress were to instruct, let us say, the Secretary of the Treasury, the governor of the Federal Reserve Board and the Comptroller of the Currency to study the banking situation and to report the boundaries which they would recommend that the Congress set up establishing such definite areas?"

Skull Fractured in Fall.

Frank McConnell, 25 years old, of 1224 B street southwest, received a fracture of the skull yesterday when he fell to the pavement in front of his residence. He was removed to Emergency Hospital, where he was reported in a possibly serious condition.

NATION'S DENTISTS PLAN CONVENTIONS

Several Interrelated Groups Prepare to Open Series of Meetings Today.

MOVIES AND FIREWORKS

Preceding the annual convention of the American Dental Association, which opens in Washington Monday, the American Academy of Periodontology today will begin a three-day session at which officers of the Academy will be elected and other business transacted. It is expected there will be 15,000 delegates at the association gathering.

Preparations for the various meetings were outlined last night at a meeting of the local arrangements committee of the District of Columbia Dental Society with Dr. Percy Howe, of Boston, president of the American Dental Association; Dr. Harry Pinney, of Chicago, secretary, and Dr. Boyd Bogle, of Nashville, president-elect. The national officers arrived in the Capital yesterday and conferred with the committee at the Burlington Hotel.

In addition to the meeting of the Academy of Periodontology, which opens today, the American Academy of Restorative Dentistry will meet today, the Society of Oral Surgeons tomorrow, and the Board of Dental Examiners on Saturday.

Pictures for Children.

While the sessions of the American Dental Association are being held next week, there will be motion pictures on mouth hygiene shown at the Washington Auditorium Monday, Wednesday and Thursday for public school children and on Tuesday for parochial school children. Pictures will be shown each day at 2 o'clock.

According to Dr. C. Willard Camalier, chairman of the local committee on arrangements, the high spot of the American Dental Association convention will be Tuesday evening's program, which includes a dinner at Continental Hall, at which Vice President Charles Curtis, Secretary of the Interior Ray Lyman Wilbur and the three surgeon generals will be speakers, followed by a mammoth display of fireworks on the grounds of the Washington Monument.

Academy Small Section.

The American Academy of Periodontology, which meets today, is a comparatively small section of the American Dental Association, yet its work is of the utmost importance in the general improvement of dentistry.

Organized about 17 years ago, the academy is the result of untiring efforts on the part of the late Dr. Gillette Hayden, of Columbus, Ohio; Dr. Grace Rogers Spaulding, of Birmingham, Mich.; Dr. T. McCall, of New York and Dr. Austin James, of Chicago, who was its first president.

Dr. Julian Smith, of Dallas, Tex., is president this year. Dr. Clyde C. Sherwood, of Toledo, will succeed him. Dr. Clinton H. Gracey, of Detroit, is secretary-treasurer.

Sessions of the academy will be held in the Carlton Hotel, while those of the American Dental Association will be divided between the Mayflower and Continental Hall.

DENTAL ACADEMY EXECUTIVES

Dr. Clyde Sherwood, left, who is expected to be elected president of the American Academy of Periodontology at its convention opening today, and Dr. Julian Smith, retiring president.

Federal Judges To Talk With Taft

Speeding of Circuit Courts' Business Is Aim of Conferences.

(Associated Press.)

Chief Justice Taft will begin a series of conferences today with judges representing the ten Federal circuits throughout the country to ascertain the condition of business in the Federal courts.

He also will seek to develop remedies for removing any congestion found.

Attorney General Mitchell will report to the conference the views of the administration, pointing out where the government is experiencing delays in the handling of cases. Particular attention will be given by the conference to the condition of criminal dockets, it being the opinion of Chief Justice Taft and others assisting in bringing the work of the Federal courts more approximately down to date, that prompt justice is an important element in successful law enforcement.

The conference will examine minutely into the detailed reports to be submitted by the circuit judges and will adopt any recomendations believed necessary to expedite the handling of cases in Federal courts. These will be submitted to Congress by the Attorney General should additional legislation be suggested.

Luther C. Bugdale, 40 years old, of Harvard street, near Thirteenth northwest, was arrested on a charge of threats by detectives of the Third Precinct last night on complaint of his estranged wife, Evelyn Bugdale, of R street, near Sixteenth northwest.

Previously in the day, according to police, Bugdale, a World War veteran who lost his left arm in France was arrested by Maryland authorities near the Manor Club in Montgomey County on a similar charge. He was released in Maryland on bond of $500.

Attempt Seen on Life Of District Attorney

Pasadena, Calif., Oct. 2 (A.P.).—A high public official of Pasadena, who declined to let his name be used, told a newspaper man friend of his today that Buron Fitts, district attorney of Los Angeles County, was "fired upon three times last night." Fitts was being accompanied by an armed guard today.

Guards were assigned to Fitts yesterday after he had been informed by one of his assistants of the discovery of a plot against his life by "Wilshire and Hollywood" bootleggers. Fitts admitted his car "was forced off the highway last night while traveling to Pasadena" and that "I might have been shot at."

BISHOPS HAIL PEACE EFFORTS OF HOOVER

International Outlook Hopeful, Episcopal Churchman Says.

BAR GRAPE JUICE ISSUE

Atlantic City, N. J., Oct. 2 (A.P.).—President Hoover was commended for his "great efforts to gain world peace" today by the House of Bishops of the Protestant Episcopal Church in a resolution assuring him of "devoted support."

The resolution, introduced by Bishop Philip Cook, of Delaware, and passed by acclamation of 100 bishops at the first annual meeting of the house, extended greetings to Prime Minister MacDonald, of Great Britain.

"The present outlook for permanent peace between nations gives greater hope than ever before in history," the resolution read. "This situation calls for the united support of all people of good will and places a responsibility especially on the followers of Him who is called the Prince of Peace.

Pledge Devoted Support.

"We express to the President of the United States our commendation of his great efforts to gain world peace and assure him of our devoted support in the measures he is taking for reduction of armaments, and in his effort to carry into practice in the reduction of army and navy forces, the practical implications of the Paris peace pact.

"We present our greetings to the prime minister of Great Britain and assure him and our President of our continued intercession that under God's guidance they may bring the English-speaking peoples they represent into complete accord and understanding in this issue."

The resolution also suggested the observation of Armistice Day in churches on the preceding Sunday.

Grape Juice Action Tabled.

The appointment of the first Sunday in Advent, December 1, as a day for the formal introduction of the revised prayer book of the Episcopal Church as one of the principal actions of the house on the opening of business sessions of the meeting. A statement by Bishop John Gardner Murray, of Maryland, presiding bishop, declaring the publication of the new prayer book, the result of fifteen years' work, "an epoch in the history of the church," was followed by adoption of the resolution. The day of introduction was designated as one of prayer and thanksgiving.

A petition from an unnamed woman communicant requesting that "unfermented grape juice" be used in communion services instead of wine was tabled on motion of Bishop T. Manning, of New York.

The House of Bishops tonight accepted the resignation of the Rt. Rev. Boyd Vincent as Bishop of Southern Ohio, and the Rt. Rev. Robert Roy Harris, as Bishop of Marquette, Mich. Illness was the cause of both retirements.

Thief Takes Paint and Brushes.

A thief, with a penchant for art, invaded the Morton Sign Co. shop at 441 New Jersey avenue northwest, and made off with ten gallons of assorted paints and half dozen paint brushes, police were told yesterday. Robert Bamberger, an employe, reported that the thief also took a suit case, containing $30 worth of wearing apparel.

What Today Means to You

By MARY BLAKE.

"LIBRA."

IF October 3 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 8:30 a. m. to 10 a. m., and from 2 p. m. to 4 p. m. The danger periods are from 11 a. m. to 1 p. m., and from 6 p. m. to 8 p. m.

A fortunate and happy change awaits you on this date, and a new field of interest will repay your labors. Social and domestic advantages are shown.

The child born on this October 3 will be original and inventive. It will be born to command, and will not serve well under the rule of others. It will be a great lover of order and will not bear to see anything disarranged. It will be personally neat and tidy.

You have a very optimistic nature, which is in evidence whether things are working for or against you. You are usually able to appreciate the good points of the bad things that befall you. You expect the best and not the worst to happen. You are resolved to wrench success out of life and you have the tools with which to work. You have vision, self-confidence, and patience. Your hospitality to new ideas is decidedly in your favor. It leaves you ready for expansion and growth.

You have self-reliance, but you are neither self-opinionated or self-satisfied. The first is an essential and a commendable characteristic. The other two are both detrimental or narrowing to one's character. You seek and use the help and advice of others. You are eager and ready to learn from any one at any time.

You take a common-sense view of your capabilities. You neither undervalue or over-rate them, and you never attempt things for which you feel yourself unfitted. You put your best foot forward at all times. You show farsightedness in nearly all phases of your life, and your actions are often misunderstood by those who are shortsighted or are lacking in imagination. Armed with patience you take your time and work forward step by step until you reach your goal.

Successful people born on October 3:

Hugh Chalmers, automobile manufacturer.

Lilian Whiting, author.

Charles W. Dayton, former postmaster of New York City.

Charles A. Pillsbury, flour manufacturer.

Earle Radio And Kolster Will Merge.

Union Will Unite Strong Patent Position of Both Concerns—Composers' Leader in License Fight to Quit—Band Switch.

Another big radio merger was foreshadowed when Rudolph Spreckels, chairman of the board of the Kolster Radio Corporation, and Clarence A. Earl, president of the Earl Radio Corporation, announced in New York yesterday that at a meeting of the respective companies' boards of directors a plan calling for the acquisition of the Earl Radio Corporation by the Kolster Radio Corporation was approved. Under the terms of the plan, Kolster Radio Corporation will acquire control of the Earl Radio Corporation through an exchange of common stock on the basis of one share of Kolster Radio for three of the Earl Radio Corporation.

Mr. Spreckels will continue as chairman of the consolidated company, with Ellery W. Stone, present president of Kolster, as chairman of the executive committee, and Clarence A. Earl as president.

"In our opinion this contract should prove highly advantageous to stockholders of both companies," said Mr. Spreckels and Mr. Earl, in a joint statement issued after the meeting. "Union of the two companies will combine the strong patent position held by the Kolster Radio Corporation with the patents and highly successful automobile production methods of the Earl Radio Corporation, while a concentration of production facilities at Earl radio's new model plant will entirely eliminate all duplication and permit substantial economies to be made in manufacturing costs. Rapid development will be effected of the various patents held by Kolster covering wired radio, and the benefits of a materially stronger financial position and enlarged dealer organization should allow substantial increases to be shown in sales.

"Operations of the Kolster Radio Corporation, Earl Radio Corporation and the Freed-Eisemann Radio Corporation will be continued as distinct units without disturbing contracts with existing dealers and distributors."

E. C. Mills, the leader in the successful fight to require radio broadcasters to pay a license to composers for the privilege of using copyrighted music in their programs, will tender his resignation as chairman of the administrative committee of the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers and as chairman of the board of the Music Publishers Protective Association in New York this week. He has served in both capacities for the last eleven years.

Mr. Mills said that he was going from his present work to a new connection in the music field, the exact nature of which he was not at the moment at liberty to discuss.

The Dave Bernie Band will end a four-year engagement at the Roosevelt Hotel, New York City, tomorrow and Guy Lombardo and his ten-piece orchestra, recently in Washington, will take its place. The change will also bring a switch in chain broadcasters, as WEAF, the National Broadcasting Co. chain, carried the Bernie programs, while WABC, of the Columbia System, will broadcast the Lombardo entertainment.

It was learned last night that Station WABC, key station of the Columbia Broadcasting System in New York, had been granted an increase to 50,000 watts power. This will make it one of the most powerful stations in the East. At present Station WABC is using 5,000 watts power. With its increased power it will continue to broadcast on its present frequency of 860 kilocycles.

Station KNX, operated by the Western Broadcasting Co., will broadcast on the 1,050-kilocycle channel, the same frequency it em; loys at present, broadcasting with 5,000 watts. There are now seven 50,000-watt stations in the United States, but this will be the first on the Pacific Coast, and the expectation is that it will be clearly heard in the Capital.

TODAY'S WOMEN

By EARL MINDERMAN.

OCTOBER 3.

ELEANORA DUSE, one of the greatest tragediennes of the age, was born this day, 1859, in Italy, of strolling players. She rose to a world-wide success out of a childhood filled with poverty and sorrow. After starring in the big cities of Europe she came to New York, where she made her debut as Camille. Her most noted roles were Marguerite, Magda, Paula and La Locandiera.

Duse was married when quite young to an Italian journalist, from whom she soon separated. Later she had for her lover D'Annunzio, the famous dramatist and poet, who wrote several plays for her.

She was an actress of remarkable emotional power, with unusual ability to represent suffering. At the same time she was so versatile that she could play parts of opposite character the same evening. Her acting was marked by simplicity and naturalness. Her repertoire was enormous.

In 1906 she retired from the stage and did not appear again for 15 years. She died in 1924 in Pittsburgh, while on a tour of the United States.

Other noted women born this day include Jeanette Gilder, American journalist and dramatist, 1849; Annie Horniman, British theatrical manager, 1860, and Lillian Whitnel, American novelist, 1857.

Earl Interprets the Mode

The dress of this ensemble is of printed georgette and the coat of black satin trimmed in the dress fabric. (Courtesy of the Maison Poiret, Paris.)

NOTHING is more popular or, indeed, more attractive for autumn wear than the little cutaway jacquette or paletot. These little coatees take up no space whatever in the wardrobe, yet a few of them, worn with harmonizing one or two piece dresses, give endless variety to the wardrobe and a cachet of real smartness as well—to say nothing of their practicality for those days or late afternoons when it commences to be a bit cool.

They lend themselves excellently to sports wear, since they are cut away sufficiently not to interfere, or they can easily be laid aside. For street wear they give a delightful, slightly tailored look to an afternoon or morning dress.

• • • •

A charming model we saw in the collection of Augusta Bernard had the dress and paletot in pale green crepe de chine with incrusted diagonal bands of soft rose silk. A scarf collar wound about the throat and a narrow little belt and narrow cuffs completed its dainty smartness. Deep inverted box pleats, front and back, gave the skirt fullness.

Louiseboulanger shows a matching dress and paletot of chestnut brown crepe de chine, printed with small flowers in two shades of beige. The dress collar and cravat, the cuffs on the paletot, and a band around the bottom of the latter are in brilliant silk in two shades of brown.

Vionnet provides an attractive model in jersey, the skirt being of blue, the paletot of white, and the bodice of white with incrustations of the blue.

Poiret's artfulness has brought you the dressy afternoon ensemble sketched today. It consists of printed georgette gown and black satin coat—and see how he has elaborated on the sleeve and the collar background of the coat with the material of the dress! A novel version of elegance, don't you think?

C'mon! Get out that needle and thread and scissors and, oh, wonder of wonders, only a half-yard of material. And with the help of our illustrated leaflet—for which you just send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare Department of The Washington Post, voila, in two minutes, almost, you have the cunningest, form-fittingest lingerie shorts you have ever hoped for.

Secret de Beaute.

You just take a couple of spoonfuls of the powdered orris root, fluff it well into your hair, and then leave it in for an hour or so, if you can conveniently do so. Otherwise brush it out at once over a dry bathtub—this because it is powder, you know, and gets all over everything. And you will see how black it has become from the dust and dirt it takes out with it!

Don't, however, try to leave it in your hair overnight, for it will just come off on the bed linen. Remember, I am not telling you about a dry shampoo, just about a way to keep oily hair from being oily and to faintly scent it at the same time.

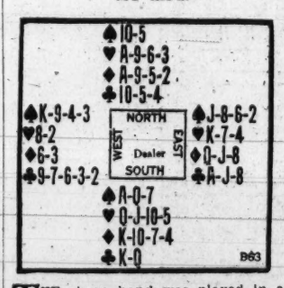
WORK ON BRIDGE

PARTNERS WHO HAVE SADDENED MY LIFE.



THE above hand was played in a game of Auction Bridge with South the Declarer—his contract No Trump. Had it been played in Contract Bridge South would have bid two No Trumps, North three.

I happened to be West and led the fourth best card of my longest suit, the Trey of Clubs. Dummy played the Four, East, my partner, the Ace, and South false-carded, playing the King. East returned the higher of his two remaining Clubs, the Jack. South won with the Queen and led his Queen of Hearts to trick 3, North finessing. East won with the King and led his last Club which dummy's Ten won. Declarer cashed his three good Hearts, winning the last in closed hand; then he led a low Diamond and played dummy's Nine. East won and led a Spade, but Declarer won with closed hand's Ace of Spades, and took one Spade, three Hearts, three Diamonds and two Clubs, making game.

Why was I chagrined over the result?

The Correct Play.

When South played the Club King on my partner's Ace, my partner should have known that he held the Queen as his only remaining Club. My Trey was of course my fourth best and, as there was but one card lower, I could not have had more than five Clubs. With no more than five in my hand, there could be no fewer than two in South's; and after South had played the King his remaining Club must be the Queen.

Consequently my partner, seeing the Ten in dummy, should not have led back his Jack when returning my suit. It generally is sound play to return the higher of two remaining cards of your partner's suit, but not when it throws away a trick. East should have led the Eight of Clubs to trick 2. Had he done so, South would have won with the Queen and taken the Heart finesse. East would have won and cashed the Jack of Clubs. After that, he would have led a Spade, South probably would not have played his Ace and I would have won with the King and cashed my two long Clubs which would have given us six tricks. If the Declarer played the Ace of Spades, he could run his three remaining Hearts and two Diamonds; but that would have given him a total of only seven tricks. So we would have saved game no matter how South handled his Spades.

IX. EVERYDAY CUSTOMS IN CHINA

ONE sight which would attract you in a Chinese street would be a man getting a shave. Chinese barbers have the habit of doing their work on the sidewalk.

A Chinese barber at work in the street.

Beards of the Chinese do not grow rapidly, so the Chinese barbers do not have so much shaving to do as the barbers in this country.

What do you suppose is the mourning color among the Chinese? Not black, but white! White is worn at the funerals.

Red is a sign of good luck among the Chinese. When there is a wedding, the bride wears a red dress.

A man who is going to be married sends a chair covered with red awning to the home of his bride-to-be. In this chair she is carried to her future home to be married. As she starts out, she throws a pair of chopsticks over her shoulder. This is a sign that she will no longer eat her father's rice.

A band plays as the bride is carried to the place of the wedding. Boys carry banners and balloons. Firecrackers are set off—to frighten demons away!

After the marriage the bride becomes a member of her husband's household. She must obey her mother-in-law in all ways.

I am sorry to say that the custom of foot-binding still holds in many parts of China. The feet of baby girls are bandaged in such a manner that they will grow in a deformed way.

After her feet have been bound through the years, a young woman is not able to walk in the usual way. She can move about, but her feet easily become tired.

In recent years efforts have been made to stop the foot-binding habit and these efforts have succeeded in part. In some cities there are thousands of Chinese girls who are able to run and play with the freedom which normal feet permit, but there are other thousands who cannot do so. Customs die slowly in China.

Wives of Tomorrow

By FRANCES M'DONALD

DEAR MISS McDONALD: For heaven's sake, permit a man—a married man—to reply to Mrs. K. L. M. and Mrs. G. E. on the "separate vacation" topic. Were the writer the husband-victim of either one of these two persons he would insist on either taking a life-long vacation or on turning on the gas.

If the Almighty can explain how it is that a sweet, winsome, attractive, cooing girl in her courting days becomes transformed after a few years of married life into such a spitfire and tyrannical cat as these two seem to be, He surely will illuminate a problem that many and many a husband and father of a family is perplexed about.

Both of these correspondents have disclosed the fact that they are utterly lacking in the primary elements of common, everyday good sense, and entirely devoid of any conception or possession of real, true love, except the type that is entirely self-love and self-devotion.

From the bottom of my heart—and I'm sure I voice the feeling of multitudes of people—I profoundly pity the husbands of the type of women exhibited in the letters of these two. Their husbands are brow-beated menials and have become abject slaves to the selfish, vengeful, jealous natures of their spouses. Had these two women some husbands to deal with, they would, figuratively speaking, get rolled over a flour barrel and soundly spanked. That is what they deserve, literally.

The writer of this letter has a wife and two sons—the elder a big six-footer, and at work, and the younger in the fifth grade in school. The mother drives a car, goes when and where she pleases and comes back when she gets ready, and takes good care of her home and her family. When we wish to go together, we go. When either wishes to go separately, we go. And you may advise these two "lovely, devoted, considerate, thoughtful women so very anxious for the welfare, comfort and happiness of their husbands" that this husband does exactly as his wife does. He goes when and where he pleases and returns when he gets ready. He devotes his time to his work and his means to the welfare of his family.

Married life is and should be a co-operating institution. It is the first institution the Creator set up on earth among men. Whatever "rights" one insists on for one's self should be cheerfully, willingly and gladly extended and granted to the other. Such dispositions and traits and conceptions of love and marriage and the home ought to make it a life-long home in reality. But if either one proves to be so little, narrow and bigoted and selfish as to become eaten up and devoured by the hyena gangerene of constant suspicion and jealousy of and toward the other, the writer insists, the sooner the frightful and horible situation be terminated by the law the better. Home has ceased to be anything except a place; a roof, meal tickets and place to sleep. Such turmoil for children to grow up in is far worse than separation, peace, and a decent environment for their adolescent and impressionable hearts and minds. One or both of the parents have proved themselves unworthy, and have broken every law, human and divine, of decency and common sense. These two women who have written to you are no wives—but jailers.

How to Keep Well

By DR. W. A. EVANS.

SLOW IN SHEDDING SCREENS.

IT is well to go slow in taking off the screens. There is plenty of time between now and the onset of very cold weather to repair any breaks around the windows, to make the sash fit snugly and to put in the storm windows.

There is no reason for impatience to get at this job. Meanwhile, the screens had better be left where they are. When they come out they will have to go into storage and the cellar or attic has not as good a place for them as the present location. Wear is not decreased and the weather is no more harmful to them.

On the other hand, if screens were ever needed to keep out flies and mosquitoes, need is still existent. It is true neither flies nor mosquitoes breed prolifically after the nights get cool, and it is also true that neither of these insects swarm about us. We can go even further and admit that they are but few in number and not much in evidence as compared with the prevalence which characterizes midsummer. But those that are around have business to attend to.

They are not joy-riding on bathheads or singing at whoopee parties in the small hours of the morning. They must get under cover before the cold weather comes or they will die and possibly the race will die with them—something tells them. They are driven by an individual urge to survive and by a racial or biologic urge as well. The business of life is serious and there is no appetite for play.

They search outdoors and windows. If screens are in they look for holes. Once inside they feed as unobstrusively as possible. When through feeding they keep out of sight. They are not easily driven forth, nor swatted, nor poisoned, nor captured. They are intent on finding a place quiet and warm enough to lay up until the urge of warm weather and the spring drives them forth to feed and multiply. Meanwhile they eat but little, live on a low plane, and avoid notice as much as possible.

To take down the screens until cool weather has killed the flies and mosquitoes is to convert one's home into a winter resort and to create a springboard for an early jump off next April.

STOCK MART TURNS IRREGULARLY HIGHER

TIME FUNDS UNCHANGED

New York, Oct. 2 (A.P.).—Lowering of call money rates, marking the end of the credit strain incidental to the quarterly settlements, provided the background for an irregular recovery in today's stock market, but traders received another unpleasant surprise after the close when the New York Stock Exchange reported member loans had increased $667,764,553 last month to a new high record at $8,549,383,979.

The market opened irregularly higher, turned extremely spoty when fresh liquidation developed in some of the recent speculative favorites and then witnessed a brisk rally which was checked in the last hour by the heavy selling of Radio, which dropped 4¼ points.

The day's sales fell well below 4,000,000 shares, indicating both the absence of any extensive liquidation and the lack of any heavy accumulation on the part of investment trusts and large individual operators. Most market observers were agreed that the market was entitled to at least a technical rally, but there was still a wide divergence of opinion as to whether the current recovery marked the end of the selling movement which started nearly three weeks ago.

Call Money Drops.

Call money renewed at 9 per cent, dropped to 8 and thence to 7, with some "outside loans" reported as low as 6 per cent. This was attributed to the return flow of October 1 disbursements to the banks, but inasmuch as there was no relaxation in time money, which held firm at 9 to 9¼ per cent, it was considered doubtful that the recent rate would be maintained for any length of time, particularly in view of the heavy commercial and agricultural demands at this season of the year.

The gain of nearly $670,000,000 in Stock Exchange member loans contrasts with an increase of $544,000,000 in the figures reported by the New York Federal Reserve Bank for the four weeks ended September 25. While the periods covered do not exactly coincide, the fact that the last few days of September witnessed heavy selling of stocks led to expectations of a much smaller gain. Stock Exchange loans are now more than $3,000,000,000 above the level of a year ago.

Except for the further increase in freight car loadings to a level higher than the corresponding week of the two previous years but below the record-breaking total of 1926, and the weekly steel trade reviews reporting a further slackening in automotive demand and continued heavy railroad inquiries, there was little in the day's business news to influence the price movement.

New Lows Reached.

Thirty or more stocks sagged to new low levels for the year in the intermittent waves of selling which swept over the market during the day. The list included Studebaker, Jordan and Reo Motors, International Combustion, Richfield Oil, National Bellas Hess, National Tea, Jewel Tea, Park & Tilford, American Zinc and American Woolen preferred.

Only a handful of stocks went to new highs, among them Columbian Carbon, Remington Rand, Myer & Bros., Timken Roller Bearing and General American Tank Car.

Wide fluctuations took place in some of the high priced issues but generally the turnovers were so small that the price changes were almost meaningless. For instance, Midland Steel Products preferred broke 28¾ points and International Silver dropped 6½, while Commercial Solvents jumped 23 points and J. I. Case 15, but the sales in each case were from 100 to 700 shares.

U. S. Steel Has Short Gain.

U. S. Steel common ran up to 226 and then fell back to 23 for a net gain of only 1½. General Electric closed 3¾ points higher at 363¾ after selling 3 points above that figure. Westinghouse Electric retained only 2 points of its early gain of 6¾. Standard Gas & Electric ran up 13 and fell back 5, and so on through the list.

Cotton declined about $1 a bale on prospects of more favorable weather. Wheat advanced about a cent a bushel in response to reports of front damage in the Argentine and a better export demand. Corn prices held fairly steady. Coffee dropped 10 to 26 points. Sugar prices were fractionally unchanged.

Foreign exchanges moved within rather narrow limits. Sterling exchange, which reached the highest level since last July yesterday, eased slightly. Other European rates showed only nominal changes.

NEW YORK COTTON.

New York, Oct. 2 (A.P.).—Some overnight buying orders attracted by the advance of the previous day were readily supplied by realizing and Southern selling in the cotton market today, and the market eased off in the later trading. December contracts declined from 19.10 to 18.86 and closed at that figure, with the general market closing barely steady at net declines of 16 to 20 points.

The market opened steady at a decline of 2 points on October, but generally 2 to 5 points higher on a continuation of yesterday's buying movement which was promoted by reports of further rains in the Eastern belt and the fairly steady ruling of Liverpool. The more active positions sold about 5 to 6 points net higher during the first few minutes, but the market met a good deal of realizing and Southern selling and prices soon turned easier.

The demand seemed to taper off after the early buying orders had been absorbed, and the disposition to take profits after yesterday's sharp advance seemed to be increased by the prospect for clearing weather in the Eastern belt and the failure of bullish features in the weekly report of the Weather Bureau to stimulate more active buying. Southern selling continued, and while there was enough trade buying or covering to steady the market and cause occasional bulges, the lowest prices of the day were reached in the late trading.

October sold off to 18.76 and March to 19.76, making net declines of 16 to 20 points on active positions, and the close was at the lowest.

Two more of the private end-September crop reports were published during the day, the first to make its appearance placing the condition in 12 of the leading cotton States at 53.2 per cent, with an indicated crop of 14,948,000 bales. The other, which appeared later in the day, made the condition 53.7 and the indicated crop 14,505,000 bales. Neither of these reports appeared to have much influence on the immediate market.

The active buying and advance of the previous day seemed to have eased to the technical position to some extent, and the trade buying was less active than it was yesterday.

Liverpool cables reported continental and Bombay buying in the market and said that the larger inquiry for cotton cloths in Manchester was maintained.

Port receipts today, 59,230. United States port exports, 44,123, making 1,018,- 774 so far this season.

BOND ISSUES SWING SLIGHTLY UPWARD

Floating Supply of Prime Securities Is Small; Demand Stiffens.

SOME NEW LOWS SEEN

New York, Oct. 2 (A.P.).—Bonds developed a better tone today, although there was nothing to indicate that the slight upward swing was more than one of the periodic stiffenings which the market has been undergoing for months, only to slip back almost immediately in another interval of softness.

The floating supply of prime investment issues is exceptionally small and this factor, combined with the moderate amount of new offerings, gives the list a favorable technical position which, in the opinion of traders, will enable it to make progress when attention is again directed to the fixed-charge securities with their current high yields.

Convertibles went through some typical gyrations, selling lower around midday, then reversing their trend and finally turning downward again in the last minutes of the market. The two telephone stock option debentures showed gains of about 4 points each in the late trading, but the close saw part of the advance erased. American Telephone 4½s finished 2½ points higher while the International Co.'s bonds closed slightly more than a point above the previous final. American I. G. Chemical 5½s were brought forward actively and at one time sold 2 points higher, closing at 143½ for a gain of 1½. American International 5½s advanced 2½, while the Alleghany Corporation 5s held steady.

Despite the steadier appearance of the general list, a number of new lows for the year or longer developed. In this group were Canadian National Railways 4½s of 1968, which sagged to the new minimum of 88½ as the road marketed a $30,000,000 issue of 5 per cents at 98½. Others in the group included Big Four general 5s, down 3¼ to 100¾; Denver & Rio Grande, Western refunding 5s, New Orleans Public Service 5s and Portland General Electric 5s, the last named dipping 5¾ to 92½. The weakness of these issues, however, was due to lack of demand, which also forced New York Central 3½s off 4 points.

Industrials and utilities were somewhat mixed. Allis Chalmers 5s offered a strong spot, rising a point. Strength also appeared in Standard Oil of New York 4½s, which rose a point, only to lose most of the advance in late transactions. Utilities Power & Light 5½s sold 1½ points higher.

Argentine bonds were taken in the foreign list, mostly at fractional advances, although the 5½s picked up nearly 2 points apparently under buying for the sinking fund. Canadian 5s of 1952 were soft, selling down 1½ in a substantial turnover. United States Government securities showed little change.

GLENNA COLLETT ROUTS MISS ORCUTT IN TOURNEY

Maryland U. Warned of Carolina

Tricky Line Shift of Former Notre Dame Star Employed.

Old Liners Workout in Mud for Saturday Game.

GRID fans hereabout may see a football fling from the brain of Knute Rockne before the famous football mentor gets a chance to use it himself, says George Hoban, who refereed the North Carolina-Wake Forest game in Chapel Hill last Saturday.

North Carolina, which comes here to play Maryland at College Park Saturday, is coached by Chuck Collins, who played end on Rockne's noted Four Horsemen combination.

"There has been considerable talk going the rounds that Knute Rockne, of Notre Dame, would have a new offense to spring on Navy when they get together in the Baltimore Stadium on October 12," said Hoban.

"Chuck Collins, North Carolina coach, uncorked a new one on Wake Forest for a short time last Saturday and there may be a connection. North Carolina plays at College Park this week-end and those who witness the game may see this new offense before Notre Dame plays Navy.

Several Plays Made From Tricky Shift.

"The Tarheels used it like a line shift, the players on one side of the line spreading out about two yards apart, the backs remaining set along with the other side of the line.

"When the shift was made on the left side, the center, right guard, right tackle and right end remained in their regular positions; the right wing back stood about two yards back of his tackle and the No. 2 back stood 4½ yards back of the center. The No. 3 back stood two yards behind the left guard and the left wing back stood about two yards behind the outside foot of the left end.

"At a given signal the left side of the line jumped out, the players 2 yards apart, which left the No. 3 back covering the hole between center and left guard, but two yards back. The No. 4 back covered the gap between left guard and left tackle.

"From this formation several types of plays were run, line bucks, end runs, passes and cross-bucks to the right side being employed successfully."

Byrd Works Out Old Liners In Rain and Mud.

Curley Byrd, Maryland coach, who viewed the game last Saturday at Chapel Hill, agreed with Hoban as to the new offense. What he had to say, though, was brief and to the point. It was "That isn't all they had."

Maryland, despite a hospital list that has grown to include Heagy, regular end, with a boil on his arm; Ribnitzki, right tackle, Roberts, left half back, regular, and Miller, reserve back, all with injured ankles, and Berger, reserve end, with an injured side, scrimmaged in the mud at College Park yesterday in preparing for the Tarheels. Heagy and Berger are in the infirmary at the University, but the other three hobbled about in the practice, getting the plays down so that they will be ready for use if they recover sufficiently physically.

Scores of the games have been:

1920—Maryland, 13; Carolina, 0.
1921—Carolina, 16; Maryland, 7.
1922—Carolina, 24; Maryland, 3.
1923—Maryland, 14; Carolina, 0.
1924—Maryland, 6; Carolina, 0.
1925—Carolina, 16; Maryland, 0.
1926—Maryland, 14; Carolina, 6.
1927—Carolina, 7; Maryland, 6.
1928—Carolina, 26; Maryland, 19.

MERCURYS WANT GAME.

The Mercurys, who will be one of the most formidable contenders of the senior section of the Capital City Football League this year, are without a game for Sunday, and would like to hear from any team that has a field. Call Manager Allison at Franklin 4627-J after 5 o'clock. Coach McDonald requests all Mercury players to be on the Sixth street southeast field Thursday and Friday nights at 8 o'clock.

Twin Bill With Macks Rained Out; Games Are Canceled.

By FRANK H. YOUNG.

RAIN again prevented the Nationals and Athletics from playing their scheduled doubleheader in Philadelphia yesterday, and, as a result, the games will be tossed into the discard, because the National Leaguers are booked for games at Philadelphia today and tomorrow. The contests could not be played there, and Connie Mack would not agree to President Clark Griffith's suggestion that they be shifted here to fill open dates drawn by the Nationals.

Several long-distance telephone conversations were held between the Washington and Philadelphia clubs yesterday before the contests were finally declared off. Connie Mack's reason was that he anticipated a long rainy spell and that he had no desire to use his stars on a heavy diamond and thus take a chance on crippling them and making them unavailable for service in the world's series against the Cubs.

With these games not to be played, all the Nationals have to do to clinch fifth place and thus beat out Bucky Harris' Tigers is to win one of the two remaining games scheduled here Saturday and Sunday with the Boston Red Sox as guests. The Nats now enjoy a two-game lead over the Jungle Cats, who have four games listed.

Wineapple Permitted to Play Basketball.

President Clark Griffith yesterday changed his mind about allowing Pitcher Ed Wineapple to play professional basketball during the off season and gave the young southpaw permission to play for two months. It seems that Wineapple, before he signed with the Nationals, agreed to play with one of the American Professional Basketball League teams. He felt that he should be allowed to keep his word and the Nat's owner reluctantly agreed with him. It was understood that the permit, which was forwarded to Commissioner Landis yesterday, was for but two months and that the player agreed to quit the game in case he makes good here.

Wineapple was the second high point-scorer of the East while with the Providence College team last year and is regarded as one of the best collegiate forwards in the country.

Navy Squads Scrimmage On Flooded Gridiron.

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., Oct. 2.—Navy football practice was interrupted to some extent today by the flooded condition of the gridiron due to the torrential rains in a northeast storm that swept over last night and gave way today to a heavy blow from the southeast that caused a rapid rise of the tide until waters dashed over the sea wall and onto the field. In many places the water stood in pools inches deep.

Nevertheless Head Coach Ingram drove his squad in a stiff scrimmage against the shock troops of Squad B. But the boggy condition of the field made the footing uncertain and not a great deal was accomplished as far as accuracy of directing plays is concerned. Though anticipating stiffer opposition from William and Mary than marked the Denison argument, the coaches are concentrating their efforts in pointing their pupils for the Notre Dame game in Baltimore October 12.

MANAGER RESIGNS.

Indianapolis, Oct. 2 (A.P.).—Albert F. (Bruno) Beizel today resigned as manager of the Indianapolis Baseball Team of the American Association. He had piloted the club since 1927 and last year led it to the pennant and the "Little World Series" championship.

Cochrane Gives Macks Great Advantage Over Cubs Behind Plate in World Series

(This is another of a series of stories comparing the strength of the Cubs and Athletics in the several departments of play.)

By BRIAN BELL
(Associated Press Sports Writer).

NEW YORK, Oct. 2 (A.P.).—The Cubs outnumber the Athletics catchers, 3½ to 2, but it seems reasonable to suggest that Connie Mack would not trade the brilliant Gordon Cochrane for all the Chicago receivers. Hartnett is the Cubs' half. He can catch but can not throw. However, he can hit and probably will be seen during the series with a bat in his hand, even if he is denied the privilege of donning the catching armor.

When Cochrane goes out to yell "right here," for the first time in the series, he will be enlisted for the duration of the war, barring incapacitating injuries. If the Boston University aluminus is hurt, Cy Perkins, a spry veteran, will be the relief. The A's have only two eligibles listed as catchers, but should Cochrane and Perkins both fall by the wayside, Jimmy Foxx could move in from first base.

Cubs Have 4-Man Department.

The Cub catching staff consists of Taylor, Ganzales, Schulte and Hartnett.

Hartnett, who will not catch, is the only .300 hitter on the Chicago staff.

MICKEY COCHRANE.

Taylor and Gonzales bat a .270 clip and Schulte much lower.

Cochrane is a consistent .300 hitter, while Perkins is 100 points away.

The broad shoulders of the hustling young Philadelphia star will carry the burden for the American League. Cochrane can throw, hit and run. He probably is the fastest catcher the game has known in a generation and, with Jimmy Dykes, packs most of the "pepper" of the club.

Cochrane Sets Good Example.

Cochrane sets a great example to his fellows and stimulates his pitchers to greater effort by his during in going after balls hit anywhere in reasonable distance of the plate. Regardless of danger he charges into dugouts or against the stands if there is the slightest chance to make a catch.

"Cochrane is the greatest piece of catching mechanism I ever saw," said Ty Cobb, who saw catchers come and go in the American League for a quarter of a century.

The Georgia Peach was asked if in his opinion Cochrane's catching had anything to do with the effective pitching the Athletics have been getting since the Boston boy became the catcher.

"Certainly," was Cobb's reply. "He's not only a great catcher mechanically, he's an inspiration. Any pitcher will be better with Cochrane catching."

Without depriving Taylor of the credit which is his due as a hard working, capable performer, the Athletics must be voted the advantage behind the plate. In a short series, the pitching makes the club and often the catcher makes the pitching.

Cubs Hit Jakie May Hard to Beat Reds

Cincinnati, Oct. 2 (A.P.).—Jakie May proved easy for the National League champions today and the Cubs won by 7 to 4. The Cubs got three runs on four hits in the first three innings but could only score one run on four hits in the seventh. This was due to a long single by Charles Grimm, which hit the bleacher wall. For a while it looked like Walker was going to make the catch and the runners on first and second did not venture off the bags.

Ray Kolp relieved May in the eighth and got the side in order, but was nicked for two runs in the ninth.

Sheriff Blake held the Reds in fair order but three bunched hits, a base on balls and a double steal scored three runs for Cincinnati in the third inning. Swanson's triple to right center and Critz's sacrifice fly to Stephenson scored the Reds' final run.

Elwood English, Cub shortstop, was not in the line-up as the thumb of his throwing hand was stiff and sore from an injury suffered last Sunday.

Art Shires to Quit Wasting Talent And Fight for Purses Hereafter

TULSA, Okla., Oct. 2 (A.P.).—Art Shires, stormy petrel of the Chicago White Sox and baseball's most celebrated pugilist of the last decade, is to have a chance to display his fistic prowess in the ring.

Teddy Hayes, associate of Jack Kearns and a famous trainer of fighters, in Tulsa with Al Foy, who meets Babe Hunt here October 8, announced today he had taken Shires under his wing, would put him in training immediately and stage him fighting this winter.

Hayes met Shires in Chicago last week and learned that the baseball battler, who has had great success in his bare knuckle engagements with other ball players, including Manager Lena Blackburne, of his own team, was ambitious to become a boxer. He took Shires to a gymnasium and watched him work with the gloves.

"Shires weighs 193 in perfect condition and has the build of a fighter," Hayes said. "He has great courage and the utmost confidence in himself and his ability to make good in the ring."

Farrell Tops Golfers at Manor

Home Club Player's 80 Leads First Day of Qualifying.

Rain Reduces Field; Only 13 Players Are Under 90.

By HENRY LITCHFIELD WEST.

WITH heavily laden rain clouds sweeping in from the northeast and deluging the course of the Manor Club yesterday, the first day's qualification round of the first invitation tournament was played by approximately 140 golfers, who ploughed through the soggy and sodden fairways and came into the clubhouse soaked to the skin. In the first place, the Manor Club is some 15 miles out in the country, but this long trip, when even windshield cleaners were of little avail, did not seem to deter the enthusiastic golfers. Then in raincoats and sweaters they went out on the links and endeavored to qualify. If the weather predictions prove accurate, and today is fair and cool, the remainder of the large field of over 350 players will have a tremendous advantage over the contestants who were drenched by yesterday's storm.

The scores were, of course, in high figures, but no matter who wins the medal for the low gross in the qualification round, there ought to be a special prize for M. H. Robb and C. C. Heath, both members of the Bannockburn Club. They were scheduled to start at 7 o'clock yesterday morning, when it was still half-dark and the rain was coming down in buckets-fuls. Did they turn over in bed and kiss the tournament good-bye? They did not.

Robb and Heath Lead Off in Rain.

At five minutes to 7 o'clock they were on the tee and at 7 o'clock they led off the tournament with the first drives. They sloshed and floundered around, Robb in 94 and Heath in an even 100—two scores which were by no means as high as some which were turned in later in the day.

The experiences of the golfers in the storm would fill a book. William E. Richardson, of the Manor Club, for instance, played a ball on the fourth hole which landed in casual water in the fairway from which he had a perfect right to lift, but unfortunately the casual water was a swift-running stream and when the ball was finally retrieved it was deep in the woods. Ray Garrity—merely to mention another incident—was playing on the sixteenth hole and his wet driver slipped out of his hands, the club going farther than the ball.

Farrell Out in 43, Back in 37.

It was no wonder, therefore, that only one player was able to score as low as 80, the lucky individual being Ray Farrell, of the Manor Club, who was out in 43 and back in 37. The fact that under the most adverse conditions his card showed only one 7 and one 6 makes it worthy to be classed among the 70s, which are negotiated when a course is fast and the greens dry and smooth, being as follows:

Out	7	4	5	4	4	5	4	4	6	—43
In	4	3	4	4	4	5	4	5	4	—37—80

Farrell's score led the field by three strokes, his nearest competitors being Thomas S. Pitt, Argyle, and W. G. Brantley, jr., Chevy Chase, each with 83, while W. N. Baldwin, Manor, followed with 84. As the cards turned in yesterday show eight players with 87 and under, the latter figure is probably the highest that will qualify in the first sixteen.

The fact that out of the 192 contestants who were assigned to play yesterday not more than 50 failed to appear is a remarkable demonstration of the interest in the tournament. Of course, a large number of the players failed to turn in their cards and many were over the century mark, but the scores of 100 and under were as follows:

80—Ray Farrell (Manor).
83—Thomas S. Pitt (Argyle); W. G. Brantley, jr. (Chevy Chase).
84—W. N. Baldwin (Manor).
85—T. M. Belshe (Argyle).
85—C. B. Murphy (Congressional).
87—Perry B. Hoover (Indian Spring), C. S. Beard (unattached), C. S. Runswick (Beaver Dam).
88—C. W. Stoddard (Manor), Kenneth Welton (unattached), A. T. Wannan (unattached), P. W. Calfee (Washington Golf and Country).
89—Herbert L. Lacy (Manor).
90—Erwin P. Helt (Washington Golf and Country), W. J. Peters (Manor), Earl Carbaugh (Manor), Russell T. Edwards (Manor), M. Fitzgerald (unattached).
91—J. B. Dulin (unattached).
92—W. A. Warthen (Manor), Middleton Berman (Bannockburn), James North (Manor).
93—William E. Richardson (Manor), William W. Jones (Congressional).

Kansas City Lands Little Series Opener

Kansas City, Oct. 2 (A.P.).—Joe Kuhel's triple in the tenth, scoring Knothe from first, broke up a pitchers' battle and gave Kansas City a 4-to-3 victory over Rochester in the first game of the little world series here today.

It was a hard game for the International League champions to lose, for Herman Bell had slightly outpitched the veteran Tom Sheehan until the tenth.

BASS BEATS SMALLWOOD EASILY

Capital Welterweight Target for Foe's Short Punches.

NICK BASS, bounding Baltimore welterweight, bounced enough stiff rights and lefts on Joe Smallwood's face and body last night to win the decision in the feature 10-round bout of the Silver Spring Service Company's opening fight show at Silver Spring Armory.

From the fifth round on, Bass pumped a barrage of steaming blows into his foe and left no doubt in the minds of the judges as to the winner. Smallwood had the best of the early going, his most effective walop being a short one that traveled not more than six inches straight to Nick's chin.

The show as a whole satisfied the 750 fans present, but the semifinal between Arthur DeBeve, former lightweight champion of France, and Sergt. Billy Harris, crafty veteran from Fort Myer, developed an ending that the customers evidently thought "rotten."

DeBeve, one of the cleverest boxers seen in this vicinity in several years, tied the Sarge into knots and belted him all over the ring. In the sixth round he floored the tough soldier three times, but the latter, claiming a foul, was given the bout by Referee Ed Breckman. A physician, however, examined Harris and found no evidence of a foul.

In four prelims of four rounds each, Charley Gallagher fought a draw with Humpty Dscola; Phil McAnish kayoed Soldier Battiste; Dick Huntz outpointed Private Fishman, and Buddy Ealin, Silver Spring favorite, won a unanimous decision over Roddy Davis.

Minor Operation For Tunney at Berlin

Berlin, Oct. 2 (A.P.).—Although Gene Tunney, former heavyweight boxing champion, today underwent a minor operation he is far from considering himself an invalid.

"Do I look like a hospital invalid?" he asked a correspondent of the Associated Press. "I never felt better in my life."

He was inded tanned and moved with quick and agile motion. He mentioned that he weighed exactly the same as when he met Tom Heeney in the last battle of his ring career.

Energy Takes Feature At Churchill Downs

Churchill Downs Race Track, Ky., Oct. 2 (A.P.).—The Parkview Stable's 8-year-old Energy won the Mrs. John Marshall Purse, the feature of an ordinary card here today. Dinner Dance was second with The Moon third.

Energy was outrun to the far turn and taken all over the track, in an effort to get through. He finally slipped through on the inner rail in final strides to win by half a length. Dinner Dance, always well up, but racing under restraint, went into a short lead in the stretch, but swerved out in the final drive to take the place money by two lengths. The Moon was taken into a long lead, but weakened in the last 70 yards, to take the short end of the purse by a nose.

Former Queen Of Golfers Triumphs

Gains Quarter Finals of National Play, 7 Up and 5.

Upset Sees Virginia Van Wie Lose to Mrs. Federman.

By PAUL R. MICKELSON
(Associated Press Sports Writer).

OAKLAND HILLS COUNTRY CLUB, Birmingham, Mich., Oct. 2 (A.P.).—The one and only Glenna Collett nailed another clincher to her fame as America's feminine golfing wonder today by crushing the challenge of Maureen Orcutt, brilliant star from White Beeches, N. J., 7 to 5, in the second round of the thirty-third national women's championship at Oakland Hills.

On the trail of her second straight national title and her fourth since she first crowned herself as queen of American golf in 1922 Miss Collett shot surprising golf to gain her lopsided victory. She clipped five strokes from par on the rugged course and was stopped with a loss only on the ninth hole by a birdie 3 off her rival's clubs. Her performance stamped her as the prohibitive favorite to win the 1929 title.

Champion Thrills Gallery.

While the champion thrilled a gallery of 2,000 by her golf artistry, the girl esteemed as her greatest threat, Virginia Van Wie, of Chicago, fell the victim of a stunning upset and passed out of the championship picture. Mrs. Leo Federman, of New York, a comparative newcomer to national competition, whose only claim to fame is her championship of the Fresh Meadow Country Club, turned the trick, shooting even par to conquer her, 2 to 1.

The defeat of Miss Van Wie, 1928 finalist and twin medalist with Helen Hicks, of New York, this year, was the biggest upset of the tournament. Incidentally it was Mrs. Federman who stopped the march of Mrs. Helen B. Stetson, of Philadelphia, 1926 champion, on the twenty-fourth hole yesterday.

Mrs. Hurd in Easy Victory.

All of the remaining favorites came through handily today, but Mrs. Dorothy Campbell Hurd, veteran from Philadelphia, who won the national title in 1909, 1910 and 1924, turned in the easiest victory of the field. Sailing placidly over the course in 1 under par, she overwhelmed Anjeanette Hunter, of Pittsburgh, 9 and 8. Miss Hunter, who upset Alexa Stirling Fraser, of Ottawa, Canada, another three-time titleholder, was far off her game. She failed to win a single hole, and her best effort was a half on the fourth with a par 5. All told, she was 11 strokes over par.

Detroit placed two players in the quarter final round today—Mrs. Harley Higbie, who defeated Edith Quier, of Reading, Pa., in the hardest match of the round 1 up, and Mrs. Stewart Hanley, who eliminated Mrs. Lee Mida, former Western medal champion of Chicago, 4 and 2.

Mrs. Hill Winner By 5 and 4.

Mrs. O. S. Hill, of Kansas City, who appears to be the only surviving threat of importance to Miss Collett in the upper bracket, trotted victoriously on with a 5 and 4 triumph over Kathleen Wright, of Pasadena, Calif. The two fought on almost even terms for the first nine holes only to have the Californian crack under the strain and toss away her chances with miserable golf coming back.

Another Western hope, Mrs. Leona Pressler, of Los Angeles, Western champion in 1927 and 1928, shot splendid golf except for the second, where she four-putted, and eliminated Marion Turpie, of New Orleans, erstwhile Southern champion, while Bernice Wall, of Oshkosh, Wis., crushed Mrs. Larry Nelson, of Dayton, Ohio, 5 and 3.

Quarterfinal matches tomorrow bring Miss Collett against Mrs. Higbie and Mrs. Hill against Mrs. Hanley in the upper bracket. In the lower and supposedly slower tier, Mrs. Federman faces Miss Wall.

SUN BEAU TAKES HAVRE DE GRACE CUP BY LENGTH

Stretch Rush Nets Purse Of $20,000

Glen Wild Beats Out Bateau by Neck in Final Feature.

Mortgage Runs Away With Second Race; The Tartar Second.

Special to The Washington Post.

HAVRE DE GRACE, Oct. 2.—Sn Beau, one of the best sons of that successful sire, Sun Briar, that raced for Willis Sharpe Kilmer, added to his laurels this afternoon when he was winner of the Havre de Grace Cup over a field of the best handicap horses in training Carrying 117 pounds and ridden by F Coltiletti, Sun Beau showed a smashing good performance.

Nine went to the post in the Cup Race, which called for a dash of one mile and a furlong. Petee Wrack, on the strength of some fast moves, was made favorite despite the fact that he was top weight with 124 pounds up. Battleship Gray delayed matters some at the barrier by his refusal to break away from the stalls and he was finally taken to the extreme outside. When the start came he was off none too well, and Garner, no doubt acting on instructions, rushed him to the front in the run to the first turn and in the early stages opened up a lead of two lengths.

Petee Wrack Running Second at Half.

At the half mile Petee Wrack was second and Sun Beau third. Rounding the far turn, the latter moved up stoutly and entering the home stretch he passed the Glen Riddle colt. Inside the furlong pole, Sun Beau had a lead of a couple of lengths, but at the end he weakened a bit and Coltiletti was forced to rouse him up to stall off a determined challenge from Glen Wild, who came from behind to finish strong and in a hard drive was up in time to beat Bateau out a head for the place.

Sun Beau's margin was a length. The stake carried an added value of $20,000, and was worth $19,600 net to the winner.

Trainer Irvine has arranged to ship Sun Beau over to Laurel tomorrow to join the main division of the Kilmer Stable which is quartered at that course.

Topsy S. came back with another winning effort when she galloped home to an easy victory in the running of the sixth race. This called for a journey of one mile and a quarter. When the barrier was sprung Assessor Charlie lunged into Topsy S. and knocked her sideways. The latter recovered quickly and Quillen then took her in hand and rated her under a strong pull.

Then down the back stretch Atol was out almost even terms with Topsy S., but the latter was fighting for her head. In the home stretch, when released from restraint, Topsy S. bounded away from her field and at the end had a four-length lead over Fair Girl, who beat Pat Calhoun half a length for the place.

Enid, Outpaced, Takes Opener.

Enid graduated from the maiden ranks when she won the first race, a dash of 5½ furlongs. In the early running the Audley filly was badly outpaced, but rounding the far turn she began to improve her position. Entering the home stretch she caught and passed the tiring Galla Start, but in the final furlong she was inclined to weaken and Fields was driving her at the finish, where she led Aziz by a couple of lengths. Kitty Marie was third and Galla Start fourth. The latter showed lots of speed to the top of the home stretch, where he collapsed.

The Black Dot Stable furnished the winner of the second race when Mortgage scored in runaway fashion. Arnold got him away with the leaders and before they had gone a furlong he was out in front and running strong going to the half-mile pole. Mortgage opened a lead of a length and a half and he retained this advantage until straightened out in the home stretch where he began to falter. At the end he was forced to stand a hard drive to stand off The Tartar's rush to win by a scant half length. Complication was a tiring third.

Latter bumped when break came, but recovered quickly. He made a determined effort inside furlong pole, but lacking in final drive. COMPLICATION, a forward contender all the way, tired right at end.

NED O., slow to find his foot, dropped out of it first quarter and was a trailer until going to the half-mile pole when he began gaining on his field; worked his way up on outside and finished with a rush in the home stretch, bought with SWINFIELD to outlast latter in final drive. Rose rode a confident race on SWINFIELD. He rated him under restraint for six furlongs. SWINFIELD hung in final drive after disposing of MERRY MACK. Latter showed lot of early speed, but tired badly when real test came. SWINFIELD was kicked a couple of times by ROSATINA while at the post.

FOURTH RACE—One mile and seventy yards. Purse, $1,500. The Maj. Magnolia, for 3-year-olds. Start good from stalls. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 3:55. Off at 3:58. Winner, H. H. LATIVICH moved up stoutly when called on in home stretch and, wearing MUD down, outstayed him to draw away the last fifty yards. MUD had a lot taken out of him racing PEGG'S PRIDE into submission. He saved ground all the way. PEGG'S PRIDE just lasted long enough to stall off SUNVIR. Latter was in close quarters in stretch run. SEARCHER was on his good behavior at the barrier, but showed no speed.

SUN BEAU broke slow and Coltiletti was forced to go to the outside to work his way up, moved up stoutly in run down the back stretch and easily disposed of BATTLESHIP GRAY in stretch run. He was shaken up at the end to stall off GLENWILD. GLENWILD, outpaced first six furlongs, was not hurried and he responded with good effort when called on in home stretch. BATEAU weakened last sixteenth. BATTLESHIP GRAY broke from the extreme outside and had a lot taken out of him getting to the front. He showed keen speed in the going and set a fast pace. PETEE WRACK, well up with the leaders in early stages, was eased up when he tired. DISTRACTION dropped out of it directly after the start.

TOPSY S. was knocked sideways by ASSESSOR CHARLIE when the break came, but recovered quickly and drew away. Quillen took her in hand and rated her under stout restraint until straightened out in home stretch, where he drew away into a long lead. FAIR GIRL was tiring and driving hard to stall off PAT CALHOUN. Latter raced in the middle of the track all the way. He finished with good courage. ATOI tired badly.

OLD DOMINION ELEVENS IN 8 GAMES THIS WEEK

Two Contests Listed for Tomorrow

W. and L. at Carolina State; Roanoke vs. Bridgewater.

V. M. I. at Florida in Longest Journey Saturday.

RICHMOND, Va., Oct. 2 (A.P.).—Old Dominion football elevens have eight battles on their program this week, with four of them contested on foreign soil all the way from Maryland to Florida.

Friday draws two games with Washington and Lee going to North Carolina State to do battle, and Bridgewater tangling with the Roanoke Maroons on the gridiron of the latter. The Generals began auspiciously last Saturday with a victory of 64 to 6 over Lynchburg College, but both Roanoke and Bridgewater suffered reverses at the hands of V. P. I. and Hampden-Sydney, respectively.

The V. M. I. Kaydets, fresh from two conquests, journey to Tampa to meet Florida Saturday, while the Cavaliers of Virginia meet the South Carolina Gamecocks. Both the Cadets and the Cavaliers launched their season with impressive victories last Saturday.

V. M. I. New Foe on Gators' Schedule.

The Kaydet game is new, replacing the Georgia Tech contest, but the Cavaliers and Gamecocks have been playing each other for years.

The University of Richmond will open the new stadium here in a tussle with Wake Forest. The Spiders lost last Saturday to V. M. I.

The Hampden-Sydney Tigers will play V. P. I. at Blacksburg. Each team has won one in as many starts.

The strong William and Mary eleven goes to Annapolis to engage the Navy. The Indians opened their season last Saturday night with a 19-to-0 victory over St. Johns.

The Yellow Jackets, of Randolph-Macon, will get their initial taste of night playing when they meet Emory and Henry under the electric lights of the Wasps Saturday night.

Takoma Tigers Play Bowie Again Sunday

The Takoma Tigers and Bowie Motor Co. Nines resume their series for the bicounty championship Sunday when they engage on the Bowie diamond at 2:30 o'clock. Only one game will be played instead of the two formerly scheduled. A third game, should it be necessary, will also be played the following Sunday.

The Bowie Tossers drew first blood in the series last Sunday by triumphing in a 12-to-9 encounter.

Yeomans Beats Levis In College Net Event

Special to The Washington Post.

White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., Oct. 2.—The only surviving representative of West Virginia University was eliminated from the singles competition in the Middle Atlantic intercollegiate tennis tournament at the Greenbrier Golf and Tennis Club when Edgar Yeomans, of the University of North Carolina, defeated Herbert Levis, former Canadian junior champion, in straight sets, 6—3, 6—4. Yeomans, who holds the North Carolina State championship, displayed a steadier brand of tennis to wear down his opponent in the only singles match of the day. A hard rain, which continued until late this afternoon, made playing conditions extremely difficult and both players found the footing a bit uncertain.

In the only other match of the day the team of Pumphrey and Thomas, of Hampden Sydney College, eliminated the Washington and Lee University doubles team of Gooch and Braedy in a biterly contested three-set match, 6—3, 5—7 and 6—3.

W. Va. Sees Threat In Duquesne Eleven

Morgantown, W. Va., Oct. 2.—With Elmer Laydon's Duquesne University Eleven scheduled to face West Virginia at Mountaineer Field next Saturday in a battle which promises to be just as spectacular and just as hard fought as the Davis-Elkins-Mountaineer clash on September 28 there is no time to mourn the result of the Senator invasion.

The Dukes, boasting the greatest kicker in college football in Buff Donnelli, supported by an all-star cast of speedy backs well versed in the fast, deceptive Notre Dame style of attack, are determined to conquer the Mountaineers and thus make a bid for tristate and national recognition.

V. P. I. Eleven Preps For Game Saturday

Blacksburg, Va., Oct. 2.—Virginia Poly's Eleven is in the midst of a hard week of preparation for Hampden-Sidney, and it is all because the Gobblers are deemed far from ready to meet the sturdy aggregation from Death Valley.

The opening game with Roanoke College last week proved that the Polytechnic attack needs plenty of polish on the ground and in the air. Phil Spear and Tommy Tomko romped across for the trio of winning touchdowns against the Maroons more through individual brilliance than through aid from their teammates. For a brief minute or two in the final quarter after the regulars returned to the firing line, the Techmen skirted the flanks and knifed through tackle with machine-like precision. This must be the brand of ball unleashed next Saturday against a stronger and heavier foe than Roanoke proved to be.

Cumberland Envies Blue Ridge Berth

Cumberland, Md., Oct. 2.—There is much talk of Cumberland making an effort to get into the Blue Ridge League next season. Whether the alignment of that circuit can be changed to admit the local team is a question. The management here is constantly expressing dissatisfaction over its franchise in the Middle Atlantic.

Hagerstown, Martinsburg, Chambersburg and Frederick, of the Blue Ridge League, always draw good crowds here in exhibition games. Local officials think they would outdraw Clarksburg, Jeannette and Scottdale any day in the week, and if Cumberland happened to be in the Blue Ridge League they would pack them in here.

The fifth annual tournament of the Brightwood Caddies Association will be held on the 13th of October on the Indian Spring course. Entries will be limited to those who, as residents of Brightwood, caddied at the old Columbia Golf Club. Dinner will follow the tournament in the dining room of the Indian Spring Club.

The event this year promises to be unusually interesting, as the entries will include three club champions, Earl McAleer, Indian Spring; Harry G. Pitt, Manor, and M. A. Shipley, Argyle. Two of the former caddies are now professionals—R. C. McKimmie, Army, Navy and Marine Corps Club, and Leo McNerheny, Kenwood. George J. Voigt, who has risen to golfing fame since he caddied at Old Columbia, has definitely promised to be present.

The affair will be in charge of a committee recently appointed by E. H. Heitmuller, the president of the association.

Duke Back Field Set For Pitt Saturday

Special to The Washington Post.

Durham, N. C., Oct. 2.—The Duke offensive is being smoothed out, now that the back field is picked and has a chance to work together. It is the same back field that worked effectively against Mercer part of the game Saturday. It combines speed and drive. It can pass, run or employ the deceptive attack that always has marked DeHart-coached teams.

Buzz Rosky will be at quarter against Pittsburgh Saturday. He did well in his first game at that position Saturday against Mercer. He should be better against Pitt. Kid Brewer will be at one-half, Sam Bule at the other, and O. C. Godfrey is the full back. Godfrey has plenty of punch and also fits in well with a shifty set of backs. With Kid Brewer in the back field, Godfrey will have a hard running mate.

Bule will do the kicking and passing and also his share of the running. There are few runners in the South who can outdo Sam in getting through.

Woodberry, Staunton To Battle Saturday

Woodberry Forest, Va., Oct. 2.—Saturday the undefeated football teams of Staunton Military Academy and Woodberry Forest will meet here in their annual contest. Both elevens have played two games, Staunton defeating the V. M. I. Reserves 28-0 and the Newport News Apprentice School 20-0, and Woodberry blanking Lane High School 19-0 and Emerson Institute 8-0.

Athletic rivalry between the two schools has been in existence for many years, but for a decade or more all relations save those in track were cast aside. In 1926 football rivalry was resumed when the cadets humbled the Orange organization on Lambeth Field, in Charlottesville, 17-16. The following year on the same gridiron, Woodberry avenged the defeat with a 13-7 victory. In 1928 the scene of battle shifted to Kable Hill, in Staunton, where the cadets fell victim to Woodberry's championship team, 12-0, which marked their only defeat within the State during that season. This year the teams appear quite evenly matched, with what odds there are in favor of the cadets.

W. Md. Soccerists In Game Saturday

Westminster, Md., Oct. 2.—Western Maryland Soccer Team is preparing for a hard game Saturday with Haverford College at Philadelphia. The Terror Booters realize that Haverford usually has one of the strongest soccer teams in the country.

The team was very unimpressive in the first start last Friday against the Towson Normal School. Winning by the close score of 4-2, it was quite apparent that the forwards are not working smoothly as yet. The back field looked strong defensively with Capt. Willis outstanding at center half.

Coach Beauchamp has been working in the rain this week to get the offense functioning. Etzler, a starter in the forward line, is still on crutches from the last fray. The remainder of the schedule includes:

October 5, Haverford College, at Haverford; 12, Franklin and Marshall, at Lancaster; 23, Navy, at Annapolis; 30, Army, at West Point.

November 2, Penn State, at State College; 15, State Normal, at Westminster; 27, Franklin and Marshall, at Westminster; December 9, Lafayette College, at Easton.

ON VIRGINIA GRIDIRONS

(Associated Press.)

The addition of big Mark Ritter to a Virginia Tech Team that downed the powerful and well-coached Roanoke Maroons last week makes the Gobbler outfit look mighty good. Ritter is a great tackle, but the V. P. I. reserves demonstrated last week what Coach Gustafson may depend on if replacements become necessary in the Gobbler line.

Coach Charlie Bernier has been laying emphasis on the defensive side of the game this week at Hampden-Sidney after reading about the antics of Phil Spear, Mitt Owens, Bird Hooper and Mac McEvers at Virginia Tech. The Death Valley Tigers looked good against Bridgewater on offensive last week, but Coach Bernier apparently realizes that Tech's Gobblers will want to play with the ball themselves. In last week's game the Tigers forced Bridgewater to the defensive for the major part of the game.

Virginia Tech will have further opportunity to try out reserves this week, the Tigers suffering from injuries. Revely, hurt in the V. M. I. game, will probably be out until November, while Capt. Blanton is suffering from flu and an infected leg. Hughes, Garden, Franklin and Hunt all have more or less serious injuries.

Virginia Military Institute probably drew the biggest assignment of any Virginia team this week in tackling the Florida Alligators at Tampa. This is written with the understanding that William and Mary engages the Navy at Annapolis. The Gators have a reputation for going through football lines regardless of the opposition. The Keydets will play hard and this game should give a real indication of what Coach Raftery's Flying Squadron can do against a first class football team. The Gators are that and, some sport writers say, considerably more. Hawkins, McCray, Biggs and Dunn probably will start against Florida. Coach Raftery has several others in reserve, including Holtzclaw and Wright, who aided in defeating Richmond, 40 to 0, last week.

Washington and Lee, taking an early jump this week by tackling North Carolina State at Raleigh Friday, should be able to hold the Wolf Pack in check on basis of past performances. The Generals looked like the best in the State last Saturday against the Lynchburg Hornets. Faulkner, Jones, Jacon, Thibodau and Barnt are backs to be feared by any team if they continue the work shown last week.

Virginia joins with V. M. I. in engaging a strong squad this week, meeting South Carolina at Columbia. The Cavaliers are out to avenge the defeat of last season and, despite a rather spotty showing against Randolph-Macon, there is much cheerfulness in the Cavalier camp.

William and Mary no doubt will be heralded as a great team if the Indians can hold the Navy in check or to a reasonable score. This game should show something of what may be expected of the Indians when they meet Virginia teams.

Tarheels Hold Edge Over Old Line Eleven

College Park, Md., Oct. 2.—University of Maryland will strive to even the series with North Carolina when the Old Liners entertain the Tarheels at College Park Saturday.

They have been meeting annually since 1920 and North Carolina has won five games and Maryland four.

Virginia Relying On Hefty Tackles

Charlottesville, Va., Oct. 2.—Virginia is relying upon the services of a flatful of big tackles this fall. Coach Earl Abel has been working with three huskies who weigh more than 200 pounds and he has in reserve two others who scale above 190.

Hunter Motley, who weighs 210, and Dick Day, who tips the beam at 205, both won the "V" last fall. Larry Whalen, a 225-pound lad from Boston, who is the fastest of the trio, has been alternating with them in the tackle position.

Coach Abel started Day and Whalen against Randolph-Macon and held Motley in reserve. But Motley probably will be in the opening line-up against South Carolina in Columbia on Saturday and against Swarthmore when the Cavaliers return to Lambeth Field on October 12.

ALEXANDRIA SPORTS

Special to The Washington Post.

Alexandria, Va., Oct. 2.—Pat Gorman's Virginia A. C. Football Team will have as their opponents in Sunday's game at the Shipyard Field the Fort Myer Post Team, an old rival of Alexandria teams.

In tackling the Soldiers the Virginians will go up against a foe in every way worthy of their steel. The Fort Myer gridders have been practicing for the last three weeks, and reports from their camp indicate that they are in perfect fettle. This is their first game of the season and should be well worth witnessing. It is understood several stars from other post teams are with the invaders.

Manager Gorman states he has scheduled a preliminary game between the Roamers, Alexandria's colored champions, and the Ebenezer A. C., of Washington, this game to start at 1 o'clock. The Roamers claimed the colored football championship of Northern Virginia last season.

VANCE ACE-HIGH AGAIN.

Dazzy Vance's late-season comeback has returned him to the good graces of the Brooklyn Club.

Duquesne Promises West Va. Hard Fight

Morgantown, W. Va., Oct. 2.—According to West Virginia football scouts, Steve Harrick and Louis (Oogie) Meisel, Duquesne University will furnish just as hard and just as spectacular opposition as Davis-Elkins did last Saturday at Mountaineer Field. The Dukes' line will be a trifle heavier than the West Virginia forward wall and boasts two very fast guards in Jack Clark and Mike Farrare, 175-pound speeders who head the interference in fine style.

The Duquesne backfield will be slightly lighter than West Virginia's quartet of ball tossers, but it packs terrific speed and the Duke pigskin luggers specialize in wide end sweeps and deceptive runs off tackle. In their bag of tricks is also included a very effective forward passing game. West Virginia football fans will have their first opportunity next Saturday of seeing the famous Rockne system of football exemplified at Mountaineer Field.

25 YEARS AGO TODAY

Representative Thomas J. Heflin engaged in a fist fight with his Republican opponent, Capt. B. W. Walker, who is said to have made bitter personal remarks about Heflin in campaign speeches. Heflin was reported to have demanded an apology from Walker when they met while waiting for a train at Montgomery, Ala. Walker refused and Heflin struck him in the face. The men were separated before anything more serious resulted.

Four women escaped injury in the sewer in course of construction at Tenth street and Pennsylvania avenue northwest when a horse drawing the surrey in which the women were seated became frightened and backed into the excavation about 12 feet deep. The vehicle overturned and threw the women in the sewer and the horse plunged on top of the wrecked surrey. The horse had to be lifted out with a block and tackle.

President Roosevelt and District Commissioner Henry L. West attended church services in the remodeled Mount Pleasant Congregational Church on Sixteenth street. The pastor of the church is the Rev. M. Moss Fishburn.

John C. Peters, one of the principals in a boxing match in the rear of a saloon on New Jersey avenue, died in the ring following a knockout blow by his opponent. Patrick Dormandy was locked up. Joe Walcott, who recently went 20 rounds with Joe Gans to a draw, received a broken upper arm in the fight.

The French Ambassador and Madame Jusserand will sail for America on October 8 after having spent the summer in France. The Archbishop of Canterbury spent Saturday at West Point as the guest of Gen. Robert Shaw, Assistant Secretary of War.

Shenandoah River Near Flood Stage

Country Roads Impassable After Two Days of Incessant Rain.

Special to The Washington Post.

Harrisonburg, Va., Oct. 2.—The Shenandoah River and other streams of the Shenandoah Valley are nearing flood stage tonight as the result of two days' incessant rain, the first in two months, but no damage is expected, as the precipitation subsided late today. Country roads were made impassable in some places by the rising streams.

A motor circus was unable to make the trip from Luray to Shenandoah on account of water blocking the highway and had to detour by way of New Market and Harrisonburg, going 40 miles out of its way. The circus was unable to reach Shenandoah tonight in time for its scheduled performance.

The Harrisonburg city water supply, which has been at low ebb, was materially benefited by the rain. The city faced a water famine had the drought continued through this week.

Colesville Painter Injured in Accident

When an automobile he was driving on the Colesville pike, near Burnt Mills, Md., crashed into a telephone pole, Lloyd F. Mills, 40 years old, a painter, of Colesville, Md., was thrown through the windshield and severely hurt. He lay unconscious on the roadside until John W. Hunter, of 7336 Fourteenth street northwest, and C. W. Bealle, 6411 Seventh street northwest, found him and took him to the Walter Reed Hospital.

Maj. S. C. Odom gave Mills first aid treatment and then declared he did not believe the man was fatally hurt. He had severe lacerations on his head and possible internal injuries.

Services Will Honor Franciscans' Founder

Marking the 703d anniversary of the death of St. Francis, founder of the order, the Franciscan Monastery tomorrow will observe the Feast of St. Francis in the Pilgrimage Church at Brookland, with impressive services morning and afternoon.

Because of the close friendship between St. Francis and St. Dominic, it is an age-old custom for the Franciscans and Dominicans to celebrate the feasts of their respective founders together.

The morning service will begin at 10 o'clock. The afternoon service, consisting of solemn benediction and the singing of the "Transitus," will begin at 3 o'clock. Music, under direction of Prof. Herbert C. Wells, will be given by the Franciscan choir.

Kiwanians to Hold District Session

Large Virginia Delegation Expected to Attend at Hagerstown.

Richmond, Va., Oct. 2 (A.P.).—Kiwanians from Virginia, Delaware, Maryland and the District of Columbia, comprising the Kiwanis Capital District, will gather at Hagerstown, Md., October 17, 18 and 19 for the eleventh annual convention of the district. Virginia is expected to send a large delegation to the meeting.

One of the chief speakers will be Horace W. McDavid, president of Kiwanis International, who will discuss the possibilities of more aggressive campaigns for bettering the condition of underprivileged children.

Harry G. Kimball, district governor, who will preside at the convention, states that Kiwanis in the Capital District has had a very successful year so far and that he feels optimistic over the outcome for the next three months and for future years. He states that reports to be read at the convention will show even more has been accomplished in the past year than in 1928.

Charlottesville Youth Dies After Horse's Kick

Special to The Washington Post.

Charlottesville, Va., Oct. 2.—Eugene Aylor, 19, died today at University Hospital of general peritonitis resulting from internal injuries received when he was kicked by a horse Monday on the farm of his father, Malon Aylor, near Slate Mills, Rappahannock County.

Returning home for dinner from a sawmill, Aylor attempted to catch a farm horse running loose in field. As he grabbed at the mane the animal suddenly wheeled, hurling his hoofs into his stomach before he could jump out of the way.

MORE DEMAND FELT FOR RESERVE CREDIT

Seasonal Activity Causes More Rediscounting in Fifth District.

BONDS HERE STRONGER

By THOMAS M. CAHILL.

The usual increase in the demand for reserve bank credit occurred between the middle of August and the middle of September in the Fifth or local Federal Reserve District. This was largely due to the opening of tobacco markets, early marketing of other farm products and discounting of bills for fall merchandise, William W. Hoxton, chairman and Federal Reserve agent, reported yesterday.

His report showed that rediscounts for member banks held by the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond rose from $89,006,000 on August 15 to $96,091,000 on September 15, and the circulation of Federal Reserve notes increased between the same dates from $78,864,000 to $82,983,000. Total earning assets of the Richmond bank, which totaled $62,992,000 on August 15, rose to $74,873,000 on September 15, the increase being composed of $7,685,000 in rediscounts and approximately $4,000,000 in holdings of bankers acceptances purchased from member banks and in the open market.

Member bank reserve deposits rose during the month under review from $64,779,000 to $66,288,000, but the several changes previously mentioned in the statement, with others of less importance, reduced the cash reserves of the Richmond bank from $94,419,000 at the middle of August to $83,960,000 at the middle of September and lowered the ratio of cash reserves to note and deposit liabilities combined from 63.77 per cent on August 15 to 56.08 per cent on September 15.

Bond Market Improves.

Heavy selling in Capital Traction bonds and large trades of small-priced issues improved the sales volume considerably on the Washington Stock Exchange yesterday. A $11,500 transfer of the Traction issue brought the bond sales aggregate to $14,100, which bettered Tuesday's market by $9,600. The issue was out at 88½, a 2-point recession, and sold down to 88.

One hundred shares of Washington Savings Bank stock were sold at 17; 100 of Fireman's Fire Insurance at 43½, fractional gain, and 300 of Real Estate Mortgage & Guaranty preferred at 73¼, last sale price. All other sales were in small lots. The stock turnover for the day totaled 674 shares, an advance of 595 over the preceding session.

President George O. Walson, of the exchange, appointed the following past presidents as a special committee to attend the funeral of the late Charles J. Bell, chairman of the board of the American Security & Trust Co., and an honored member of the exchange, Albion K. Parris, William B. Hibbs, Eugene E. Thompson and Carroll Glover. Mr. Walson also will attend the funeral as present head of the exchange.

The District of Columbia Bankers Association will hold a special meeting next Tuesday afternoon at 4 o'clock to pass resolutions of respect to Mr. Bell's memory, and the association also will send a special committee to the funeral.

Representative Stocks Decline.

A decrease of $2,601,453,000, or 6 per cent, was registered in the aggregate market value of 100 representative common stocks in September, according to Frazier Jelk & Co. This compares with an increase of 9.7 per cent in August and an increase of 4.7 per cent in July. The total value of the 100 issues at the end of September was $40,530,401,000, compared with $43,131,854,000 at the end of August. At the beginning of the year the same stocks were appraised at $32,152,458,000.

Eleven of the 13 groups constituting the Jelke index of market values recorded a decline during September, the only gains being in the utilities and in the railroad equipments, less than 2 per cent in each case. The largest decline was registered in the steel, which dropped 13.3 per cent. The electrical manufacturing issues declined 10.7 per cent; the amusements, 9.4 per cent; the motors, 8.8 per cent; the rails, 8.4 per cent; the chemicals, 8.4 per cent; the miscellaneous industrials, 7.7 per cent; the merchandising issues, 6.8 per cent; the foods, 3.8 per cent, and the oils, 1.8 per cent.

World War Called Lesson.

Manufacturers had a lesson forced upon them by the World War that 10,000 years of ordinary events failed to teach them, according to L. C Harbison, president of Household Finance Corporation, who has studied the present economic situation both in Europe and America.

"Throughout all the past," said Harbison, "the manufacturer considered that cheap labor was one of his chief necessities—cheap labor and cheap materials. And these things had always been his aim. With the World War, labor began to get bigger pay than ever before, materials cost more, and so the laboring man and the producer had money to spend in vaster quantities than he had ever dreamed of having. And with that he began to buy—at high prices—more freely than ever."

Millions of dollars are being spent annually by the railroads of this country for "safety first," which has become a dominant policy of the rail carriers, R. H. Alshton, president of the American Railway Association, asserted yesterday.

Huge Expenditures Cited.

"Class 1 railroads in 1928 alone made gross expenditures totaling nearly $195,000,000 for the improvement of safety and protection. For the protection or elimination of highway grade crossings alone the railroads last year spent $31,000,000, of which amount over $26,000,000 were used for the separation of grades. In addition $57,000,000 were expended for heavier and improved rail and $32,400,000 for steel passenger cars."

Directors of Bristol-Myers Co. have declared two dividends, one of $5 a share and the other of 83 1-3 cents a share, both payable October 9 to shareholders of record October 7. The dividend of 83 1-3 cents represents the equivalent of a dividend for the two months ended September 1, at the quarterly rate of $1.25 a share. Shareholders approved a plan under which the business of the company is to be acquired by Drug Incorporated and the company will be dissolved.

On dissolution, shareholders will be entitled to receive certificates for 1⅓ shares of the capital stock of Drug Incorporated for each share of Bristol-Myers stock held. J. & W. Seligman & Co. has been appointed agent of the company to distribute to the owners of its stock the shares of capital stock of Drug Incorporated to which they will be entitled and it is expected that the company will be ready to make the distribution by November 1.

The Seven Dials Mystery

Battle stooped and switched on an electric torch. Loraine was close beside him, peering over his shoulder. She gave a little sobbing gasp.

On the threshhold of the window lay Jimmy Thesiger in what looked like a pool of blood. His right arm lay dangling in a curious position.

Loraine gave a sharp cry.

"He's dead," she wailed. "Oh, Jimmy—Jimmy—he's dead!"

"Now, now!" said Superintendent Battle soothingly, "don't you take on so. The young gentleman isn't dead, I'll be bound. See if you can find the lights and turn them on."

Loraine obeyed. She stumbled across the room, found the switch by the door and pressed it down. The room was flooded with light. Superintendent Battle uttered a sigh of relief.

"It's all right—he's only shot in the right arm. He's fainted through loss of blood. Come and give me a hand with him."

There was a pounding on the library door. Voices were heard asking, expostulating, demanding.

Loraine looked doubtfully at it.

"Shall I——"

"No hurry," said Battle. "We'll let them in presently. You come and give me a hand."

Loraine came obediently. The superintendent had produced a large clean pocket-handkerchief and was neatly bandaging the wounded man's arm. Loraine helped him.

"He'll be all right," said the superintendent. "Don't you worry. As many lives as cats, these young fellows. It wasn't the loss of blood knocked him out either. He must have caught his head a crack on the floor as he fell."

Other Guests Arrive.

Outside the knocking on the door had become tremendous. The voice of George Lomax, furiously upraised, came loud and distinct.

"Who is in there? Open the door at once."

Superintendent Battle sighed.

"I suppose we shall have to," he said. "A pity."

His eyes darted round, taking in the scene. An automatic lay by Jimmy's side. The superintendent picked it up gingerly, holding it very delicately, and examined it. He grunted and laid it on the table. Then he stepped across and unlocked the door.

Several people almost fell into the room. Nearly everybody said something at the same minute. George Lomax, spluttering with obdurate words which refused to come with sufficient fluency, exclaimed:

"The—the—the meaning of this? Ah! It's you, Superintendent. What's happened? I say—what has—happened?"

Bill Eversleigh said, "My God! Old Jimmy" and stared at the limp figure on the ground.

Lady Coote, clad in a resplendent purple dressing gown, cried out, "The poor boy" and swept past Superintendent Battle to bend over the prostrate Jimmy in a motherly fashion.

Bundle said, "Loraine!"

Herr Eberhard said, "Got in himmel!" and other words of that nature.

Sir Stanley Digby said, "My God, what's all this?"

A housemaid said, "Look at the blood," and screamed with pleasurable excitement.

A footman said, "Lor!"

The butler said, with a good deal more bravery in his manner than had been noticeable a few minutes earlier, "Now then, this won't do!" and waved away underservants.

The efficient Mr. Rupert Bateman said to George: "Shall we get rid of some of these people, sir?"

Then they all took fresh breath.

"Incredible!" said George Lomax. "Battle, what has happened?"

Battle gave him a look, and George's discreet habits assumed their usual sway.

"Now, then," he said, moving to the door, "every one go back to bed, please. There's been a—er—"

"A little accident," said Supt. Battle easily.

"A—er—an accident I shall be much obliged if every one will go back to bed."

Every one was clearly reluctant to do so.

"Lady Coote—please—"

"The poor boy," said Lady Coote, in a motherly fashion.

She rose from a kneeling position with great reluctance. And as she did so, Jimmy stirred and sat up.

"Hallo!" he said thickly. "What's the matter?"

He looked round him vacantly for a minute or two and then intelligence returned to his eye.

"Have you got him?" he demanded eagerly.

"Got who?"

"The man. Climbed down the ivy. I was by the window there. Grabbed him and we had no end of a set-to—"

A Cat-Burglar.

"One of those nasty, murderous cat burglars," said Lady Coote. "Poor boy."

Jimmy was looking round him.

"I say—I'm afraid we—er—have made rather a mess of things. Fellow was as strong as an ox and we went fairly waltzing around."

The condition of the room was clear proof of this statement. Everything light and breakable within a range of 12 feet that could be broken had been broken.

"And what happened then?"

But Jimmy was looking round for something.

"Where's Leopold? The pride of the blue-nosed automatics."

"Is this yours, Mr. Thesiger?"

"That's right. That's little Leopold. How many shots have been fired?"

"One shot."

Jimmy looked chagrined.

"I'm disappointed in Leopold," he murmured. "I can't have pressed the button properly, or he'd have gone on shooting."

"Who shot first?"

"I did, I'm afraid," said Jimmy. "You see, the man twisted himself out of my grasp suddenly. I saw him making for the window and I closed my finger down on Leopold and let him have it. He turned in the window and fired at me and—well, I suppose after that I took the count."

He rubbed his head rather ruefully.

But Sir Stanley Digby was suddenly alert.

"Climbing down the ivy, you said? My God, Lomax, you didn't think they've got away with it?"

He rushed from the room. For some curious reason nobody spoke during his absence. In a few minutes Sir Stanley returned. His round chubby face was white as death.

"My God, Battle," he said, "they've got it. O'Rourke's fast asleep—drugged, I think. I can't wake him. And the papers have vanished!"

The Countess Radzky's Story.

The Countess' return to consciousness was very different from that of Jimmy Thesiger. It was more prolonged and infinitely more artistic.

Artistic was Bundle's word. She had been zealous in her manistrations—largely consisting of the application of cold water—and the countess had instantly responded, passing a white, bewildered hand across her brow and murmuring faintly.

It was at this point that Bill, at last relieved from his duties with telephone and doctors, had come bustling into the room and had instantly proceeded to make (in Bundle's opinion) a most regrettable idiot of himself.

He had hung over the countess with a concerned and anxious face and had addressed a series of singularly idiotic remarks to her:

"I say, countess. It's all right. It's really all right. Don't try to talk. It's bad for you. Just lie still. You'll be all right in a minute. It'll all come back to you. Don't say anything till you're quite all right. Take your time. Just lie still and close your eyes. You'll remember everything in a minute. Have some other sip of water. Have some brandy. That's the stuff. Don't you think, Bundle, that some brandy——?"

"For God's sake, Bill, leave her alone," said Bundle crossly. "She'll be all right."

And with an expert hand she sipped a good deal of cold water on to the exquisite make-up of the countess' face.

The Countess Revived.

The Countess flinched and sat up. She looked considerably more wide awake.

"Ah!" she murmured. "I am here. Yes, I am here."

"Take your time," said Bill. "Don't talk till you feel quite all right again."

The countess drew the folds of a very transparent negligee closer around her.

"It is coming back to me," she murmured. "Yes, it is coming back."

She looked at the little crowd grouped around her. Perhaps something in the attentive faces struck her as unsympathetic. In any case, she smiled deliberately up at the one face which clearly displayed a very opposite emotion.

"Ah, my big Englishman," she said very softly, "do not distress yourself. All is well with me."

"Oh! I say, but are you sure?" demanded Bill anxiously.

"Quite sure." She smiled at him reassuringly. "We Hungarians, we have nerves of steel."

A look of intense relief passed over Bill's face. A fatuous look settled down there instead—a look which made Bundle earnestly long to kick him.

"Have some water," she said coldly.

SUPERVISORS HOLD MONTHLY MEETING

Fairfax County Chiefs Have Report on Conference About Boulevard.

CONSIDER OTHER CASES

FAIRFAX BUREAU OF THE POST.
Clarendon 919-J-1.

The board of supervisors of Fairfax County held their regular monthly meeting yesterday. The morning session of the board was taken up with routine business. Accounts of the various county departments for last month were approved and ordered paid. Out of the State gasoline tax for the month of August, Fairfax county received $4,921.20.

Chairman Reid and County Engineer Larkin gave a report of their conference with the Assistant Secretary of the Federal Department of Agriculture concerning the Mount Vernon boulevard. They notified the Secretary that the supervisors did not have the authority to pass zoning and building regulations, and, while they were in favor of restricting the area along the boulevard, they could not do so until the State Assembly granted them that power. The Secretary informed them that the county would be allowed to connect its roads to the boulevard at specified points, and that no other connections of any kind would be allowed. He then informed them that the Federal Government wanted the tract of land at the entrance of the Mount Vernon estate which is owned by the county. This land would be used for parking of automobiles, and that it would be paved and landscaped.

At yesterday's meeting the supervisors passed a resolution authorizing the United States Government to make any use of and improvements on this tract of land it might see fit, but that the county would retain title to the land.

The motion to recommend the appointment of B. L. Poole as county veterinarian to the State Board of Health was defeated.

The residents of Seminary sent their representative to ask the board if anything could be done in regard to the hauling and dumping of garbage on the ground as feed for the hogs. Many persons raise hogs in that vicinity and the odor from the rotting garbage was said to be obnoxious. Dr. R. J. White, county sanitary engineer, made a report on this condition in which he stated that the odor in some places was a nuisance and some effort had been made to abate it. The county health department could pass an ordinance requiring animals to be kept in a sanitary way. The board ordered Dr. White to communicate with the State Health Department for its opinion and regulations which might govern such conditions.

Chairman Reid was appointed to take care of the case of the family of Wilber B. Rodgers, and the sum of $20 was appropriated for their care for the month of October. Rodgers is now in jail for neglect to provide for his family, consisting of a wife and six small children. He is also under indictment of the Federal grand jury for stealing from Fort Humphreys.

Robert Caton was allowed $36.25 for chickens killed by stray dogs.

Mrs. J. E. Nickell was allowed $30 for the care of Mrs. Maud Robinson, a county tubercular patient.

A petition of the residents of Burke was received asking that 2,416 feet of private road be taken into the county highway system. This road is the only one of the residents can use to go to and from their homes. Over 50 homes, the schoolhouse and railway station are located on this stretch of road. County Engineer Larkin was ordered to investigate and report at the next meeting.

The report for the month of Sara Thomas, county home demonstrator, stated that she had held 20 meetings, visited 22 homes, organized 9 4H clubs, and had traveled 771 miles.

D. C. Davis and Herbert Shephard, of Accotink, Va., who were arrested September 23 on charges of sale and possession of liquor to soldiers of Fort Humphreys, were tried yesterday in Circuit Court. Shephard pleaded guilty to a second offense charge of sale and possession of liquor, was fined $250 and costs and sentenced to six months on the road. Davis pleaded guilty and was fined $200 and costs and six months on the road on the same charge. Daisy Davis, wife of D. C. Davis, pleaded guilty and was fined $50 and costs and given a suspended sentence of six months in jail on the charge of possession. In sentencing Mrs. Davis, Judge Howard W. Smith stated that he hesitated to send a woman to jail, which was the only reason he suspended sentence. He added that if at any time he heard of her selling liquor or had any reason to believe that she was handling liquor the jail sentence would immediately be put into effect. He also said that he was going to do all in his power to see that bootlegging in this community was stopped.

In addition to the above sentence the court required each one of the defendants to give $1,000 bond with good surety not to violate the prohibition law for a period of one year.

The chapter will then make plans for their work this winter to improve conditions among the mountain folk of the State.

Beginning this week the Boy Scouts of Annandale, Va., will hold their meetings on Friday evening instead of Thursday. This has been changed so as not to interfere with their school work. The meeting tomorrow will begin the 90-day program of the troops committee.

In order to be qualified as a voter a person must be at least 21 years old on or before November 5 and must have been a resident of the State for one year, of the county six months and of the precinct for 30 days. It is necessary that all poll taxes assessable must have been paid.

A second appeal for funds by the committee in charge of the upkeep of the Fairfax Cemetery is now being mailed out. These funds are to be used for the proper maintenance of the grounds. The upkeep of the cemetery amounts to at least $900 a year, which is paid as salary to the caretaker. The first appeal resulted in contributions of about $210.

WINCHESTER MAN'S TRIAL OPENS TODAY

Arthur G. Jones Is Accused of Embezzling Funds of Company.

SELLING AGENT SOUGHT

Special to The Washington Post.

Winchester, Va., Oct. 2.—Court officials completed arrangements today for the trial tomorrow of Arthur G. Jones, former president and general manager of the Arthur G. Jones Woolen Mills Corporation, on a specific charge of embezzling $2,670.92 of the company's funds December 31, 1927. About 35 other indictments are pending against Jones. The case will be called for trial before Judge Philip Williams and a jury in corporation court. The court recently denied a defense motion for a change of venue, and a Winchester jury will sit in the case.

A panel of 50 names has been summoned from which to choose 12 jurors. The prosecution has summoned about 10 witnesses, while the list of defense witnesses had not been announced today. Commonwealth's Attorney James P. Reardon and former Representative Thomas W. Harrison and his son, Burr Powell Harrison, are to prosecute the charges, while Harry R. Kern, of Winchester, and Aubrey G. Weaver, of Front Royal, Va., will represent Jones. The accused is out on $15,000 bond.

The city grand jury recently indicted Max Krol, former vice president, treasurer and general selling agent, along with Jones, but Krol has not been seen here since late last winter, and process servers have been unable to locate him in New York, where he had an office and apartment.

Jones and Krol are charged in the indictment on which the former will be tried with embezzling $2,670.92 each by placing the amounts to the credit of each as a bonus upon the sale of goods for the corporation during 1927 without the knowledge or consent of the board of directors. A variety of charges are listed in other indictments, charging secret conspiracy, manipulation of accounts and funds and embezzlement.

Another indictment stands against T. A. Copeland, president of the Chicago Wool Co., charged with secretly conspiring with Jones and Krol to obtain possession of the company's property, and also to sell cheap wool to the company at exorbitant prices.

ARLINGTON PARENTS KICK ON POLICE CUT

School Associations Urge Board to Reconsider Slash in Funds.

CHILD SAFETY AT STAKE

ARLINGTON COUNTY BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clarendon 509. Clarendon, Va.

Aroused at the action of the County Board of Supervisors in instructing that notice be given Circuit Court Judge Howard W. Smith that on and after November 15 the board would make no further appropriations for the salaries of temporary police officers, the Robert E. Lee School Parent-Teacher Association, in special session, yesterday adopted a resolution calling upon the board to reconsider its decision as a move for the safety of Arlington school children.

Mrs. Herbert Marcey, president of the association, said:

"The supervisors propose the use of the janitors as traffic officers The janitors have no police authority, and we heartily agree with Sheriff Fields and County School Superintendent Fletcher Kemp that they have all they can do to take care of their duties in the school buildings."

Sheriff Is Commended.

The association commended Fields and Kemp for their efforts to assure police protection for the children of the county.

While the meeting was going on at the Robert E. Lee School, the Parent-Teacher Association of the Fort Myer Heights School was in session and adopted a similar resolution opposing any reduction in the county police force.

It was pointed out by the president of the group, Mrs. L. O. Gillette, that only last year, when the sheriff was unable to keep an officer stationed at the school owing to lack of men, a child was killed and that not since the special officer was appointed by Judge Smith a few weeks ago has there been an accident.

Copies of both resolutions will be sent to Judge Smith, Sheriff Fields, the County Board of Supervisors and Superintendent Kemp.

Women Voters to Act.

Learning of the action taken by the county supervisors, Mrs. M. Rex Hunt, chairman of the civic committee of the Organized Women Voters of Arlington County, declared last night that it is the "most outrageous thing ever heard of."

"The saving of the life of one of the 5,800 children attending our schools is worth far more than the combined salaries of the entire police force," declared Mrs. Hunt.

"What is needed is more police in order that the few the sheriff now has will not have to work eighteen and twenty hours a day for the disgraceful salary of $125 a month," she said.

Mrs. Hunt announced that her organization will support the actions of the Parent-Teacher associations, and that there will be a special meeting called of the civic committee, at which suitable resolutions will be adopted, in addition to a letter which will be sent to Judge Smith appealing to him to come to the aid of "the mothers of Arlington County" that they may feel safe when their children leave home for school.

A card party for the benefit of the Stonewall Jackson school in Mulhall Station, Va., will be given by the parent-teacher association of the school tomorrow night at the home of Mrs. Dave Morgan, in Mulhall Station.

With heavy rains causing many cave-ins along the Wilson boulevard from the Fort Myer Heights School to Chestnut street, where the boulevard is entirely closed, motorists have been warned to drive with care, as many have found themselves in a ditch and unable to move.

Motorists wishing to reach Clarendon will do well to use the Lee highway to Lyon Village, thence by way of Virginia avenue to Wilson boulevard at Clarendon.

Derflinger Waging Hot Election Fight

Candidate of Republicans Claims School System Must Be Corrected.

Special to The Washington Post.

Luray, Va., Oct. 2.—As weather conditions drive him from Panama suits to heavier wear, Prof. John W. Derflinger, Republican, is making desperate efforts to defeat Charles C. Louderback, Democratic nominee, for the Legislature.

Derflinger, a school teacher of Warren County, is making a house-to-house campaign, not ignoring mountain settlements and country crossroads stores. He is attacking the public school system of Virginia as administered by Democrats, declaring that applicants for jobs in the schools of Virginia must belong to "the ring before they can get into the swing."

Derflinger says that he will break down the 400 Democratic majority in Warren County, and that he will carry nine of the thirteen voting precincts in Page County in the approaching election.

Dr. Brown, Republican and anti-Smith candidate for governor, will have 400 majority in Page County in the November election, Republicans declare. The "conversion" of prominent Democrats to the Brown candidacy, Republicans point out, will give Page County to Brown in the November election.

COLLEGE MEN TOLD TO SEE ALL OF LIFE

Dr. Chase Is Speaker at the University of Virginia Convocation.

ENROLLMENT IS RECORD

Special to The Washington Post.

Charlottesville, Va., Oct. 2.—Dr. Harry Woodburn Chase, president of the University of North Carolina, was the principal speaker at convocation exercises of the 169th session of the University of Virginia, held this morning in Cabell Hall. He warned the college men against dwelling in such compartments of life as the social, the athletic or strictly academic and refusing to see life as a whole.

"Keep your individuality," he said. "Don't get lost in the rut of desire to be alike, one of the besetting sins of America today Don't be afraid to be different in spite of any sort of mass pressure. Be people as well as college students."

In a statement concerning the progress and aims of the university, President Edwin A. Alderman said the present enrollment was 2,351, an increase of 305 over this date last year. One hundred more students, according to statistics of many yearss, will register before the session closes, he said.

Many Denied Admission.

"The authorities are not preoccupied with the thought of piling up numbers," said Dr. Alderman. "In fact, they are denying admission literally to hundreds who would have been admitted here, or in most colleges, a decade ago. Three out of every five applicants were denied admission this year.

"The University of Virginia gave instruction last year to 5,220 students. The number this year will reach 6,000. This includes the regular session, the summer quarter, the extension courses and the nurses' training school. A total of 943 new students is registered for the first time in all departments. Of these, 668 are first-year students in the College of Arts and Sciences. The total enrollment in the college is 1,337, one-half of these being first-year students.

"Geographical distribution is as follows: From Virginia, 1,202, representing 93 of the 100 counties; non-Virginians, 1,123, representing every State, and 23 students representing 17 foreign countries. This is the first time, to my knowledge, that every American Commonwealth has been represented in the student attendance in the University of Virginia."

Lists Causes of Failure.

"According to the science of statistics, a harsh and unlovely mentor, 15 out of every 100 of you freshmen will fail in your work here," said Dr. Alderman. "Let us hope that statistics, the reputation of which is none too good, will again prove a liar. Fifteen out of every 100 remain a sort of skeleton in every academic closet. A negligible percentage of this failure is due to mental immaturity, which is a scientific way of rating a youngster as a moron, which in itself is rather a grandiese term for a plain fool, and it is getting increasingly difficult for any person to enter college.

"A very small percentage of this failure is traceable to financial worries, ill health or real misfortunes. Too little sleep, fast and foolish eating, too much leisure, not enough study, loose and scattered thinking—these are your enemies. Vanquish them and let your older friends and teachers help you. I am convinced that the failure in 90 per cent of cases is in the man himself. He got started wrong, or he made a mistake in the choice of his parents, or he falls away to the worship of strange gods, Baal or Ashtoreth or Bacchus."

La Plata Parent Group Plans Work

Executive Board Outlines Extensive Program for Year Ahead.

La Plata, Md., Oct. 2.—The executive board of the La Plata Parent-Teacher Association has mapped plans for the year's activities of the association.

The aim to pay $200 on the land recently purchased by the association for additional playgrounds is the biggest of its undertakings. This additional land gives the school a campus of 11 acres and eliminates the possibility of buildings being erected that would obstruct the view or outlook from the school.

Other aims are to put $100 worth of books in the school library, get the school ground in grass, plant trees and shrubbery, and enlarge kitchen equipment.

To accomplish these things will require about $500. To raise this money the association plans to give an oyster supper in October, a dance at Thanksgiving, a card party in January and a minstrel show in February.

ANNAPOLIS FLOODED AFTER HEAVY RAINS

VESSELS MADE SECURE

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., Oct. 2.—Streets in the southeast end of the city are inundated to a depth of from 1 to 2 feet two or three blocks inland, the water covering a stretch of more than half a mile, due to a rapidly rising tide following torrential rains of last night and early today, which were believed to be the tail end of the West Indian hurricane.

Residents along the water front, crossing streets in small boats and scows, and even paddling wash tubs, furnished a sight witnessed here only occasionally.

The flood waters extended from Gloucester street and Spa Creek Bridge, all along the harbor front, engulfing a large part of the Naval Academy grounds, including the football field.

Unusual Spectacle Seen.

The ferry steamers Gov. Albert C. Ritchie and John M. Dennis, floating beside their inundated pier, presented an unusual sight, as did other boats of various sizes, moored to other wharves. Many craft probably would have been badly damaged by battering except for precautionary measures taken when the northeaster of yesterday and early today veered to the southeast.

This was particularly true of the many small craft assigned to the local naval station. Officials there, as well as watermen whose boats were at harbor wharves, were quick to grasp the situation and either made the vessels secure to their moorings or anchored them out in Severn River to ride out the heavy seas. It was not a day for oyster tongers to venture to the bars, so heavy and choppy was the sea.

Winds Shift Rapidly.

The winds shifted rapidly around early this morning, first from northeast to southwest, and then gave way to the southeast disturbance around 11 o'clock, the wind at times assuming gale force. The tide rose at the rate of a foot an hour with the driving wind, and the first floor of scores of houses were flooded. Some residents say the tide was the highest they had ever known. The waters began to recede tonight, leaving a lot of flotsam and jetsam in their wake.

SLAYING CONSTABLE SPEED-TRAP OWNER

OUSTER EFFORT FAILED

Special to The Washington Post.

Martinsburg, W. Va., Oct. 2.—A preliminary hearing for Joe Kane, constable of Arden District, in jail here charged with the murder of Kenny Williams, Virginia apple-picker at Kane's gas filling station on a country road near here Sunday night in a general fight, will await recovery of Harvey Faircloth, an attache at the gas station, who is alleged to have been attacked and injured by Williams before Williams was shot.

Faircloth is in a local hospital with wounds not thought serious. Kane is also alleged to have been attacked and cut by Williams when Kane went to Faircloth's assistance. A shot from Kane's gun is also said to be responsible for a bullet wound in Faircloth's leg. Kane's wounds are not thought serious either.

Arrest of Kane brought to light one of his alleged attempts to hold up motorists on the State highway south of here for speeding and collect fines on the spot, releasing them from further charges or hearings in a magistrate's court. It was disclosed by one local man, who was with a group of Ohio tourists caught in Kane's trap, that he told them the ordinary fine was $35 and that the magistrates in Martinsburg were hard boiled against speeders. He offered to let them go for $15, and when they demurred, he settled at $10, the motorists said. Kane trailed them to Martinsburg and would not let them stop in the city. The party outwitted him, however, by returning later. The matter was called to the attention of authorities, an informal hearing was held with the prosecuting attorney and Kane, after being confronted with the evidence, returned the $10.

Chamber of Commerce officials made open protest against his tactics on the road in holding up motorists and bringing them to trial here. One of his victims was a Wheeling man who was late for his scheduled wedding in Winchester, Va., and who made no demurrer at paying Kane a fine on the road for speeding. It is also understood Kane was called before court to face criticism and that efforts were made to remove him from his official position some weks ago, but no final action was taken.

Kane was in an airplane accident at a local field when a passenger plane, flown by Arthur Becker, of Gettysburg, Pa., with Kane as a passenger, crashed at Shepherd Field several years ago during a farmers' picnic. Kane was badly injured at that time, including injury to his skull, with many broken bones, and underwent extended hospitalization, but he emerged eventually from the hospital and was able to resume his work here.
